ALF M. LANDON TELLS VIEWS ON '36 RACE ISSUES

Outlines His Ideas for Campaign.

Topeka, Kas., May 7.—[Special.]—Speaking to the nation from the state executive mansion by radio tonight, Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas replied to some of the questions he repeatedly has been asked in recent months. He gave his views on national questions, including several important points of the New Deal program. He advocated a vigorous campaign by the Republicans and asserted that he favored allowing the states to solve their own "wet and dry" problems.

The Landon broadcast was sponsored by the Columbia Broadcasting system, which sent H. V. Kaltenborn, political analyst and news commentator, to interview the governor. It was the Kansas governor's first public utterance since his Founders' day address in Lincoln, Neb., in February.

For Aggressive Campaign.

Although the governor did not officially announce his candidacy for the nomination, he assured his questioner that if nominated he would conduct an aggressive campaign—he said that no one had ever considered a Kansas political campaign a "pink tea" affair.

The greatest need in America today, he said, is a return of confidence in the people themselves. An "informative campaign" in which all the main issues are thoroughly discussed from both sides of the story, would restore confidence, he declared.

The Republicans must make the issues so "clear and simple" that every man and woman can understand them, the governor said, and the party must convince the people that it is the instrument by which the American people can obtain good government—rather than a government of casual experiments.

New Dealers Not Democrats.

Gov. Landon read the administration in Washington clear out of the Democratic party, declaring its whole method of procedure has been contrary to the historic principles of the party." While certain of its objectives have been good, he said, the method of trying to reach them has been mostly bad. The administration has acted on snap judgment, he asserted, forcing "hastily conceived ideas" through congress without regard to "established American processes of government, and results have too often been bad."

Reminding his audience that he had coöperated in every way possible because he thought the nation's interest came ahead of partisan interest, he said that no administration in history ever has had less opposition than the Roosevelt régime—but it has failed to meet the problem of recovery."

On the wet and dry question, Landon said he was willing to accept the verdict of the people that the question should be returned to the states for such decision as their citizenry wished.

Opposes Hampering Business.

The government should regulate but not hamper business, Gov. Landon said, following with the declaration that he opposed monopoly, "which is bad for every one, including business itself," because men "in a monopolistic position are not on their toes, fighting." He is for social security but believes the complicated legislation rushed through by the administration will prove to be unworkable in many respects.

As for making America over, as suggested by the Washington brain trusters, Landon wants to know what that means and who is going to do it. He does not want any of the European planned society or any system which requires some man to tell American citizens what to do or what not to do. He would overhaul the relief setup, which he said is all wrong because of its tieup with "wretched party politics."

The interview questions and answers follow:

Mr. Kaltenborn:

"Governor, just who and what do you think will decide the coming election?"

Gov. Landon:

"Mr. Kaltenborn, I would say that it will be decided by the people with moderate minds. There are a great many of them. Republicans, Democrats, and independents—who

FRANCE HIT BY PANIC; RUN ON BANKS GROWING

Franc in Peril; Gold Flight Increases.

Italy to Be Empire

Mussolini plans to proclaim Italy an empire and announce annexation of Ethiopia tomorrow. Fascist troops take over French railway in African nation, continue subjugation of natives. Page 4.

PARIS, May 7.—Following the publication last night of communist plans to "soak the rich," one of the worst panics in years hit the Paris bourse today. There was a general cry for the Sarraut government to take drastic steps to save the franc from being driven off the gold standard before the unborn Socialist government can take power.

Unchecked by the increase in the rediscount rate at the Bank of France announced yesterday, the flight of gold from the country and the rush of depositors to withdraw money from savings banks attained startling proportions. The gravity of the panic was reflected notably in the sharp rise of the British pound, the Dutch guilder, and the Belgian franc in relation to the franc and more particularly in forward premiums on these currencies and the dollar.

Danger Is Emphasized.

Bankers willing to sell pounds on credit, taking payment three months hence in francs at today's exchange rate—75 francs 51 centimes to the pound—were able to collect a premium of five francs on each pound in view of the risk they were running from depreciation of the franc. On the dollar, which today was worth 15 francs 19 centimes in Paris, the premium was equally high—one franc.

To understand the proportions of the financial stampede represented by these figures one must keep in mind that on the rare occasions during the last two years when the forward premium on the pound approached four francs the situation was considered critical. And now it is five francs.

Clamor for Action.

Despite the Bank of France's gold hoard of nearly 4 billion 250 million dollars, financial experts consider that the stampede cannot go on like this for more than a few days without the franc being lost. Hence, even the most conservative financial papers were clamoring for immediate government action to stem the gold hemorrhage—meaning some kind of exchange restrictions.

On Tuesday the government announced that no special financial measures would be taken during the three weeks before the new chamber of deputies meets.

This morning the ministers met again and once more decided on nothing. It was said dissension developed as to what measures to take for the defense of the currency. Marcel Regnier, minister of finance, evidently failed to find the support he asked for drastic methods to guard the franc.

However, another meeting will be held tomorrow or Saturday and it is hard to see how Premier Albert Sarraut can maintain his hands off policy

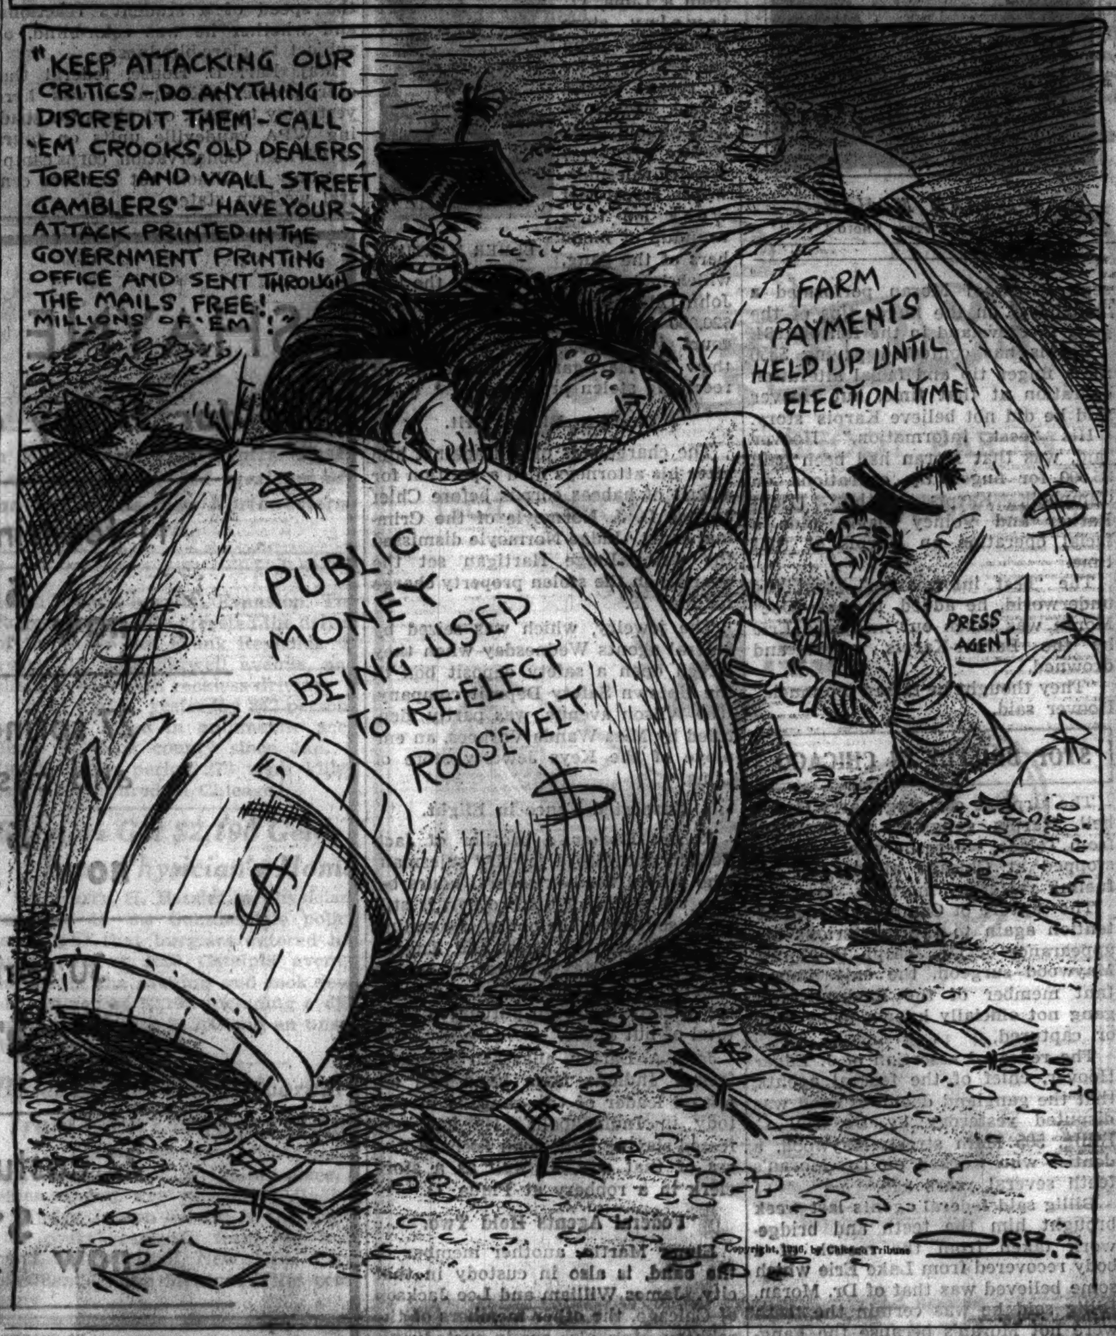
THE MAN WHO SHOULDN'T CALL NAMES



Youths Boast Holdups; One Is Probationer

Three young gunmen were held last night at the Summerdale police station after they boastfully confessed at least fifty lovers' lane and stop light holdups on the north side. With them was held a fourth youth, who said he accompanied two of the robbers early yesterday on their last series of stickups.

One of the prisoners is Bruce Hamilton, 19 years old, who was placed on probation last April 27 by Chief Justice D. J. Normoyle of the Criminal court after he had been sentenced to one to twenty years in the penitentiary for stealing an automobile. Hamilton is the son of Chester F. Hamilton, 2037 Hunt avenue, a member of the firm of Hamilton Brothers, real estate dealers at 7060 Clyde avenue.

Seized in Y. M. C. A. Room.

Young Hamilton was seized in his room at the Lawson Y. M. C. A. after police got his name from two of his robber pals. They are Marshall Miller, 19 years old, 5240 Winthrop avenue, and Charles Magner, 21 years old, 4943 Sheridan road.

Miller and Magner were arrested early yesterday at Argyle street and Sheridan road by Sergt. Ray Clancy and Policemen Dan Bennett and James Walsh, who were on the lookout for two youths who had committed three robberies in the district shortly before. The fourth man under arrest is Victor Welcker, 21 years old, 5005 Glenwood avenue, a bartender, who said he met Hamilton and Miller for the first time Wednesday night in a night club.

"They bragged about what expert stickup men they were, and offered to show me how they worked," said Welcker. "And they showed me."

His Story Confirmed.

Magner and Miller confirmed Welcker's disclaimer of an active part in their crimes early yesterday, but they said they had been associated with Hamilton many times.

Many of their robbery victims were couples in automobiles parked in a lovers' lane along the north shore channel between Foster and Devon avenues. Many other victims were motorists whom they stopped at traffic lights.

Numerous victims identified the trio last night, and the robbers cheerfully helped them recall incidents of the holdups. In their cells, however, the three were not so cheerful. Magner bitterly denounced Miller and Hamilton, because one of the automobiles stolen late Wednesday night belonged to his father, Charles Magner Sr. The machine was taken from in front of his home at 1238 Winona street.

THIRTY INJURED IN TWO STREET CAR ACCIDENTS

More than thirty persons were injured, two seriously, and scores of others were badly shaken in two street car accidents during the evening rush hours yesterday in widely separated parts of the city.

Those most seriously hurt were victims of an accident on the south side. The rear truck of an eastbound 59th street car, carrying about sixty passengers, left the tracks as it was turning south into Ashland avenue. The rear end of the car swung sharply, striking Mrs. Ann Turnroos, 65 years old, 5856 South Ashland avenue, who was crossing the street. Mrs. Mollie Yost, 52 years old, 3540 West 57th place, one of the five passengers hurt, suffered possible internal injuries. Both were taken to the Southtown hospital.

About 30 of the 100 passengers in two Milwaukee avenue street cars were injured slightly when the cars crashed head-on at Division street. The car traveling northwest struck an open switch and swerved into the path of another bound southeast. The injured were given first aid treatment at the North Avenue hospital.

Chicago experienced the hottest May 7 in the annals of the weather bureau yesterday when warm breezes from the gulf states sent the temperature to 87 degrees at 3:45 p. m., an excess of two degrees over the previous maximum for the day, registered in 1880.

Forecaster J. R. Lloyd predicted showers for today with a maximum of 80 degrees. Tomorrow will be cooler, he said.

The warm weather gave many of the animals in the Chicago Zoölogical park at Brookfield their first outing of the season. The elephants, lions, tigers, and monkeys were allowed the freedom of their yards.

Chases Reflected Street Car Through Shop Window

Gazing at a tempting display of doughnuts in a shop window at the southwest corner of Dearborn and Randolph streets, while waiting for a street car, Edward Scorcz, 35 years old, of 4038 Archer avenue, saw the reflection of his approaching car in the window. Scorcz dashed toward the reflected car, crashed through the window, and fell among the doughnuts. Harry Nugent, 4643 North Rockwell street, a watchman, saw the plunge and summoned police, who seized Scorcz on a charge of malicious mischief.

Probe Death of Actress in Fall from Airplane

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, May 7.—Police at Biarritz tonight were investigating the death of an actress who either jumped or fell from an airplane piloted by the Spaniard, Gonzalo de la Gandara, a son-in-law of the Marquise de Ivanrey, the former Italia Blair of Chicago.

When De la Gandara returned to Biarritz airport he told officials that the actress, Mlle. Germaine Recarte, 26, had "disappeared" somewhere between Grenoble and Biarritz. After a search the body was found in a field.

Claim She Was Strapped in Plane.

Biarritz airport officials said the chief pilot had strapped the young woman into the plane before she started the flight.

De la Gandara is the husband of Ines de Soriano, who made her debut in Chicago at the Casino Dec. 10, 1928. Many times previously she had visited her grandmother, Mrs. Chauncey J. Blair, and other relatives in Chicago.

Ines and de la Gandara were married at Biarritz on Nov. 30, 1932. Her grandmother, who was living in Geneva, Switzerland, at the time, was the only relative from Chicago to attend the wedding.

Was Spanish Cavalry Officer.

De la Gandara was a cavalry officer in Spain during the monarchy and happened to be guarding the palace in Madrid the night in April, 1931, when King Alfonso fled.

Ines' father, Marquis de Ivanrey, with many others of the Spanish nobility, fled the revolution and settled at Biarritz.

Ines' mother, famed as one of the greatest beauties of her day in Chicago and the United States, was married to Richardo de Soriano, who later became the Marquis de Ivanrey in Paris in 1907.

The marquise, who is now separated from the marquis, at present is in New York, but will sail soon for Europe.

Fire Chief at Waukegan Gets Card Mailed in 1932

Adolph Francke, fire chief of Waukegan, received a postcard yesterday from Spring Lake, Minn. It was addressed to him by William Worth, one of his firemen, and told of the big catch of fish Worth had made. Francke was puzzled because he had seen Worth every day for the last few months. At that moment Worth entered and the chief asked him what the joke was. The men examined the postcard and found that Worth had mailed it from Spring Lake on Sept. 16, 1932.

Zeppelin Over Newfoundland On Hop to U.S.

BULLETIN.

ABOARD THE ZEPPELIN HINDENBURG, EN ROUTE TO AMERICA, May 8 (Friday).—The Hindenburg emerged from a heavy storm into bright sunshine this morning and passengers found they were passing over the Grand Banks of Newfoundland. At midnight the ship ran into a 40 mile an hour headwind and heavy rain. The course was changed suddenly from the southwest to the north.

New York, May 7.—(AP)—The German Zeppelin Hindenburg, pushing steadily along through clear skies, sailed over midocean along the North Atlantic air route tonight.

The majestic 813 foot dirigible was making an average speed of more than 80 miles an hour bringing its 51 passengers and crew of 56 nearer their destination at Lakehurst, N. J.

Radio reports from the airship at 8 p. m. Chicago time said all was well.

Ship "Running Like Mad."

Dr. Hugo Eckener, veteran Zeppelin commander, sent a message which said:

"The Hindenburg is running like mad, averaging over 80 miles an hour, with the possibility of reaching New York early Saturday."

The Hindenburg left Friedrichshafen at 9:30 p. m. German time, 3:30 p. m. Chicago time, Wednesday.

Shortly after lunch today the airship ran into heavy weather, but it rode so evenly that nobody noticed the wind.

The giant envelope was sighted by the S. S. Champlain at noon Chicago time about 1,000 miles west of the English coast. The liner reported clear weather, with a fresh easterly wind of 19 to 24 miles an hour.

Its position, radioed from the dirigible at 3 p. m., was given as latitude 48.45 north and longitude 26.41 west.

The course of the Hindenburg was nearly over the North Atlantic steamship route.

LIFE ABOARD AIRSHIP

ABOARD THE AIRSHIP HINDENBURG OVER THE NORTH ATLANTIC, May 7.—Here is a taste of life aboard the dirigible Hindenburg on its flight from Friedrichshafen, Germany, to Lakehurst, N. J.:

5 a. m.—I glanced from a cabin window. Far below was the sea, a lonely steamer on its surface. The airship had left the coast near Ostend, Belgium, in clear weather. We had a good night's rest, lulled to sleep in comfortable beds by the gentle purr of the engines. In the cabins we had hot and cold running water and cold showers.

7:10 a. m.—We passed over Land's End at 1,200 feet, greeted by a few coastal vessels.

7:45 a. m.—We passed five miles north of the Scilly isles and a little later passed Bishop rock off the Irish coast. News sheets and weather charts were distributed to passengers who

U. S. AGENTS GET WILLIAM MAHAN AND CAMPBELL

One in California, Other at Toledo, O.

Two in One Day!

Two public enemies, sought in widespread man hunts for their participation in outstanding kidnapings, were captured by federal agents in bloodless raids yesterday.

William Mahan, "brains" of the $200,000 kidnaping of young George Weyerhaeuser, Tacoma, Wash., lumber fortune heir, was seized in an automobile in a San Francisco parking lot. He offered no resistance and admitted his identity. Officers found $7,300 of the ransom money in his pockets.

A few hours earlier, Harry Campbell, last principal in the Barker-Karpis gang, was trapped in Toledo, O. He was taken by plane to St. Paul to stand trial with his captured leader, Alvin Karpis, for the abduction of Edward G. Bremer, St. Paul banker, for whose release $200,000 was paid.

BULLETIN.

Tacoma, Wash., May 7.—(AP)—Surrounded by department of justice agents, William Mahan, under indictment for the kidnaping of George Weyerhaeuser May 24, 1935, returned to Tacoma tonight, stepping off a specially chartered airplane from San Francisco at 9:57 p. m. (12:57 a. m. Friday, Chicago time).

San Francisco, Cal., May 7.—(AP)—William Mahan, the scar faced ex-convict accused of having engineered the $200,000 George Weyerhaeuser kidnaping, was captured here today and sped by plane to the abduction scene at Tacoma, Wash.

Quietly working federal agents grabbed the unarmed Mahan without a struggle from an automobile in a rooming house district "south of Market." So nervous he could not eat a meal without his glances roving constantly to the door, Mahan readily admitted his identity as the man who had been the object of a nationwide search.

Hurried to the federal building, he was questioned by department of justice agents. Stenographers emerging from the room with sheafs of paper indicated the taking of a lengthy statement.

Faces Two Indictments.

Then, heavily guarded, Mahan was driven to the airport, placed on a chartered plane flown here from Los Angeles and winged toward Tacoma where two kidnaping indictments awaited him.

The 33 year old Mahan, charged with having plotted with two others now in prison the abduction of the lumber heir, was sitting on the running board of the car, sunning himself, when apprehended—within a stone's throw of the bureau of investigation headquarters. A pair of horn rimmed glasses was his only disguise. Federal agents said they found $7,300 in his pockets.

During an ensuing four hours of questioning, the justice department disclosed, Mahan yielded $13,000, bringing to about $35,000 the total recovered from his share of the ransom. Nothing was said as to what became of the other $65,000 he supposedly got.

Traced by Ransom Bills.

The agents tracked Mahan by following a trail of ransom bills on which the serial numbers had been altered. They had been chasing him for nearly a year.

The capture, coming on the same day as that of Harry Campbell and six days after the taking of Alvin Karpis, both wanted for the Edward G. Bremer kidnaping in St. Paul, gave the justice department virtually a clean sweep in its war on the kidnap racket.

Thomas H. Robinson Jr., wanted for the Louisville kidnaping of Mrs. Alice Speed Stoll, remains at large, and the government has not closed its work in the mysterious abduction of June Robles, then 6, at Tucson, Ariz., April 25, 1934.

Agents declined to reveal details of the Mahan capture. Residents of the district professed to have recognized the prisoner as a man they had seen hereabouts for six weeks.

Three women vowed they had seen him pacing nervously about the automobile.

"He had a strange expression which frightened me," said Mrs. E. McClaskey. "I saw him several times, and one night met him in the doorway of my home. I was terribly frightened."

The other two women, declining to give their names, also said he had a strange look, a scar on his face, and paced nervously.

"He was nuts about Chinese noodles," said a young waitress in a restaurant Mahan patronized. The girl said Mahan always faced the door as he ate and concealed his face behind a newspaper.

The justice department announcement of the capture said part of the $7,300 found on Mahan was from the ransom money paid by J. P. Weyerhaeuser, lumber baron, for the return of his 9 year old son after a week of dickering with the snatchers.

Hunted Through West.

Mahan had been hunted in almost every western state since the apprehension of his pals in crime, Mr. and Mrs. Harmon M. Waley of Salt Lake City.

From the Canadian line to the Mexican border he was reported seen at various times. Only last night police set watch for him in Riverside, Cal.

Little George Weyerhaeuser received word of the capture as he was playing during recess at Lowell school in Tacoma.

Asked if he was glad, he replied: "Uh, huh, sure I am."

"Surely, you're joking," said Mrs. J. P. Weyerhaeuser, mother of the boy, when told the news. Her voice indicated deep emotion.

George was kidnaped as he walked home from that same school May 24, 1935. Six hours later his parents received a typewritten demand for $200,000.

The ransom was paid May 31 by an agent of Weyerhaeuser. The abductors seized the agent's car, forcing him to walk many miles.

Early the next morning George was released on a highway near Issaquah, Wash. He walked to a ranch house, but was turned away.

At another ranch house, he said: "I'm the little Weyerhaeuser boy who was kidnaped."

He was taken in, warmed, and fed. The rancher, Louis Bonifas, started with George for Tacoma and the little heir soon was in the arms of his parents.

Hidden in Spokane.

For three days he was kept in a house for which agents searched but could not find in Tacoma. Weeks later a house in Spokane, Wash., several hundred miles away, was identified as the kidnapers' hideout.

George has lived the life of a normal boy since then. He resumed his classes at Lowell school. His teachers said he showed no ill effects as the result of his experience.

Mr. and Mrs. Waley, captured when the woman passed one of the ransom bills in a Salt Lake City store, confessed and led officers to a cache of more than $90,000 of the kidnap money in Emigration canyon nearby.

The day after the Waley arrest, Mahan was sighted at Butte, Mont., by Policeman James E. Mooney, who recognized him as a man he had arrested years before on an Idaho bank robbery charge.

Mooney took after Mahan, who deserted an automobile and fled. In the automobile police found $15,000 of the ransom money.

Waley pleaded guilty and was sentenced to forty-five years' imprisonment. He is in Alcatraz federal prison. Mrs. Waley was convicted and sentenced to twenty years in the federal women's prison at Milan, Mich.

TRAP CAMPBELL IN OHIO

St. Paul, Minn., May 7.—(AP)—In a capture that was almost a copy of that of his erstwhile gang chief, Alvin Karpis, Harry Campbell, last uncaught principal of the Barker-Karpis gang, was seized at dawn today in Toledo, O., bundled into an airplane, and whisked here for questioning about a long series of kidnapings and robberies.

Not a trigger was squeezed as government officers led by J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the bureau of investigation, closed in on the only remaining fugitive from the 25 persons accused by the department of justice of implication in the $200,000 abduction here in 1934 of Edward G. Bremer.

"Campbell showed a little resistance," said Hoover, intimating his quarry reached for a gun. But the heavily armed federal men who had surrounded the Toledo apartment building during the night, pounced on the long sought limping outlaw this morning as he emerged and snatched his pistol from his pocket.

Use Flying "Patrol."

Then following the same procedure which they initiated last Friday night after the arrest of Karpis in New Orleans, Hoover's men shackled their prisoner with legirons and handcuffs, hurried him to a chartered "flying patrol wagon" and sped him here with only a ten minute stop at Chicago en route.

On his arrival in St. Paul United States District Attorney George Sullivan announced that bail of $500,000 would be asked for the gangster when he is arraigned on the kidnap charge.

A 19 year old girl claiming to be Campbell's wife and Sam Cokar, a minor member of the now broken Karpis-Barker mob, were nabbed also, but were not brought here. Cokar was taken in a simultaneous raid on another apartment house in Toledo.

Campbell was born at McClintocksville, Pa., Jan. 1, 1900. Most of his family now live in Oklahoma.

Find $2,900 in Room.

Campbell had six clips of shells on his person when he was arrested. Currency amounting to $2,900 was found in his room.

Hoover said the government would continue its search for persons who aided Campbell and other members of the gang.

Discussing the end of the Barker-Karpis mob, Hoover today said Joseph P. [Doc] Moran performed a "butchery" on the finger tips of the gang in Cleveland in the fall of 1934.

Karpis has confessed paying $350 for a finger tip and facial alteration operation at that time, but Hoover said he did not believe Karpis' story.

His "best information," Hoover said, was that Moran had been paid $5,000 for finger tip operations on Campbell, Karpis, Arthur [Doc] Barker and Volney Davis, plus a facial operation on Karpis at that time.

The "best information" from the underworld, he added, is that "Doc" Moran was taken out into lake Erie by the Barker-Karpis crowd and drowned.

"They thought he talked too much," Hoover said.

STOP BRIEFLY IN CHICAGO

The airplane carrying Harry Campbell, Karpis gangster, to St. Paul from Toledo, where he was captured, stopped at Chicago airport for refueling yesterday morning.

The capture of Campbell turned attention again to the mysterious disappearance of Dr. Joseph P. Moran, Maywood surgeon, the only important member of the Barker-Karpis gang not officially known to be dead or captured.

The repeated assertion of J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the federal agents, that the gangland doctor is dead was disputed yesterday by Dr. Hal C. Billig, 505 Main street, Maywood, a dentist who worked on Dr. Moran's teeth several years ago.

Billig said federal agents last week brought him the teeth and bridgework taken from the mouth of a body recovered from Lake Erie which some believed was that of Dr. Moran. Billig said he was certain the teeth were not Moran's because the gangland doctor had no bridgework and this dental work appeared to be ten or twelve years old.

The story concerning the surgeon is that of an honor medical student who slid into crime. He first practiced in La Salle county in Illinois, but went to prison for an illegal operation just as he was gaining a name for skill. Paroled, he was returned to prison as a parole violator. Upon his second release he fell in with gangland clients.

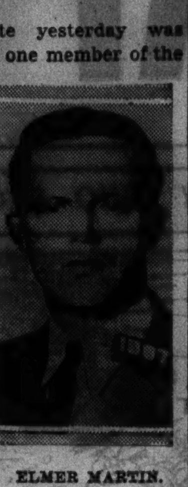
$50,000 STOLEN GEMS LINKED TO NEW DILLINGERS

Court Blocks Release of One Gang Member.

While the state yesterday was blocking efforts of one member of the "new Dillinger" gang to gain his freedom, part of a $50,000 hoard of stolen jewelry was identified as having been taken from a Lima, O., jewelry store which the gang has held up twice in recent weeks.



ELMER MARTIN.

Jack Becker, 26 years old, 4942 Kedzie avenue, a jewelry salesman, whose arrest last week led to a roundup of members of the gang, which had set out to emulate the late John Dillinger—was held in bonds of $20,000 when arraigned in the Felony court yesterday before Judge Matthew D. Hartigan on a charge of receiving stolen property.

Charges Block Writ.

The charge was placed against him after his attorneys filed a petition for a writ of habeas corpus before Chief Justice D. J. Normoyle of the Criminal court. Judge Normoyle dismissed the writ. Judge Hartigan set the hearing on the stolen property charge for May 18.

The jewelry, which was seized by federal agents Wednesday when they forced open a safety deposit box in the Uptown Safety Deposit company, 1050 Wilson avenue, was partly identified by Miss Wanda Vorhees, an employé of the Keys Jewelry store of Lima.

Suspected Fence in Flight.

Robert Becker, a brother of Jack Becker, and also a jewelry salesman, who rented the box several hours before the arrest of his brother, is still being sought by the police. According to Detectives Sal Corsi and Eugene Spain of the Maxwell station, whose efforts led to the arrest of the band, the jewelry had been purchased for a total of but $1,400.

John A. Barton, alias Alfred Brady, former Indiana farm hand and admitted leader of the gang, is in custody in Indianapolis. He has confessed slaying Policeman Richard Rivers of that city, as well as a store clerk in a robbery at Piqua, O.

Federal Agents Hold Two.

Elmer Martin, another member of the band, is also in custody in that city. James William and Lee Jackson of Chicago, the other members of the robbery gang, also are in custody, according to federal agents.

William Masonick, 26 years old, 3305 Foster avenue, and George Klotter, 22 years old, 4432 North Sawyer avenue, who are said to have brought Brady and the Beckers together, were held for questioning at the state's attorney's office yesterday.

SCHOOL FOR SAFE DRIVING PLANNED IN BURNHAM PARK

An automobile safe driving school in Burnham park is being planned by Otto Jelinek, trafic engineer for the park district, as an adjunct to the safety-test lanes now being installed in the boulevard system. Mr. Jelinek said the plan can be carried out under an existing Works Progress administration safety project when additional WPA funds become available.

The course would include information as to mechanical safety features of an automobile, their uses, and their limitations. Trafic regulations, unknown to many motorists, would be taught. Exhibits, some of them dioramas, would be used to picture accidents and their causes.

Facilities for testing the human element in motoring would also be part of the school's equipment. These would be used to determine the speed of a student's reactions, and whether he was color-blind, or subject to glare-blindness.

Maj. Earl L. House, federal theater project coördinator, was here yesterday to work out plans for sending WPA vaudeville units on tours of Civilian Conservation corps camps not only in Illinois but in other central western states.

FUTURE GERMAN LEADERS MUST BE WED AT 26

[Copyright: 1936: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, May 7.—Besides learning parachute jumping from airplanes, high diving, and Alpine climbing, candidates for National Socialist leadership seeking acceptance in the party's training schools must undergo another courage test. They must get married by the time they are 26 years old.

"Candidates who are 26 or older and who are not married by that time, display grave indications as regards their power of decision, their personal courage, and their view of life," reads one direction issued by the party authorities for the selection and training of candidates.

[Adolf Hitler is a bachelor.]

The Racial Will, publication of the League of Large Families, welcomes this position and urges that the "moral marriage duty" should become general. It advocates abbreviation of professional training.

MOVIES OF FAKED TAXI COLLISIONS TRAP 3 IN FRAUD

Plead Guilty After Films Expose Their Plot.

Motion pictures, introduced as sur-rise evidence by the state, brought bout the conviction yesterday of ree men charged with staging fake cidents to collect damages from xicab companies. It was believed be the first time that movies have en used as evidence in the Cook unty Criminal court.

The defendants were Julian Lewis, years old, 3638 Douglas boulevard, leged leader in the fraud; Bernard aldman, 21 years old, 1311 South rner avenue, who has a shoulder he n dislocate at will, and Howard eitzman, 28 years old, 1801 South umbull avenue.

Movies Taken Secretly.

The three appeared before Judge hn J. Lupe in the Criminal court sterday prepared to deny their guilt charges of attempting to obtain oney by means of false pretenses.
their surprise Assistant State's Atrney James A. Brown announced
e state had in its possession motion ctures of their actions which were ken secretly.

The prosecutor disclosed that Henry ramer, a Checker cab driver, and dward Bernstein, a Yellow cab driv-
, had been approached by Lewis ith an offer to pay them if they ould agree to help stage the fake cidents so that damages could be llected from their companies. The o drivers reported the offer to their periors, who in turn notified the ate's attorney's office.

"The whole thing worked out like scenario," Brown explained. "We structed the drivers to go ahead ith the scheme. We arranged to ve two moving picture operators uipped with telescopic lens shoot e events as they progressed."

Operators Hidden Near By.

Brown said that the drivers notid the state's attorney's office of in-nded meetings and accidents and e moving picture operators then ncealed themselves near the scenes

Confronted with this evidence, the ree defendants agreed to plead ilty. Court then was adjourned to darkened anteroom where the pic-res were projected on a portable
reen.

The astonished defendants saw emselves talking to the two drivers, otting the accidents, and then saw e accidents themselves on the reen.

Two accidents were shown. The st was a slight collision between o cabs, in one of which Mrs. Tillie ewis, 44 years old, 1301 Independce boulevard, was a passenger. The ovies showed her being taken from e cab in a manner indicating she d been injured. Mrs. Lewis was incted with the three men, but won a parate trial on her plea that she as not aware of the arrangements r the accident.

"Injured" Man Runs into Home.

The second accident, in which Waldan and Weitzman were involved as e injured passengers, was then rown on the screen. It occurred at adison street and Hamlin avenue.
e pictures showed the injured per-ns being taken to their homes and e of them running into his home.
Judge Lupe said he would impose ntence on Monday.

Policeman's Father Fatally Hurt.

Edmund Hogan, 73 years old, 8751 Langley avenue, died last night in the Jackson Park hospital of injuries suffered several hours earlier when he was struck by an automobile at 82d street and Ingleside avenue. The driver, Ely Loetz, 18 years old, 8333 Ingleside avenue, was held for the inquest today. Hogan's son, Francis, is a policeman at the Grand Crossing station.

The body of a woman fatally injured by an automobile Wednesday night at Washington boulevard and Kildare avenue was identified last night at the county morgue as that of Mrs. Delia Greaney, 73 years old, 4221 Washington boulevard, a widow. The driver of the car, Michael Sasgen, 502 Thatcher road, River Forest, told police the woman walked into the side of his car.

Attorney Louis Horner Hurt.

Attorney Louis C. Horner, who lives at 5555 Sheridan road and has offices at 69 West Washington street, was severely injured early today and two other men were less seriously hurt when an automobile driven by Horner collided with a bakery truck at Center and Larrabee streets. The other victims were Max Wolf, 53 years old, 2223 Clybourn avenue, a passenger in Horner's car, and Alfred Harth, 19 years old, 1940 Bissell street, driver of the truck. All were taken to the Lake View hospital, where it was found that Horner's left leg had been crushed and broken. After the collision the bakery truck crashed through a drug store window at the northwest corner of the intersection.

Mrs. Anna Fisher, 58 years old, 271 Scott avenue, Glencoe, was critically injured last night when an automobile driven by her son Edward was sideswiped by another car at 6651 Ridge avenue. Mrs. Fisher, who is the wife of J. F. Fisher, a contractor, was taken to St. Francis hospital, Evanston. The Rogers Park police arrested the driver of the other car, Frank Reynolds, 44 years old, 2329 Farwell avenue, and charged him with reckless driving.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 342 persons had been killed in automobile accidents in Cook county since Jan. 1. In the same period 273 were killed and 5,364 injured in Chicago.

FORD R. CARTER'S SON ARRESTED AS TIPSY DRIVER; FLEES, CAUGHT

Robert Carter, 28 years old, 1315 Ritchie court, a member of a well known Chicago family, objected strenuously to being placed in a cell at the Hudson avenue police station last night after he had been booked on a charge of driving an automobile while intoxicated. Suddenly he broke away from Policemen Charles Ericksen and Edward Knapik and dashed out of the back door of the station, with the policemen in hot pursuit.

For several blocks the chase continued, with the policemen firing their pistols in warning. At Wells street and North avenue Carter stopped, and he was led back to the station. Shortly afterward he was released in $200 bond given by Martin King, 501 Briar place.

Carter was arrested at Clark street and Diversey parkway by Policeman Ericksen of the park district force. He said he was employed as a salesman by George Halas, real estate dealer at 37 South Wabash avenue and owner of the Chicago Bears football team. He is the son of Ford Rodman Carter, stock and bond broker.

A. A. SPRAGUE JR. GETS 10 DAYS AS RECKLESS DRIVER

Albert A. Sprague Jr., 33 years old, 14 West Elm street, son of Col. A. A. Sprague, head of a wholesale grocery house and co-receiver of the elevated lines, was sentenced to 10 days in the Bridewell for reckless driving by Judge Gibson E. Gorman in the Safety court yesterday.

Testimony given by Policeman Harry Barth of the park force, who arrested young Sprague last Tuesday evening, was that he drove 64 miles an hour on the outer drive between Surf street and Briar place, sidewiping three cars and passing 17. The speed limit in the stretch is 35 miles an hour.

Policeman Barth asserted he believed Sprague was "partly under the influence of liquor," but the defendant declared he had had only one whisky highball three hours before his arrest. After Sprague was sentenced, his attorney, Fred G. Malley, asked for a stay of sentence because of requirements of his client's job at Sprague-Warner company, of which his father is the head.

"I'll give you until Tuesday morning, then, but you must realize you are going to jail," warned Judge Gorman.

Others sentenced to jail by Judge Gorman are Joseph Sislow, 21 years old, 1932 Crystal street, five days in the Bridewell for leaving the scene of an accident; Mike Lesko, 28 years old, 13518 Avenue L, 40 days in the Bridewell for reckless driving and leaving the scene of an accident; Peter Janonis, 48 years old, 3220 Wallace street, 10 days in the Bridewell for reckless driving; and Ben Bunyea, 31 years old, 6415 Ingleside avenue, 10 days in the County jail and $25 for reckless driving.

MUSSOLINI PLANS PROCLAMATION OF ITALIAN EMPIRE

Duce Decrees Annexation of Ethiopia Tomorrow.

BULLETIN.

GENEVA, May 8 [Friday].—(AP)—Stirred by reports that Italy would proclaim outright annexation of Ethiopia, league of nations officials announced today Ethiopia continued to be recognized as independent, a sovereign state, and a member of the league. Officials said Wolde Mariam, Ethiopian minister to Paris and delegate to the league, would have undisputed right to sit at the council table next week during any Italo-Ethiopian discussion. The league plans called for a short session of the council, meeting Monday, with adjournment until mid-June when both the Ethiopian and Locarno problems could be discussed in detail.

BULLETIN.

DJIBOUTI, French Somaliland, May 8 [Friday].—(AP)—Reports from Harrar said a large part of that second city of Ethiopia was destroyed by fire today after an outbreak of rioting. Troops of Gen. Rodolfo Graziani, Italian commander on the southern front, were within 10 miles of Harrar. Large bands of brigands streamed toward Diredawa, station midway between Djibouti and Addis Ababa on the railroad. French troops were posted there, ready to repulse any native attackers.

ROME, May 7.—(AP)—Fascist soldiers took over a French-owned railroad in Ethiopia today and occupied an important southern town as plans went forward at home to make the Italian kingdom the Italian empire.

Dispatches said subjugation of all Ethiopia was at hand with the occupation of Jigjiga in the south and the prospective fall of Harrar, second largest Ethiopian city.

The Fascist grand council and the cabinet will meet Saturday, one after the other under Premier Mussolini's presidency, to decree complete annexation of Ethiopia and its merger with Eritrea and Italian Somaliland under the name of "Italian East Africa."

King to Be Emperor.

Whether King Victor Emmanuel also would be proclaimed emperor on Saturday could not be ascertained definitly, but it was regarded as most likely.

The ministry of colonies it was reliably reported, has completed a tentative administrative plan for the combined East African possessions.

It embraces the following main features:

1. Construction of a new capital replacing Addis Ababa, which will become merely a garrison town.

2. Creation of ethnical administrative districts of government, in which loyal native chieftains will coöperate with Italian civil authorities.

Italian Officers to Rule.

3. Abolition of all military formations except volunteer native troops under Italian officers.

4. Possible designation of a prince of the royal house—a first rate figure in Italian civil and industrial life—with advisers to direct development of the new empire.

5. Maintenance of an open door policy for all nations which recognize Italy's political control of the conquered territory.

And when the league council meets Monday it will be faced with an annexation already decreed.

A vast throng of 50,000 women, some of them carrying a large sign saying, "Duce, our sons belong to you!" appeared before the Palazzo Venezia today to cheer Il Duce in a victory demonstration.

Expresses Gratitude to Women.

"Fascist Italy, surrounded by a sanctionist siege organized by 52 countries, thrust on you a task to which you were equal," he shouted. "The shining victory of our troops in East Africa is due to the heroism of your sons and brothers and also it is due to you, all the women of Italy."

Premier Mussolini received telegrams of congratulation today from Crown Princess Marie Jose, aboard the hospital ship Cesarea, and Premier Julius Goemboes of Hungary. Il Duce also was decorated by the Italian king. He received the insignia of a knight of the grand cross of the military order of Savoy, Italy's highest military decoration.

Get Supplies Via Railway.

ADDIS ABABA, May 7.—(AP)—Italian troops began pouring supplies into the city tonight over the French Djibouti-Addis Ababa railroad to bring relief to residents reduced to the barest necessities.

Military forces of Marshal Pietro Badoglio assumed control of the railway, Ethiopia's only modern link to the outside world, from the capital to the border of French Somaliland.

Black shirted policemen moved quickly to establish order on the railroad after two Frenchmen were wounded by machine gun fire from Ethiopian bandits last night.

[Unconfirmed reports from Djibouti, French Somaliland, said a serious dispute had flared between Italy and the French interests controling the railway over the transportation of troops and war material.]

City Is Calm.

Under the combined policing of the victorious troops and native constabulary, the city was calm, though Italians aided in repelling an attack by brigands late last night on the American legation.

Conforming to the Italian contention that the "war is over," Marshal Badoglio sought to assure peaceful subjection of natives in territory as yet unoccupied through propaganda instead of bullets.

Planes which dropped pamphlets assured the inhabitants they need have no fear of molestation under the Italian flag if they lay down their arms and return to peaceful pursuits.

American Woman Found.

Washington, D. C., May 7.—(AP)—The United States today awaited clarification of the entire Ethiopian question before formulating American diplomatic and commercial policies that may affect the future of the one-time empire of Ethiopia.

Cornelius Van H. Engert, the American minister, cleared up one phase of American protective interest today when he notified the state department he had found Miss Eleanor Meade, New York newspaper woman, safe and well. Miss Meade, unaccounted for since marauding natives began to fire and pillage the ancient capital, was the only American listed as missing.

Selassie Nears Palestine.

HAIFA, Palestine, May 7.—(AP)—Emperor Haile Selassie, exile from his conquered country, will arrive here tomorrow aboard the British cruiser Enterprise.

AUSTRIAN LEADER FOUND DEAD WITH BULLET IN HEAD

VIENNA, Austria, May 7.—[Havas.]—The mysterious death of Berthold Curand, former aide-de-camp to Vice-Chancellor Prince Ernst Ruediger Von Starhemberg was linked in some quarters tonight with the recent failure of the Austrian Phœnix Insurance company. The exposure of a scandal connected with subsidies by the company to various political groups caused grave complications for the Schuschnigg government.

Curand, a junior official of the Heimatschutz [home guard], was found dead with a bullet hole through his head, according to the official report. The Heimatschutz at first claimed he died a natural death. Medical and legal experts were attempting to discover tonight whether the case was one of accident or suicide.

Reports that Curand was implicated in the ill-fated insurance company's affairs grew when it was revealed that a newspaper man named Klebinder, involved in the same scandal, also had committed suicide.

SEEKS REPLICA OF HAILE'S CROWN FOR ITALIAN KING

Victor Emmanuel Slated to Be Emperor.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 7.—Premier Mussolini is seeking accurate details on the Ethiopian imperial crown in order that a replica may be made for a forthcoming ceremony crowning King Victor Emmanuel III. of Italy also emperor of Ethiopia. The only known copy of the crown is in France.

On reliable authority it is learned that the actual crown—together with two lesser crowns and the imperial jewels—lies in the vaults of a London bank. It was brought here secretly when the Italian threat to Addis Ababa became really menacing.

The immensely heavy crown is somewhat like a top hat without the brim and is surmounted by a large cross. It is of gold with perforated designs and its comparatively few gems are of great size, mostly diamonds and pearls. A peculiarity is the ear disks which hang on each side.

May Use Ethiopian Throne.

Failing to have an imperial crown, it is possible the throne of the fleeing Emperor Haile Selassie will be used for the coronation of the "king of Italy"—if the throne can be found. It is of gilded ebony, elaborately carved, satin covered, and with lions as arm rests.

It is reported here that negotiations have been initiated in Rome between important British coal interests and the Italian government with the object of reviving the south Wales and northeast coast export trade to Italy. This gives rise to hope here that if sanctions are lifted an Anglo-Italian commercial agreement will be arranged within the next two or three months.

Negotiations Secret.

The negotiations have been invested with considerable secrecy. The tentative agreement reached is that Welsh and Newcastle coal will be supplied Italy against payments in goods exported from there so as to avoid unfavorable exchange rates.

The question of Haile Selassie's future will be raised in the house of commons Tuesday. The Liberal member, Geoffrey Mander, plans to ask Foreign Secretary Eden to disclose the terms of the agreement signed by the emperor before leaving French territory limiting his freedom of political action in Palestine. He also wishes to know whether the emperor will be permitted freedom of action in league states other than Italy. The question is designed to discover whether the emperor will be permitted to proceed to Geneva or London if he desires to.

Ambassador Robert Worth Bingham today expressed to Eden the appreciation and thanks of the United States government for the assistance rendered by the British to the United States legation staf at Addis Ababa early this week. Bingham asked specially that the message be conveyed to Sir Sidney Barton, British minister to Ethiopia.

LITTLE ENTENTE TELLS WORLD IT IS READY TO FIGHT FOR RIGHTS

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, May 7.—(AP)—The little entente served notice on the world today that it is sticking together and is prepared to "expend its last ounce of energy" for its basic principles.

Foreign ministers of the entente, composed of Jugo-Slavia, Czechoslovakia, and Rumania, announced that these principles would be determination to maintain Austria's independence, unalterable opposition to a Hapsburg restoration in Austria, maintenance of the present frontiers of central Europe, and respect for military clauses, existing treaties, and the league of nations.

Austria was lectured in a communique read in the presence of the foreign ministers. It said the treaty of St. Germain, which includes military restrictions allegedly violated by Austria in the introduction of compulsory military service, would henceforth be respected.

CHIVALRY LANDS CHINESE IN JAIL WITH EX-CONVICT

Charles Toy Foo, 38 years old, a diminutive Chinese, went to the rescue of two girls last night in his restaurant at 1209 West 69th street, and afterward was puzzled and tearful to find himself locked up at the Englewood police station on a charge of disorderly conduct. Also held at the station was James Murray, 25 years old, 6308 Woodlawn avenue, who admitted he was released from the Pontiac reformatory a year ago after serving a term for burglary.

According to Miss Jean Rook, 20 years old, 5357 Princeton avenue, and her sister Julia, 22 years old, they were dining in Foo's place when Murray, a stranger to them, attempted to force his attentions on them. He struck Jean with a chair, they said, and Foo then ordered Murray out. To enforce his order he got his pistol and fired at Murray as he fled out the front door.

At that moment Sergt. James O'Halloran and Policeman Robert Welch arrived at the door, and narrowly escaped being struck by the bullets. They arrested both men and held Murray for the show-up.

RECOVER BODY FROM RIVER.

The body of Henry England, 74 years old, was taken from the Calumet river near 107th street and Muskegon avenue yesterday, two weeks after he disappeared from his home at 9160 Harbor avenue.

AMY MOLLISON SETS CAPE TOWN FLIGHT RECORD

Betters Male-Held Mark by Eleven Hours.

CAPE TOWN, Union of South Africa, May 7.—(AP)—Mrs. Amy Johnson Mollison shattered the male-held record for a solo flight from England to Cape Town today and then expressed disappointment that it was not by a bigger margin.

The veteran British airwoman landed here 3 days 6 hours 26 minutes after taking off from Gravesend, England.

She disclosed that she slept only six hours on the 6,700 mile flight.

The feat broke by 11 hours 12 minutes the record set in February by Flight Lieutenant Tommy Rose.

"I am disappointed at not breaking the record by a bigger margin," Mrs. Mollison said. "Owing to the fact that my schedule was upset at Oran and because of the bad airdromes on the west coast, I found it impossible to get back to it. My machine is potentially capable of flying 2,000 miles without a stop."

She had a considerable delay at Oran, Algeria, awaiting a weather report before taking off for Pointe Noire, French Africa. Then she had to wait several hours more to avoid landing at Pointe Noire in the dark.

"Perfectly ghastly," was her description of the flight across the Sahara desert.

Huge crowds at the airport here shouted, "Well done, Amy," as she taxied her plane to a landing.

News of her chievement was conveyed to King Edward VIII. of England. Secretary of Air Viscount Swinton of Great Britain telegraphed his congratulations.

COL. M'CORMICK ASSAILS BLACK'S TERROR TACTICS

Rotarians Hear Publisher on Press Freedom.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, assailed the Black senatorial committee last night as one organized to "harass and terrorize opponents of administration measures," with a power of inquisition which, he said, was declared illegal in England 150 years ago. He addressed the Rotary Club of Chicago at its annual meeting in the Blackstone hotel.

Speaking on "The Freedom of the Press," Col. McCormick declared the fight for that freedom was not yet won.

"You will enter that battle and lead millions to save your country from the fate that is engulfing the rest of the civilized world," he told his audience.

A Cause of the Revolution.

Of the creation and activity of the Black committee he said:

"It was voted a general power of inquisition by the senate, known as a general warant in England and declared illegal there 150 years ago; known as a writ of assistance in the American colonies, where its use was one of the causes of the revolution.

"Armed with this illegal weapon of tyranny, the committee and its agents took forcible possession of the offices and houses of citizens, rifled their personal belongings, read their private correspondence, stole their telegrams, and, it is charged, opened their mail in the postoffice and tapped their telephone wires."

Col. McCormick, who is chairman of the committee on freedom of the press of the American Newspaper Publishers' association, told how the activities of the senate committee were extended to newspapers of the country and how the publishers' association lent its aid in the fight for their rights.

He said "whereas the great and powerful are not immune from political oppression, the weak are much less immune from it" in reference to what he said were the political murders of two small publishers in Minneapolis.

"But Minnesota," he declared, "lives under a reign of terror and neither its courts nor its presses are free."

ROTARIANS ELECT OFFICERS

Officers for the coming year were elected by the Rotary club, following the dinner at the Blackstone hotel. Charles A. Dostal, northwestern division merchandise manager for the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, was named president, succeeding Richard E. Vernor, fire prevention manager for the Western Actuarial bureau.

Four vice presidents were elected: Thomas B. Freeman, general manager of the Scott-Burr Stores corporation; William A. Matheson, manager of the Williams Oil-O-Matic Heating corporation; William A. McKinney, president of Kitchen Arts Food, Inc., and Frank G. Watson of the insurance firm of Charles A. Newton & Co.

Alfred J. Barbaro, president of the Aetna Stationers, was elected treasurer. Preceding Col. McCormick's speech a minstrel show was presented, in which several of the jokes were aimed at the New Deal.

800 MINNEAPOLIS AND ST. PAUL GASOLINE STATIONS ARE CLOSED

Minneapolis, Minn., May 7.—[Special.]—Six hundred of Minneapolis' 800 gasoline stations were closed today as a result of a strike of union employés that started last midnight. Most of the stations were closed at the demand of union pickets, cruising the city. Minor disturbances occurred at several places where attendants refused to obey the order.

More than half of the 520 stations in St. Paul also were closed in a strike that started simultaneously. Clashes at several St. Paul stations brought appeals from a group of owners to Mayor William Gehan for police protection.

The strike today climaxed a dispute started last month over leasing of stations by gasoline companies. The union called the strike in support of its demand that all leases guarantee incomes equal to the union wage scale for station workers.

FRANCE HIT BY PANIC; RUN ON BANKS GROWING

Franc in Danger as Gold Flight Increases.

much longer without plunging the country into chaos.

Leftists Getting Jittery.

The Popular Front parties [led by Socialists, Radical Socialists, and Communists] who do not want to be blamed for the downfall of the franc before they have even formed a government, are getting increasingly jumpy over the situation and it is feared may take things in their own hands if Sarraut does not act quickly.

Petitions already are going the rounds in workingmen's circles asking for the transmission of power to the Popular Front immediately. It is significant that Premier Sarraut will see Leon Blum, leader of the Socialists, tomorrow regarding the condition of the franc and what to do until the installation of the new government.

The Socialist newspaper Populaire addressed a grave warning to the government in the following terms:

"If they [meaning the politicians of the right parties, bankers and Fascists] think their maneuvers will not provoke any riposte, they are mistaken. They cannot intimidate the parties in whom the people have expressed confidence and to whom they have given a definite mandate."

May Consult New Leaders.

Unless the panic abates, which it shows no signs of doing, it is generally believed Sarraut will consult with the leaders of the new chamber, elected last Sunday, and try to obtain from them formal approval of dictatorial measures.

In principle this is exactly what the left parties want, but the danger in the situation arises from the probable difficulty in getting the government and left leaders to agree on just what financial measures should be taken. If a real deadlock ensues over this point, the situation may become doubly critical from a financial and political point of view.

Urged on by the monetary and fiholding secret conference among themselves in an effort to work out a program which they can agree on and publish as soon as possible. Businessmen approve of this on the theory that no government program, however Red, can demoralize the nation's business as much as the present uncertainty.

Foes Attack Each Other.

While the most level headed observers doubt that there is much chance of the communists' "soak the rich" program being adopted without drastic modification by the whole Popular Front, publication of their plans certainly intensified the panic.

Right wing papers even say it was responsible for the panic, while the Reds replied that the money barons are using the communist statements to unleash a panic.

In addition to the calamitous day on the bourse—Bank of France dropped 600 francs again and prices crashed all along the line—and the small earthquake which hit the money market, financial circles were worried by the Bank of France statement for the week ending May 1, which was published.

In this week—before the second round of the elections and even partly before the first round—the bank lost $77,544,000 worth of gold and coverage in gold dropped more than a whole percentage point. The already inflated discount portfolio was swelled by some $30,000,000 worth of commercial paper, not counting short term treasury notes held by the bank which jumped in the same proportion.

Private Deposits Drop.

Worst of all, private deposits, already near a record low, dropped nearly $70,000,000. This is an ominous indication of what is happening to banks big and small, including postal savings banks all over the country.

This run on banks is an even greater and more immediate danger than a gold run on the Bank of France. If the run lasts much longer France may go through the same generalized bank crash that marked the transition from the Hoover to the Roosevelt régime in America.

All these figures are a week old now. Now that the Popular Front victory in the election is bigger than any one anticipated, the man in the street is wondering what the next statement of the Bank of France will show.

Socialists today convoked an extraordinary party council which will be held Sunday—their full party congress still is scheduled for May 30. Contrary to the usual custom, the deliberations of the council will be open to the press.

On Monday the General Labor confederation, the French equivalent of the American Federation of Labor, which is allied with the Socialists, but is independent, will hold a congress to fix its program. The trade unions are expected to draw up a program demanding a 40 hour week, old age pensions, child labor decrees, and other measures reminiscent of the American NRA.

CITY ASKS BIDS ON NEW DIESEL POWER FIREBOAT

Oscar Hewitt, city public works commissioner, yesterday called for bids on the construction of a new all steel fireboat propelled by a Diesel engine, to cost approximately $125,000. The bids are to be opened in his office on June 1.

Specifications for the boat were drawn by John G. Alden of Boston, a naval architect, who was the low bidder for the task of designing the craft.

Fire Marshal Michael J. Corrigan said the new boat will be able to get under way 10 seconds after an alarm is received, will go more than fifteen miles an hour, will be able to travel the river without requiring the opening of bridges, and will have a 35 foot water tower which folds down on the deck when not in use.

RUMANIA NABS 9 IN PLOT TO KILL CAROL'S SWEETIE

BUCHAREST, Rumania, May 7.—(AP)—Nazi "iron guard" students, inflamed over the arrest of nine of their comrades in an alleged plot to kill Mme. Magda Lupescu, King Carol's mistress, called a strike today. The strikers attempted to prevent classmates from entering university buildings and clashed with gendarmes.

The walkout was a development of an "iron guard" meeting Sunday at which it was determined to designate groups to watch the Jewish junkdealer's daughter and five male members of her camarilla, which dominates the nation's destinies. The arrest of the nine students, after authorities discovered the alleged plot, precipitated the strike.

From their jail cells the arrested students issued a manifesto which said "Rumanian students are prepared to die for their fatherland to free the country from corruption and degeneration and wipe out these tools of Jews and free masons."

Ex-Convict Is Arraigned on Charge of Girl, 12

Patrick Stapleton, 41 years old, 3910 Lake Park avenue, an ex-convict, was arraigned in the Domestic Relations court yesterday on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a 12 year old girl. He requested a continuance to retain an attorney and Judge Leon Edelman set a hearing for May 13. According to police records, Stapleton, now a bartender, was sentenced to Pontiac reformatory on a burglary charge in 1919 and in 1923 was in the Elgin State hospital.

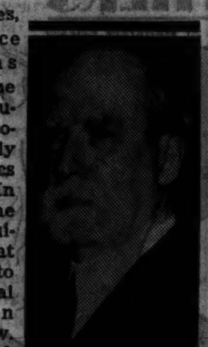
JUSTICE HUGHES TAKES SLY POKE AT COURT CRITICS

Ridicules a Tendency to Expect Agreement.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 7.—[Special.]—In one of his rare off the bench addresses, Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes of the United States Supreme court today took a sly thrust at critics of the court. In level tones, the chief justice quietly laughed at the tendency to expect general agreement on questions of law.



CHIEF JUSTICE HUGHES.

He spoke briefly at the opening of a three day convention of the American Institute of Law. He spoke with the calmness that characterizes his delivery of opinions from the bench and let his answer to critics penetrate his auditors by inuendo rather than direction.

Finds Differences Common.

"How amazing it is," he said, "that in the midst of controversies on every conceivable subject, one should expect unanimity of opinion upon difficult legal questions.

"In the highest ranges of thought; in theology, philosophy, and science, we find differences of view on the part of the most distinguished experts—theologians, philosophers, and scientists. The history of scholarship is a record of disagreements.

"And when we deal with questions relating to the principles of law and their application, we do not suddenly rise into a stratosphere of icy certainty."

Favors More U. S. Judges.

With this answer to those who point with scorn to division in the court on major decisions, Mr. Hughes turned to a recommendation for additional federal judges to speed disposition of litigation.

He reported that in most districts judges were catching up with their work. He deplored conditions in some districts.

"Where delays are most serious they are due to a failure to provide an adequate supply of judges to attend to the work of the courts," he said.

Mr. Hughes said conditions were particularly bad in the southern district of New York, including the major part of New York City.

He deplored the fact that judges sent into New York to aid jurists assigned there are not allowed sufficient subsistence to meet actual needs.

The institute was also addressed by William L. Ransom, president of the American Bar association, and Representative Sam Hobbs [Dem., Ala.], who conducted the prosecution of the senate impeachment trial against Judge Halsted L. Ritter of Florida. Clarence Goodwin, former judge of the Illinois Appellate court, presided at the meeting.

The headline on an item in THE TRIBUNE of May 6 reported that J. J. Brown, only civil war veteran in Saugatuck, Mich., was dead. As the item explained, Mr. Brown celebrated his 92d birthday. THE TRIBUNE regrets the error in the headline.

FIND SOVIET FLAG ON U. S. SUPREME COURT FLAGPOLE

Fireman Destroys It with a Blow Torch.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 7.—[Special.]—The national emblem of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics billowed in a gentle breeze over the magnificent new marble home of the Supreme court of the United States for an hour this morning before it was destroyed by a blow torch.

The flag was discovered waving lazily atop an eighty foot flag pole in front of the steps of the building at 4:30 a. m. by early risers. They gazed with amazement through sleepy eyes at the Red flag and reported the discovery to Capt. T. H. Cook of the Supreme court guard.

Firemen Are Summoned.

Capt. Cook called the District of Columbia police, who tugged frantically at the knotted halyards of the flag staf. A hook and ladder company of the district fire department was summoned.

With precision born of long training, the firemen set a ladder against the pole. An agile fireman clambered up the pole and attempted to reach the red bit of bunting, only to find it fluttered six feet from his grasp, though he stretched on tiptoe.

The firemen, police, and court guard went into a huddle. Again the agile fireman went up the swaying ladder. This time he was armed with a blowtorch, with which he destroyed the flag, and it fell in ashes to the ground.

Police found a copy of the Harvard Lampoon, wit and humor publication at Harvard university, at the base of the flagpole. The issue carried an article headed, "Down with Capitalism."

Says Lampoon Editors Did It.

Cambridge, Mass., May 7.—(AP)—Woods McCahill, treasurer of the Harvard Lampoon, said tonight Lampoon editors hoisted the red flag of soviet Russia to the top of the Supreme court's flagpole in Washington.

"It was only in a spirit of fun," McCahill said.

BLIND OWNER OF $4,500 IS FOUND IN OAK FOREST

Herman W. Brockelhurst, a blind man who was reported missing by officials of the South East National bank, 1180 East 63d street, was found yesterday to be an inmate of the Oak Forest infirmary. The bank officials sought Brockelhurst to pay him $4,500 from the sale of 42 shares of utility stock found in his possession when he was freed in the Municipal court on a charge of disorderly conduct last Oct. 2.

At that time, he told Supt. Frank Venecek of the infirmary, he was turned over to the sherif's office and sent to Oak Forest. Brockelhurst said he thought the utility stock was worthless, but he admitted that he owns a home in Yates City, Knox county, and that he has other securities in a safety deposit box there.

Supt. Venecek said he would permit Brockelhurst to stay in the infirmary until some one is found who can look after his affairs. A brother, Lester, lives in Maquon, Knox county.

NAZI ZEPPELIN PAST MIDOCEAN ON HOP TO U. S.

Ship 'Running Like Mad,' Eckener Reports.

were occupied with reading and writing. They discussed whether the time saved by airship compared with a sea journey offset the slight sacrifice in comfort. The fact remains that conditions are a little less comfortable than on an ocean liner.

Everybody Is Hungry.

8:30 a. m.—There are no shirkers for the airship breakfast—every one seems hungry. Over an apparently illimitable mass of rolling clouds we were served a delightful meal of fruit, cold meat, rolls, and coffee or tea. The tables were laid in all salons with fresh flowers.

10 a. m.—Franz Wagner, Dresden musician, treated the passengers to a piano concert. A fleet of eight trawlers came into view far below. The shadow of the great airship swept over them and over the cobalt gray sea. We were forging along at 70 miles an hour heading between the Azores and Newfoundland routes. We awaited ships' reports before making a final decision as to which we shall follow. The Azores route is 400 miles longer.

10:30 a. m.—We climbed to 4,000 feet. A ship came into view and many passengers ran to the windows to see it.

Graf Starts Up Rhone Valley.

PARIS, May 8 [Friday].—(AP)—The Graf Zeppelin, given emergency permission by the French government to cross French territory on its return flight from South America, reached Saintes Maries early today and started up the Rhone valley on her way to Friedrichshafen, Germany.

The zeppelin's commander had radioed from a position off the Mediterranean coast of Spain that he feared the dirigible would be unable to fly sufficiently high to cross the Alps as a result of an accident in Rio de Janeiro. On May 1 the Graf struck a mooring mast at Rio and tore a 30 foot vent in its envelope.

[As it approached Barcelona, Spain, the Graf wirelessed Friedrichshafen that it was experiencing no difficulty and expected to reach its headquarters early tomorrow.]

The Hindenburg on its recent return trip from South America experienced motor trouble over the Mediterranean. The French government granted the Hindenburg's request to fly over France. The airliner was able to reach Friedrichshafen with comparative ease.

Hear Eckener Will Stay in U. S.

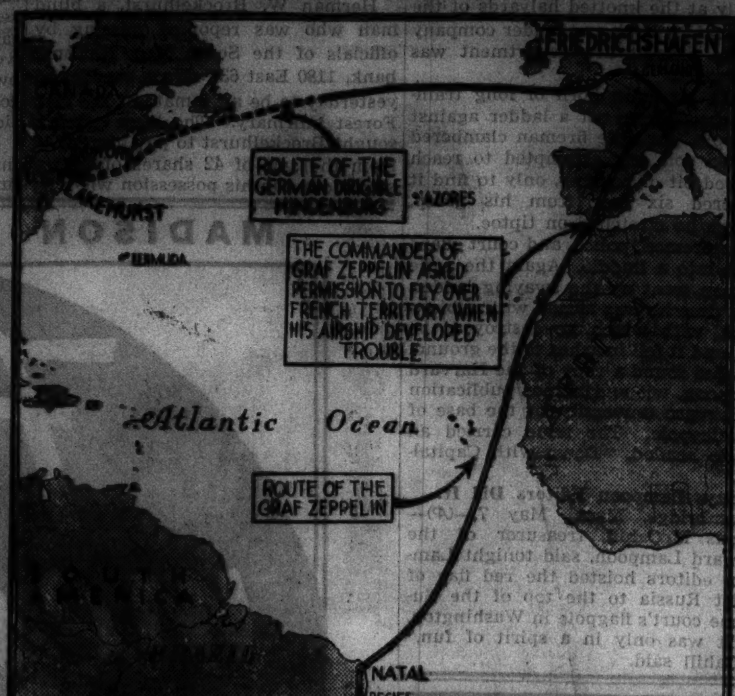
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, May 7.—Friends of Dr. Hugo Eckener, Germany's builder and commander of Zeppelins, today said they understand the 67 year old airman will not return to Germany, but will take over a job in the United States.

It was said he will not sever ties with his native land nor resign as president of the Zeppelin company, but will remain in the United States to organize the terminus of a trans-Atlantic airship service if the present flight is successful.

Recently Dr. Eckener has been subjected to many rebuffs by the Nazis who resented his indifference to their use of the Hindenburg and Graf Zeppelin for propaganda flights preceding the March reichstag election. Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler, who makes constant use of airplanes, has never been inside a Zeppelin. It is said he is still rankled because Dr. Eckener in the 1932 German presidential campaign made a speech supporting the late Paul von Hindenburg when Hitler was his unsuccessful opponent.

AIRSHIP HINDENBURG RACES FOR U. S.



The new German Zeppelin, the Hindenburg, last night reported it had passed the half way mark on its flight from Friedrichshafen, Germany, to Lakehurst, N. J. The veteran Graf Zeppelin encountered difficulty over the Mediterranean coast of Spain and obtained France's permission to proceed up the Rhone valley instead of trying to fly over the Alps.

Kaiser's Grandson on Way East to Greet New Zeppelin

Prince Louis Ferdinand of Prussia, grandson of the former kaiser, stopped in Chicago at the Bismarck hotel last night en route from the west coast to Lakehurst, N. J., where he expects to help welcome the new Zeppelin, the Hindenburg, when it arrives in the United States. Prince Louis Ferdinand is an official of the Lufthansa, Germany's national aviation company. He is in the United States on his vacation.

LONDON, May 7.—(AP)—The Dutch steamer Alphard was sunk in the North sea tonight when it collided with the Hamburg-American liner New York. All 26 members of the Alphard's crew were saved.

The New York, a 21,000 ton vessel bound for Hamburg from New York, rescued the Alphard's crew after the accident and put about for Southampton. The collision occurred in a mist in the open sea north of Ostend, Belgium.

In a second crash in the Straits of Dover the forecastle of the Antonietta Lauro, an Italian vessel, was smashed as it collided with the steamer Columbus of the North German Lloyd line. The Columbus of 32,565 gross tons, was en route to Bremen, Germany, from New York. Neither the Columbus nor the Antonietta Lauro, a vessel of 5,428 gross tons, required assistance. The Italian ship headed for Dover after the crash.

POLICE BEATING CHARGED BY RECK IN PEACOCK CASE

Testifies He Was Forced to Confess Killing.

Emil Reck, 19 years old, one of the two youths on trial for the murder of Dr. Silber C. Peacock, took the witness stand yesterday before Judge Joseph Burke in the Criminal court and repudiated his confession to the slaying. Reck asserted he was beaten by police to force him to sign the confession.

The jury, which is qualified to inflict the death penalty on Reck and his co-defendant, Michael Livingston, 17 years old, was excluded from the courtroom throughout the day as the state fought to introduce the confessions of both youths. Reck was called to the stand by defense attorneys to support their contention that the statements were obtained by duress. Livingston will take the stand today and is expected to tell a similar story.

State's Main Evidence.

The confessions are regarded as the crux of the state's case and if they are not admitted the prosecution will have little direct evidence of the killing. If the confessions are admitted, Reck and Livingston will have an opportunity to tell their stories to the jury later when they are called as defense witnesses.

Reck and Livingston are two of four young robbers who confessed they lured Dr. Peacock, a child specialist, from his home last Jan. 2 on a fake telephone call to attend a sick child and then killed him when he resisted their attempts to rob him. Their two companions, Robert Goethe and Durland Nash, both 19 years old, pleaded guilty previously and were sentenced to 199 years each in Joliet penitentiary.

Last night Goethe and Nash were brought to Chicago and defense attorneys today will attempt to call them as witnesses for the two youths on trial.

Charges Police Torture.

Under questioning of his attorney, Reck said he was beaten by police and hung by his wrists from a door until he agreed to sign a confession. On cross-examination by Assistant State's Attorney Marshall Kearney, he sat with his mouth open, sometimes not answering questions. He has been pronounced dull witted but sane by alienists. Reck asserted he was ill while in custody of police and did not know what he was doing.

Kearney then asked if it was not true that Reck was present when the three other youths told police he had been with them at the time of the murder.

"They were lying," Reck blurted.

"Didn't you hear them say you hit Dr. Peacock on the head with a club?" the prosecutor persisted.

"I don't know nothing," Reck answered. "I wasn't there."

"What you mean to tell us was that anything you said was not true because you were sick?" Kearney concluded.

"Yep, that's right," Reck smiled.

Once, while describing the alleged police "torture," Reck stepped from the stand and walked toward the door. Deputy sherifs seized him.

"I wasn't running away," he laughed. "I was just showing."

ALF M. LANDON TELLS VIEWS ON '36 RACE ISSUES

Kansan Bares Ideas on G. O. P. Campaigning.

know that certain things need to be done. They want the government to play its proper part in meeting these necessities, but without wasting their substance or endangering their future. They would like to believe that a man can be a liberal without squandering money. When they make up their minds, the election will be decided."

Questioned on Aggressiveness.

Mr. Kaltenborn:

"And now, governor, I would like to ask you a personal question. Some people are wondering whether you are aggressive enough in dealing with public questions—they wonder if you are nominated whether you will make a real fighting campaign. How about it?"

Gov. Landon:

"Well, that all depends on how you judge a man. Some people judge a man by the amount of talking he does. Other people judge him by what he gets done. All my life I have divided people into two classes: one, the people who do things; the other, the people who talk about doing things. And I have tried to keep out of the latter class. But it must be apparent to any one that we cannot consider anything under the present conditions except a fighting campaign."

America's Greatest Need.

Mr. Kaltenborn:

"Now for a more general question, governor. What do you think is the greatest need of the American people today?"

Gov. Landon:

"I believe the greatest need of the American people today is a revival of confidence—confidence in themselves and in their ability to work out their own problems. In a republican form of government such as ours we find in almost every depression a certain percentage of our people lose confidence in themselves. They begin to doubt whether they are really capable of getting out of the difficulties, and it is usually at this point that some one comes along with the idea of finding a superman and turning it all over to him. To repeat what I have said before, what we need most in order to go ahead in this country is a revival of confidence by the American people in themselves. . . ."

Restoring Confidence.

Mr. Kaltenborn:

"If this is the way you feel about it, governor, how do you think confidence can be restored?"

Gov. Landon:

"We have a presidential campaign coming on, Mr. Kaltenborn, and, contrary to some opinion, I believe that a presidential campaign can be made a great educational process—one that will inform the public and give the people a chance to study and understand what the real issues are. You must realize that for three and one-half years we have had only one side of the story."

Wants Issues Made Clear.

Mr. Kaltenborn:

"What methods would you use to give people a true understanding of what the real issues are?"

Gov. Landon:

"First I would enlist the support of all those people who have had an opportunity to realize what this administration in Washington is letting us in for. We must make these people appreciate that during the next six months this is the most important cause to which they can devote their time and effort. In formulating our campaign the issues must be made so simple and clear that every man and woman can understand them and be able to apply them to their own lives, their own future, and, above all, to the future of their children. Then these issues must be personally carried to each and every voter in exactly those terms. If that is done, I haven't any doubt as to the results."

Mr. Kaltenborn:

Party Line of Action.

Mr. Kaltenborn:

"In your view, governor, what line of action should the Republican party itself take?"

Gov. Landon:

"Mr. Kaltenborn, the whole purpose of our party system is to be a means to an end. That end as I see it is good government. The Republican party must prepare itself to be the instrument by which the American people can obtain good government, and then it must show itself responsive to their needs without wasting their substance or endangering their future.

"The party has had its faults and has made its mistakes, like all political parties, but it has its accomplishments as well, and a great many of them. And, most important of all, I believe that today it is moving in the right direction. In 1912, when I felt the party was moving in the wrong direction, I became a Bull Mooser, but today I believe the party is moving forward toward a repetition of some of the great practical accomplishments that have glorified its history in the past.

Accomplishments Are Cited.

"To illustrate what I mean, let me remind you that Republican administrations are responsible for the homestead and land grant college act, the original anti-trust laws, regulation of monopolies, and the first and only real measures to conserve our natural resources. Let me remind you, also, that it was a Republican congress which submitted the income tax amendment to the states for ratification.

"These are some of the permanent, lasting reforms which were given to this country by the Republican party, and I believe they foretell what will be done by the Republican party when it comes into power, to make present day reforms practical and permanent in their benefits.

"No party should be permitted to rest upon its past record—very definitly the Republican party must go forward along sound and progressive lines, prepared to find honest solutions for the problems that confront us. No other course will do. No other ought to be considered. . . . We should make it our object to restore a fair and decent opportunity for every man and woman who aspires to work out his own salvation.

Need Humanitarian Legislation.

"Where humanitarian legislation is needed, we must provide it. Where labor or agriculture is under disadvantages, these must be removed. Where business is being impeded, so that it cannot furnish goods or jobs, we must free it. . . . We must insist upon equal rights for all, special advantages for no interest or group. That is simple justice.

"It is also the only way we can prevent the rise of class feeling, always contrary to the American spirit, and which I am sorry to see is being fostered in high places. . . . Mr. Kaltenborn, anybody who tries to divide our people against themselves is no friend of America."

On Democratic Party.

Mr. Kaltenborn:

"Well, now that we have your views as to the Republican party, governor, what have you to say about the Democratic party?"

Gov. Landon:

"First, Mr. Kaltenborn, I want to make it plain that I do not regard the administration at Washington as in any sense a Democratic administration. Its whole method of procedure has been contrary to the historic principles of the Democratic party.

"Certain of its objectives have been good, but its method of reaching them bad. It has acted too much on snap judgment, hastily throwing its measures together and jamming them through congress, without regard for the established American processes of government. . . . The result too often has been that they don't get us anywhere that we want to go. That sort of administrative practice won't.

Cites Depression Record.

"To be specific, let's take the administration's record in dealing with the depression. Some people say we reached the bottom of this depression in the summer of 1932. The present administration says we reached the bottom of this depression in the spring of 1933—when they came into power. Now, if according to their own statement they came into power at the bottom of the depression, there is only one direction we can move from that point, and that direction would be upward. That was three years and two months ago.

"The administration at that time asked for and was given unlimited power to carry out its platform. It had the whole country pulling for it. For example, in the state of Kansas, as governor, I coöperated with it in every way possible, for I felt that the nation's interest came ahead of any partisan interest. I believe that this was typical of the general attitude. In short, I believe that this administration has had less opposition than any administration that has ever been in power in the memory of living man. . . . And, now, in all fairness, I believe it is time for us to check results.

Worst Record in History.

"I have just read a study by one of America's leading economists who has no political connections, and the facts are these: The present administration has made the worst record ever made in the history of the United States in bringing this country out of a depression. Never before, once we reached the bottom, did it take us so long to get out of a depression—and our recovery is still unfinished business.

"After more than three years with unequaled peace-time grants of power and spending, millions of our people are still unemployed, one person out of every six is under relief, and the deficit is bigger than ever. Why?

"If you will look into the facts of the situation you will find that on four different occasions since March, 1933, this country has started on a definite movement toward recovery. And on each of these four occasions it was set back again by some new reckless experiment or disturbing move by the present administration. How can we feel any confidence that this won't keep on happening?

"What this heedless retarding of recovery means to people out of work, to young people coming of age, is simply tragic. What the young people of America really need, and earnestly desire, is not relief but opportunity.

"I believe that the real issue before the American people today is not whether you are better off now than you were in 1933; the real question and issue is this: Have we made as much progress as you have a reasonable right to expect?"

Wet-Dry Question.

Mr. Kaltenborn:

"Changing the subject, governor, a lot of people in the so-called wet states, knowing that you come from dry Kansas, are anxious about the way you stand on prohibition. Just what is your attitude?"

Gov. Landon:

"I'm glad you asked that question, Mr. Kaltenborn. I don't believe my position is misunderstood here in Kansas, and I don't want it to be misunderstood in other states. We, in this country, had a long nation's debate over the wet and dry question. The people rendered an overwhelming verdict, that the question should be returned to the various states for such decision as their citizenry wished. I accept that verdict. And I believe that it is up to each state to determine its own policy on liquor—subject, of course, to section 2 of the twenty-first amendment, under which shipments into dry states are forbidden."

Regulation of Business.

Mr. Kaltenborn:

"Governor, this seems to be a good place to bring up another question. How should we be guided in the field of governmental regulation of business?"

Gov. Landon:

"Mr. Kaltenborn, I believe we can lay down a broad principle here—there should be regulation, wherever regulation keeps opportunity open and protects—not hampers—the people as a whole in the exercise of their rights. I am thinking of such things for example as workingmen's compensation, enforcement of sanitary conditions, proper light, ventilation, compulsory safety devices on machinery, reasonable working hours, the protection of childhood. Now, if you will expand this definition to cover all sorts of anti-social practice, you will see what I am driving at."

Social Security.

Mr. Kaltenborn:

"I assume from one of your earlier remarks, governor, that you are interested in social security. What ideas do you have along that line?"

Gov. Landon:

"Mr. Kaltenborn, I'm for it. Every big industrial nation has had to move in that direction. In America we could once handle the problem pretty well by depending on individual thrift, family aid, local taxation and private contributions. These still have their place—and a vital place it is. Some of the more progressive business enterprises have established systems of their own, thus having done some useful pioneer work.

"But I believe we have reached a stage where government must take a hand. . . . There is one really good point about the administration's effort in this direction—it did stimulate thought and arouse study along these lines. . . . But the complicated measure it rushed through in characteristic fashion will, I fear, prove to be in many respects unworkable. . . . We shall have to revamp it. . . . And we must take care not to allow the intense desire to make a showing lead us into the temptation of turning out something that will be only another delusion."

Making America Over.

Mr. Kaltenborn:

"But what of this idea we have been hearing about, governor, that we have to make America over?"

Gov. Landon:

"The idea of making America over is a pretty silly doctrine, Mr. Kaltenborn. First of all, who is going to do it—the government? Has its record lately justified our handing the job to it? No! It was the individual effort, the ambition to do and have things, and the feeling that individual opportunity was open to every one that made America.

"These are still the fundamentals—there are no workable substitutes for them.

"I do not mean that we should not be open minded to change—we are a practical people—we have learned to do a great many things to advantage by pooling our mutual interests. Our farmers and our labor unions have found that coöperative action often enables them to improve their situation.

Comes from Dictatorships.

"But coöperative enterprise is entirely this thing from a planned economy mapped out by a centralized burocracy in Washington. This kind of a planned society is a sort that has developed under European dictatorships. I do not believe we want anything of that kind here.

"For this type of centralized planning is based on the idea that the American citizen is not able to take care of himself, and that he requires some man who must tell him what to do and what not to do. I still believe that the American people, under proper government protection, would like to plan for themselves."

Relief Needs Overhauling.

Mr. Kaltenborn:

"From what you have previously said, governor, I imagine you feel that there should be an overhauling of the relief setup."

Gov. Landon:

"Most certainly I do, Mr. Kaltenborn . . . and I do not think that I'm alone in that conviction. . . . The first thing that ought to be done is to find out what the requirements actually are and what is wrong with the present setup. . . . Let us have the truth about it, whatever it is. The people are entitled to know the facts about these enormous expenditures of their money. Not that they begrudge it, but that they want it properly used.

"When we have the facts, we must provide an honest and effective relief system, administered so that the money will go to those who need it and deserve it, free from political strings. We must make relief honest and nonpartisan. But that alone is not enough. We must have a change in attitude and policies that will enable people to get off relief.

Keeps Business Upset.

"And here let me say again, that all this continuous experimenting, and piling up of one uncertainty on to another, keeps business upset and holds back undertakings that would bring more jobs. For more jobs is the only real solution to the relief problems—jobs that will allow people to keep their self-respect and plan for their own and children's future. There is no future on the relief roll.

"I believe that people would still like to plan for themselves. To me the most deplorable thing about the present relief setup is the way in which it has been made a matter of wretched party politics. In my opinion, relief is not a political issue at all. It is a matter of fundamental Christianity, and let me say a word here and now that I, for one, am dedicated to the proposition that henceforth no American citizen shall ever again be put in a position where he has to sell his vote for bread."

York on Ticket

Niagara Falls, N. Y., May 7.—(AP)—The Prohibition party nominated Dr. D. Leigh Colvin of New York City for President today and Sergt. Alvin C. York of Tennessee, world war hero, for Vice President.

Dr. Colvin, 56 years old, has spent his entire adult life working for the dry cause, and for years has been one of the best known of the prohibition leaders.

Sergt. York, tall, red headed country boy, whom Gen. Pershing called "the greatest civilian soldier of the world war," became famous in a single day in October, 1918, when he killed 25 Germans and "brought in" 132 other prisoners in the Argonne forest. Since the war he has been head of a school for children at Jamestown, Tenn.

Dr. Colvin was the prohibition candidate for Vice President in 1920, ran for mayor of New York in 1917, and twice has run for the United States senate.

MARY WASHINGTON, mother of George Washington, who during the forty-six years of her widowhood managed her household and farm, and reared her children to usefulness and honor, and sent them out into the world to win undying fame.

NANCY HANKS LINCOLN, mother of Abraham Lincoln, was an energetic pioneer woman who exerted a profound influence over her son, the Martyred President. Of her, Lincoln said, "All that I am and all that I ever will be, I owe to my angel mother."

CORNELIA, mother of the Gracchi, greatest of Roman matrons, accounted her maternal relationship her supreme claim to honor and respect. When asked, "Where are your jewels?" she introduced her sons as the only jewels she could boast of possessing.

LEAH MENDELSSOHN, mother of Felix Mendelssohn, the great musician and composer. It was from her that Mendelssohn inherited his divine talent for music, and as his first teacher she did much to encourage and develop his great musical genius.

SUSANNAH WESLEY, the remarkable mother of the famous Wesleys, who managed the secular affairs of her husband's rectory, cared for and educated thirteen children, among whom was John Wesley who later became the founder of Methodism.

MONICA, mother of St. Augustine, set one of the finest examples for Christian mothers in the early years of the Christian era. The love of this mother for her gifted son is one of the most beautiful stories we have of those far-off days in history.

LETITIA BONAPARTE, mother of Napoleon. Glorious in the pages of history is the story of this mother who widowed early in life, by perseverance and unflinching fortitude brought up her children to be among the outstanding leaders of all time.

KATHERINE ELIZABETH GOETHE, mother of Goethe, the great German poet, of whom it was said that all the freshness, the wit, and the humor we find in Goethe, all the depth of feeling and the poetry, were foreshadowed in his mother's character.

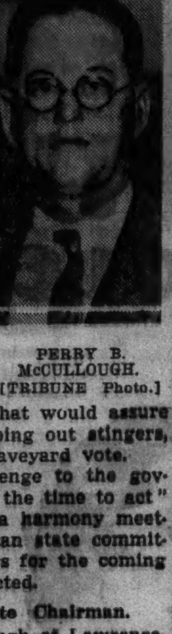
BROOKS INSISTS ON HONEST VOTE LAWS AT ONCE

Challenges Horner to Call Special Session.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., May 7.—[Special.]—Wayland Brooks, Republican nominee for governor, challenged Gov. Henry Horner today to call a special legislature session forthwith to pass honest election bills.



PERRY B. McCULLOUGH.

Brooks said Republican candidates would pledge their efforts to help pass the permanent registration bills and the electorate would rejoice and give thanks if measures were passed that would assure honest polls by wiping out stingers, floaters and the graveyard vote.

The Brooks challenge to the governor that "now is the time to act" was the climax of a harmony meeting of the Republican state committee, at which officers for the coming campaign were elected.

McCullough State Chairman.

Perry B. McCullough of Lawrenceville, one of the Brooks state campaign managers, was made state chairman without an opponent being put up. William R. Allen of Peoria was elected secretary; John F. Tyrrell of Chicago was made first vice chairman, and John H. Searing of Carbondale, retiring chairman, became second vice chairman.

Gov. Horner, responding to a request from State's Attorney Courtney of Cook county yesterday that a special session be called on honest election bills, has said he hopes such laws will be on the books by November election time.

Brooks declared the only way Democrats have been kept in power in Illinois has been through vote frauds by the Chicago "Tammany" machine, and that the governor now has a chance to carry out one of his primary pledges ahead of the November campaign. Gov. Horner has said if a special session is called honest elections will be included in the call.

Recalls Campaign Utterances.

"During the recent campaign," said Mr. Brooks, "the governor of this state constantly denounced the machine control of elections. This challenge loomed like a ray of hope to the people of Illinois, but apparently that challenge was merely a sham and the machine is working again in behalf of the governor. During that campaign he constantly told the people he was for honest election laws.

"He has never failed to force down the throats of the legislature any of the bills which took away the sovereign power of the state, and if he chooses to he can give the people honest election laws now.

"If honest elections was a good cry when the governor in the primaries was fighting the machine, the Republicans would love to have presented measures whereby the electorate would have an honest count in November.

Republicans Voice Approval.

"Republican candidates will pledge to use their every influence to help pass these bills if the governor will keep his promise and call a special session of the legislature for that purpose."

Republicans from all parts of the state at the luncheon tables roared their approval of this.

"There never were enough Democrats in Illinois to elect a governor," continued Brooks. "It was only when Republicans left our ranks that Democrats were elected and then with the help of a Tammany machine they were able to steal enough votes to keep them in power.

"To be able to give the people honest elections in November these bills must be passed before July 1, and the time to call a special session is now.

"Let me repeat, the Republican candidates would welcome an opportunity to be presented to the electorate on this state assured of an honest election."

Following this, Charles W. Hadley of Wheaton, nominee for attorney general, told the committeemen that the coming campaign is most vital since the civil war.

"The foundation of government," Hadley said, "is in danger. The liberties guaranteed by the constitution are being challenged. The Republican party stands between the American form of government and an autocratic, dictatorship form of government."

Following a prolonged caucus last night, organization of the new Republican state committee became an almost unanimous affair. There had been several prospective candidates for the chairmanship—Searing, McCullough, R. R. Bookwalter of Danville, and Roy R. Barnes of Bushnell.

When the meeting started behind closed doors, the only name presented for chairman was McCullough. Three committeemen—Barnes, E. M. Libonati and S. D. Tannenbaum—passed their votes; the rest voted for McCullough. He was chairman in 1928, and in 1934 headed the executive committee.

After the other officers had been elected without contest, resolutions were adopted indorsing the candidacy of Frank Knox, Chicago publisher, for the presidential nomination at Cleveland.

These resolutions dwelt on the recent preferential primary, and without mentioning the name of Senator William E. Borah, who carried ten downstate districts, with 20 delegates, pledged the committee "to use all honorable means" to effect the nomination of Knox at Cleveland.

Possibility of a row at the Peoria state convention May 22, when similar resolutions are to be presented there, were seen in a provision for a committee to help the resolutions along. Committeemen declared the action followed that of the state committee last fall and had no bearing on the delegates "advised" for Borah. The state convention has no power to instruct national delegates.

Three candidates recommended for nomination as university trustees by the alumni association of the University of Illinois were made public by Edward F. Moore, Cook county chairman. They are Frank M. White of Rockford, Frank H. McKelvey of Springfield, and C. H. Pillsbury of Chicago. The Peoria convention will make three nominations.

Further arrangements for the May 22 state convention are still to be made. One proposal favored is for Brooks to keynote on state affairs and Otis F. Glenn, nominee for senator, on national issues.

In the offing were scouts in the place of national committeemen to be chosen at the Cleveland convention by the Illinois delegation. Supporters of George F. Harding of Chicago estimated they have more than 36 votes in sight out of 57, while friends of Frank L. Smith of Dwight claim they will have a majority.

"Bossism" is a great issue for November, said Justus L. Johnson of Aurora, former state chairman.

"Republicans can win," he said, "on the issue of James A. Farley, despot of his party, most potent political boss America has seen. Never has the country been so Tammanyized."

Fletcher Sees Roosevelt Doom in Maryland and Penn Polls

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 7.—[Special.]—On the basis of primary returns from Pennsylvania and Maryland, Chairman Henry P. Fletcher of the Republican national committee tonight predicted certain defeat for the Roosevelt administration in the November election.

The returns, Chairman Fletcher said in an official statement, indicate the Republican party will capture a minimum of 283 electoral votes or more than enough to defeat President Roosevelt's reelection ambitions. There are 531 votes in the electoral college.

Chairman Fletcher asserted that the exaggerated claims of Democratic leaders were given a severe setback in the primaries of the two states.

Calls Results Encouraging.

"Exaggerated claims that every state in the Union would be found approving New Deal policies got a jolt in Democratic primaries just held in Pennsylvania and Maryland," he said. "The results are highly encouraging to all those who desire to reestablish American ideals of government and are disconcerting to the New Dealers and causing dismay in their ranks.

"An unusual thing has taken place in American politics. The President was supported by every element of the organization in those two states and aided by millions of government funds poured in to make the going easy. He was opposed by a gallant candidate, knowing he had no chance to win but running solely to give members of his party a chance to register a protest, backed by no organization, with no funds, and who yet rolled up an amazing vote.

"These results clearly demonstrated that millions of clear thinking Democrats will not follow one who has broken faith with his platform and his party traditions.

Same Opposition Would Win.

"The same ratio of opposition throughout the nation would assure us of carrying 15 states with a total of 224 electoral votes, which voted for Roosevelt four years ago. Added to these the states voting against Roosevelt in 1932, and certain to do so again, we have 283 electoral votes, which are more than enough to insure his defeat.

"This, of course, is a minimum. Other border line states unquestionably will join in this repudiation of the Roosevelt program."

TWO YEAR PEACE PACT SIGNED FOR HARD COAL MINES

New York, May 7.—[Special.]—A two year agreement assuring peace in the anthracite industry was signed tonight by representatives of operators and miners. The agreement is dated as of April 30.

In its major points it provides for a seven hour day and five day week, without reduction in pay, but with certain modifications; a complete checkoff obligating the operators to collect union dues and assessments, prohibition of strikes in the life-time of the agreement and a modified equalization of work.

The last provision, coupled with the shorter work day, has been the chief objective of the union, eager to provide work for the 40,000 unemployed miners in the hard coal fields of Pennsylvania. More than 105,000 miners are affected by the agreement.

No reference was made in the official statement given out tonight as to the manner in which the problem of bootleg mining is to be handled, but it was learned that the union had agreed to coöperate within limits in a solution.

DITCHBURNE ASKS KERNER TO TAKE OVER VOTE QUIZ

Acts After Courtney Plea for Clean Elections.

BY PERCY WOOD.

Harry Ditchburne, Republican nominee for state's attorney, yesterday urged Otto Kerner, attorney general of Illinois, to take over the election fraud investigations and prosecutions now being conducted by State's Attorney Courtney. In a letter to the attorney general Mr. Ditchburne declared that the Courtney investigations could be made a political football and that Mr. Kerner should act to prevent this.

Ditchburne's proposal followed the letter which Courtney sent to Gov. Horner on Wednesday requesting the governor to call a special session of the legislature for passage of permanent election registration bills for Cook county. These measures, the purpose of which is to eliminate fraud at the polls, passed the lower house of the legislature last February, but were defeated in the senate.

Horner Ready to Call Session.

It was learned yesterday that Gov. Horner has given assurances to at least one Chicagoan that he will soon call a special session in an effort to put the bills on the statute books. Presumably the legislators will be asked to return to Springfield within a few weeks since the bills, in order to become effective for the November election as Courtney urged, would have to be passed by July 1.

Mr. Ditchburne, in his letter to Attorney General Kerner, urged an unbiased investigation of election frauds.

"It must be borne in mind," he wrote, "that this [clean elections] activity by the candidate for reëlection is very recent and that for over three years practically no action was taken by him with respect to such matters. The proposed permanent registration bill, while a good measure, is only a step in the right direction. Notoriously flagrant violations of the existing laws have had no substantial attention from the incumbent for a long time past.

Nonpolitical Action Urged.

"I suggest that your [Kerner's] office, not being involved in the local turmoil, could inspire the necessary confidence on the part of the public and receive 100 per cent coöperation from all law abiding citizens.

"Or, if you feel that the circumstances warant it, you could step into the situation long enough to see that impartial and sincere investigation and prosecution by outstanding and capable lawyers, without political axes to grind, is brought about—and a special grand jury for immediate action, if you agree.

"I regret the necessity of writing this letter, but the exigencies require that we go forward in the fight for the sanctity of the ballot."

Chance to Cut Vote Costs.

County Judge Jarecki and the Chicago election commissioners—Alexander J. McKay, Mabel G. Reinecke and Harry A. Lipsky—sent Gov. Horner data regarding the estimated costs of the fall general registration, both under the present law and also under the permanent registration plan. According to these figures, registration under the present system would cost $701,691 and under permanent registration, $659,578.

Judge Jarecki and the election board asked an early answer on whether the governor intends to call a special session for permanent registration, pointing out that they must prepare specifications for registration materials and let printing contracts at an early date.

P. A. Nash, county Democratic chairman, was at his farm in Kentucky yesterday and could not be reached for an expression of his views on Courtney's request for a special session on permanent registration. However, his intimates in the county headquarters believe that he has not changed his position, which is that of opposition to the plan unless it is approved for all the state instead of only for Chicago and a few other election board cities.

CANDIDATES ARE GUESTS OF STATE REPUBLICAN CLUB

Republican women candidates and the wives of Republican men candidates were entertained at tea in the Hamilton club yesterday by the State Republican Women's Club of Illinois, of which Mrs. David H. Jackson is president. Mrs. Bertha Baur, national committeewoman for Illinois and candidate for congress from the Ninth district, gave a brief talk.

"Excessive costs of government and high taxes stand directly in the path of reëmploying America's idle," she said. "That was the consensus of America's leading business men last week. For the first time the business man is concerning himself with practical politics. This is the most hopeful sign on our political horizon."

GIRL MUST GAIN PASTOR'S AID TO WIN PROBATION

Mrs. Ruth Hetzell, 21 years old, who accompanied two young gunmen in a robbery tour of the south side on March 29, was arraigned yesterday before Judge Matthew D. Hartigan in the Felony court on a charge of accessory to the holdups. After the judge lectured Mrs. Hetzell, who is the mother of a young son, he told her he would grant her probation today only if her parents and the minister of her church appear on her behalf. Mrs. Hetzell's last address was at 441 South Oakley avenue. One of her companions, Anthony Rossollie, 23 years old, was killed by policemen after the robberies. The other, Stephen Pryzybyla, 23 years old, is now serving a life sentence for the murder of Sam Bell, 42, who was killed during one of the holdups.

HOUSE GETS 2 1/3 BILLION BILL FOR NEW DEAL COSTS

Democrats Seek to Jam It Through Quickly.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 7.—[Special.]—A bill carrying 21-3 billion dollars in new appropriations was tossed before the house today. Democratic leaders prepared to rush it to passage by tomorrow night with only seven hours of debate permitted.

Strenuous opposition to the measure was immediately voiced by two minority groups. Republicans sought to amend the bill to divorce from politics the spending of approximately 1½ billions for relief. A group of Democrats attempted to alter the measure so as to earmark 400 millions for the Public Works administration of Harold L. Ickes rather than to permit the entire sum to be disbursed by the Works Progress administration of Harry Hopkins.

Would Quadruple Spending.

Only last week, the house passed a tax bill claimed to produce 800 millions in new revenue to provide for the veterans' bonus and the administration's farm program. Today's bill provided for the spending of more than four times that amount for entirely new purposes.

The house appropriations committee recommended a decrease of 75 millions from the 1½ billions asked by President Roosevelt for work relief. But this decrease was practically nullified by an increase of 62 millions for Civilian Conservation camps, another form of work relief.

Items in Tabular Form.

The exact total of appropriations provided for in the bill was $2,364,229,000. A summary of the principal items follows:

Works' progress administration [Hopkins]	1,425,000,000
Emergency conservation works [CCC camps]	308,000,000
Social security board	458,631,000
New public buildings	65,550,000
Tennessee Valley Authority	39,900,000
Postoffice department	40,506,000
Miscellaneous [deficiencies in various departments]	26,642,000

The appropriation for the Hopkins' work-relief appropriation caused most of the fireworks when debate on the measure started shortly after noon today. The committee specified that Hopkins should spend the big fund given him in the following manner:

Highways, roads, and streets	$413,250,000
Public buildings	156,750,000
Parks and other recreational facilities	156,750,000
Public utilities [sewers, airports, etc.]	171,000,000
Flood control and other conservation	128,250,000
National Youth administration	71,250,000
Rural rehabilitation	85,500,000
White collar projects	85,500,000
Women's projects	71,250,000
Miscellaneous work projects	71,250,000

Quarter Billion for Boondoggling.

Under the last three items and under several of the other items, Hopkins has been conducting the projects which have become known as boondoggling. He will have well over a quarter of a billion dollars to spend on boondoggling under the new bill, according to estimates. In addition, he has more than a billion dollars unexpended from the 4 billion dollar relief appropriation of last year, it was pointed out.

The new appropriation for the WPA of 1 billion 425 millions added to the 675 million dollar total which is now provided for the CCC camps, and plus the billion to expend from the balances remaining from last year, makes available a total of 3 billions 100 million to Hopkins for spending during the next fiscal year which begins July 1, the committee stated.

They Hope That's All.

In this connection the committee report made the following significant remark:

"The committee hopes the unemployment problem can be met with this appropriation. It can be met during the coming fiscal year if industry continues to employ increasingly more workers than are now employed."

Representative John Taber of New York, ranking minority member of the committee, ridiculed this statement.

"How can industry hope to employ more workers until the government ceases its persecution of business?" he asked the house. "Why rely on industry when you won't give it a chance?"

Maverick Tells the Tale.

The typical attitude of the large Democratic majority was expressed simply by Representative Maury Maverick [Dem., Tex.].

"This bill comes in here without any of us knowing what its all about," he confessed. "We've got a 100 page bill, a long report, and two volumes of hearings totaling 1,000 pages which we have just had an opportunity to examine today for the first time.

"I won't have time to study the bill or the hearings. But the committee has worked two months on this bill and I have faith in the committee. Moreover, I think relief is a good thing and Harry Hopkins a splendid administrator. I'm going to vote for this bill."

In "Uncharted Field."

In appropriating the sum of nearly half a billion dollars to set the social security act into operation, the committee commented that "in the matter of federal old age benefits, there is an uncharted field and a herculean task with little previous experience upon which to base administrative action."

The social security board had asked for 23 millions to set up an organization.

"The 23 millions contemplated an organization which the committee regarded in many places as excessive and unnecessary and it hopes that the board, in taking on the new personnel, will proceed deliberately and cautiously," the committee report stated. The requested 23 millions were cut 18 millions 400 thousand.

Of the total granted for social security, 265 millions are to be set aside in the treasury as an "old age reserve account," this being the estimated amount o" the first annual premium for payments required under the act.

Farley Wants Extra 40.

The extra 40 millions appropriated for Postmaster General Farley's postoffice department, which has already received its regular annual appropriation, was made necessary, the committee explained, because the 40 hour week has been put into operation in the department and for increased compensations of postmasters, transportation expenses, and "additional employés caused by the increase in postal business."

The 26 millions for "miscellaneous purposes" included 12 millions for a deficiency in the war department, 2¼ millions for the navy, $1,100,000 for construction of a wind tunnel to test the speed of airplanes, and similar items.

The bill also carried an item of $1,429,000 to pay for the expenses connected with the special shipment of 6 billions of dollars in gold bullion from New York and Philadelphia to the new federal depository at Fort Knox, Ky., now nearing completion.

One of Mrs. Herrick's acts of cruelty, her husband testified, occurred last March 18, nine days after they separated, when she surreptitiously pulled out all the stops of the organ he was playing in the hotel.

REVEAL SECURITY BOARD FUND WILL AID BUROCRACY

$1 in Every 12 Would Go to Expand Pay Rolls.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 7.—[Special.]—One dollar out of every twelve the social security board is seeking to provide old age pensions and unemployment insurance will go to perpetuating New Deal burocracy.

This was revealed today with the publication of testimony at the hearings before the house subcommittee on appropriations, which recently received a request from President Roosevelt for $460,800,000 to carry on the program.

The hearings revealed that 23 million dollars of the sum sought in the deficiency bill will go for salaries and expenses of the social security board. Another $15,800,000 is to go for the compilation of wage records for the board.

Means Total of 11,864 Jobs.

The 23 million dollars will go to keep 6,816 workers, largely deserving Democrats, on the New Deal pay roll. A portion of the money will go for such incidental expenses as office space supplies and the like, including a travel allowance of $3,461,206. The bulk of the $15,800,000 estimate will go to put 4,948 more workers on the federal pay roll.

The sums totaling $38,800,000 are about one-twelfth of the total appropriation sought of $460,800,000. In all they will provide 11,864 jobs. This pay roll will make the unit one of the largest of the New Deal's alphabetical agencies. All the positions, like all of the new jobs created by the New Deal, are subject to civil service law, but the law has not been applied.

Reserve for the Aged.

The contemplated administrative outlay of $38,800,000 is in reality almost one-quarter of the actual appropriation of the unit. Of the total of $460,800,000 there is to be a reserve account of $265,000,000 for the aged. Of actual working funds the administrative costs will eat the $38,800,000 out of $195,000,000.

New Dealers, who have added about 250,000 jobs to the federal pay roll since they have entered power, insist the administrative cost of the social security program is reasonable. They held that the cost of the board after the wage records are complied will be "a mere 23 million dollars a year."

The breakdown of the $460,800,000 social security program, as revealed in the subcommittee records, is: $265,000,000 for the old age reserve account; $23,000,000 for salaries and expenses of the board; $85,000,000 for grants to states for old age assistance; $29,000,000 for grants to states for unemployment insurance; $35,000,000 for grants to states for dependent children aid; $8,000,000 for grants to states for blind aid; and $15,800,000 for wage records for the board.

Of the 6,816 jobs to be created under the 23 million dollars being sought, 2,589 are to be in Washington and the rest will be in field offices throughout the country. Of the wage record jobs, 456 will be in Washington and 4,492 in the rest of the country.

DEMOCRATS RISE UP AGAINST NEW CORPORATION TAX

Convinced Roosevelt Bill Is Wholly Unsound.

Washington, D. C., May 7.—[Special.]—After hearing sweeping indictments of President Roosevelt's corporate tax reform bill for more than a week, Democratic members of the senate finance committee have been persuaded that it is unsound even in theory, and the threat of revolt was evident for the first time today.

Senator Tom Connally [Dem., Tex.], who has been an ardent champion of most New Deal measures, asked the treasury for estimates on a substitute for the proposed tax on undistributed corporation income, which would retain merely the principle.

Other Democratic members said they favored the plan of Senator William H. King [Dem., Utah] to increase the flat corporation income tax rate, as well as individual income taxes in the lower brackets, but the opposition to the bill as passed by the house was preponderant.

Others Indicate Disapproval.

One Democrat stated privately that the bill would be rejected almost unanimously if a vote could be taken without pressure from the administration. Democratic members of the committee who have indicated their opposition include, besides Senators King and Connally, Senators Josian W. Bailey [N. C.], Peter G. Gerry [R. I.], David I. Walsh [Mass.], Augustine Lonergan [Conn.], Harry F. Byrd [Va.], and Walter F. George [Ga.]. With the Republicans this would comprise a good majority of the committee.

The only one of these members who would voice his opposition for publication was Senator Walsh, who declared:

"After listening to the testimony I am of the opinion that this bill will have to be extensively and materially redrafted, and I think a good many of my colleagues feel the same way."

Senator Connally asked for estimates on a plan to reduce the existing corporation income tax, which range from 12½ to 15 per cent, to a flat 12½ per cent, and to superimpose a flat 12½ per cent tax on undistributed profits. The bill would tax undistributed income in proportion to the amount paid out in dividends, with a maximum of 42½ per cent of total net income.

Couzens Joins Opposition.

Senator James Couzens [Rep., Mich.], who originally favored the principle of the tax on undistributed income, is now opposed to it regardless of the adoption of a substitute. He indicated by his questions today that he would support Senator King's plan for increased individual income taxes in the lower brackets.

Besides the treasury officials, not a single witness has indorsed the President's tax bill before the senate committee and only a lone communist approved it before the house ways and means committee.

The testimony of the treasury officials was offset by former treasury officials, who declared without exception that the bill would not increase the revenue and would create for more injustices and inequalities than those alleged to exist under the present laws.

Persuaded by Testimony.

Senators at first open minded or favorable to the pending bill and who now oppose it said they were persuaded by the testimony of Ellsworth C. Alvord, former assistant secretary of the treasury; George O. May of Price, Waterhouse & Co., accountants, and a wartime treasury adviser, and Arthur H. Ballantine, former undersecretary of the treasury.

Chief witnesses at today's hearing represented the National Association of Manufacturers, and their secretary, Noel Sargent, attributed the philosophy of the tax bill to Prof. Rexford Tugwell. The advocates of the measure, he declared, desire it not for the purpose of raising revenue, but "as a step toward government control of the amount of money which can be invested in any industry, indeed, in any company within an industry."

Sargent quoted from Prof. Tugwell's book, "The Industrial Discipline," written in 1933, in which he stated that there must be "planning for equilibrium."

Points to Unsoundness.

James A. Emery, general counsel of the Manufacturers' association, declared that manufacturers, including state and social security taxes, would eventually have to pay 24½ to 30 per cent of their net income even without the proposed new levies.

"If it be good policy for the government to compel reserves for security against the hazards of unemployment and age, under the social security act, it must be equally sound business policy to encourage rather than to discourage the voluntary creation of corporate reserves against the continuous hazards of industrial operation, the casualties of which are written daily in the columns of business obituaries," Emery said.

A practical industrialist whose testimony manifestly impressed the senators today was H. W. Story, vice president of the Allis Chalmers Company of Milwaukee, manufacturers of big machinery. He said his company had been considering an expansion program which might or might not be carried out if the pending bill were rejected but could not be if the bill were passed.

In view of the expansion plans, he said, the company paid no dividends last year, although it had earnings of $3,000,000. On these earnings it paid taxes of $450,000, while the taxes, under the proposed law, would be in excess of $1,000,000.

Endangers Employment.

Since Jan. 1, he said, the company has added 1,800 employés to its pay roll and these men probably will have to be dropped if the bill is passed.

"It seems to me that this bill is fundamentally wrong," he declared. "It transgresses every rule of sound taxation on the basis of ability to pay. I want to go on record as having favored 95 per cent of the policies of this administration, but I am absolutely bewildered by the tax bill of 1935, the tax on bigness, and the tax billion of 1936.

"This bill creates more inequities by far than could possibly exist under any tax bill we have ever had or that I could conceive of."

Nephew of Slain Maloy Arrested on Wife's Order

Thomas E. Maloy, 28 years old, 7842 Bennett avenue, nephew and namesake of the slain czar of the moving picture operators' union, was arrested in his home yesterday on a warant issued by Judge Joseph A. Graber in the Grand Crossing Police court. The warant, charging disorderly conduct, was obtained by Maloy's wife, Jean, last Feb. 28, but Maloy failed to appear at court hearings. Yesterday he was granted a continuance to today and his bond was set at $5,000 by Judge Graber.

CALIFORNIA AND SOUTH DAKOTA.

The Republican voters of South Dakota were required to choose last Tuesday between two sets of delegates to the national convention. One set was pledged to Senator Borah; the other was nominally uninstructed, but its members, in fact, had pledged themselves to support Gov. Landon. The Landon slate won, though Senator Borah's delegates ran well.

In California, also, the Republican voters had to choose between two sets of delegates. One was pledged to Gov. Landon and the other, though committed to no candidate, contained a considerable number of men who had announced that they were for Landon. The uninstructed delegation was the winner. In a measure, of course, this was a setback for Mr. Landon. He did not get the whole delegation, as would have happened if the instructed slate had come out on top, but the victorious delegates were not essentially anti-Landon. The alliance in support of the uninstructed delegation was cemented by local political animosities, not by opposition to the governor.

From these two primaries, as well as those which have preceded them, it becomes clear that Gov. Landon is a popular figure with the voters of this country. He appears to be the kind of man they are looking for. The only other candidate before the public who seems to have the same quality is Senator Borah. He, too, has a large and eager following. His success in carrying ten congressional districts downstate in Illinois, without organization, without the spending of money and without intensive campaigning, evidences his strength and the outcome in South Dakota goes far to confirm it.

Both men have popular appeal. That is a quality which the national convention dare not overlook in seeking a candidate. The man selected for the nomination should be a man who, in addition to all other qualifications, is known to be a vote-getter.

MR. WALLACE GROWS RETICENT.

On April 27 the senate was shamed into approving the Vandenberg resolution calling upon the secretary of agriculture to report the names of all those who had received more than $10,000 in AAA bounties, together with the amounts they had collected. The senate is still waiting for the information.

The delay was expectable. Mr. Wallace does not want that list to be made public. He opposed the resolution from the first. Mr. Vandenberg was told that the thousands of clerks in AAA would require months to compile the list. This ruse was successful until Controler General McCarl, upon being questioned, said that a handful of clerks could do the work in a week or so. As Mr. McCarl knows all that is known about government paper work, the secretary had to find another excuse.

He thought fast and produced the farmer's daughter. The poor girl would be kidnaped if it became generally known how rich the government had made her father. That was too much even for the Democrats in the senate. They were no more anxious than was Mr. Wallace to disclose the facts, but that excuse was too thin to hide behind. They had already forced the publication of the salaries of corporation officials, many of whom also have daughters. Accordingly, the senate approved the Vandenberg resolution.

Mr. Wallace is taking plenty of time to prepare his list. It could have been ready by this time. Maybe it will be submitted before the election in November. And then, again, maybe it won't. The longer he delays, the greater will be the suspicion throughout the country. Why is he trying to cover up? What is he ashamed of? Who got the big money and why?

DR. MAGILL'S SERVICES.

As president of the American Federation of Investors Dr. Hugh S. Magill is rendering valiant service in resisting what he properly terms the New Deal's "unreasoning hostility toward private industry and utter disregard for the interests of frugal, thrifty, taxpaying citizens."

Dr. Magill, we presume, draws a salary for these activities. The members of his organization have every reason to feel that he is worth what they pay him.

In another field Dr. Magill is rendering equally valuable services, for which he would be the last person in the world to suggest that he should receive any monetary reward. He has been outspoken in defending his rights as a citizen, and in so doing has served the whole body of citizens.

Dr. Magill was one of the first persons to be subjected to the outrageous and unconstitutional exactions of the Black inquisition. At a time when other victims of the senate OGPU were disposed to submit rather than bring down on their heads, in its manifold forms of persecution, the wrath of the Roosevelt administration, he resisted. He told the Black snoopers to get out of his office, and he denounced their illegal acts to the public.

It is significant that Dr. Magill has been free since from further annoyance by Senator Black's snoopers, although he has continued his resistance to New Deal folly. The last thing these petty tyrants want is publicity. Dr. Magill first showed the country the best way of resisting their illegal searches.

GREAT BRITAIN EXAMINES A FAILURE.

Sir Samuel Hoare had won his right to say, as he did in parliament, that Great Britain should not make commitments when it couldn't carry a thing through, and that it must not "give the impression that we are prepared to fight everywhere and anyhow for causes that do not concern us."

Sir Samuel lost his post as foreign minister because he agreed with the then Premier Laval to stop the war in Africa by giving Mussolini a part of the country of which he has now taken the whole. It may be unfair to call Mr. Eden a Boy Scout, but anyway he took over Sir Samuel's job and brought the affair to the most brilliant failure chargeable to British diplomacy in many years. As the world headmaster Great Britain has been made to take it and like it by an unruly pupil. Not since the American revolution has any one so successfully talked back to the headmaster, not even Napoleon. They have talked back, but the British, even if muddling, have muddled through. This time they just muddled.

It may be that two things disturb the British more than appears. One may be an uncertainty as to just what sea power can do in these days; that is, sea power expressed in superiority of surface ships. When the British fleet got into the Mediterranean it was in a hornets' nest. No doubt the admiralty was full of apprehension contemplating the possibilities of an attack by submarine and from the air. Great Britain may not feel wholly secure behind its battleships and therefore its government for the first time may question whether it has the means of compelling other countries to listen respectfully before suggestions and advice are turned into commands and ultimatums. Quite apparently, Mussolini felt that he had very little to fear. He might have been mistaken, but at least he called the bluff.

For another thing, the pacifist movement has gained great influence. No one can blame the British people for not wanting to become involved in the sufferings of a war brought on by faraway imperialism. Laval said that Ethiopia wasn't worth a single Senegalese rifleman. The British might have added that it wasn't worth a boy from Kent or one whiskered Sikh.

There was still a more serious thing. How would the dominions receive a decision of British statesmanship which opened recruiting offices again on their territory? Would they again follow in the execution of a determination in which they had not participated? If Mr. Eden got them a war, would they fight it? If they refused, the empire, even as a commonwealth of equal nations, would have gone to pot. The dominions might not have refused the gage, but the risk was there to take. It might reveal Great Britain as an insular kingdom again, one of the smaller island nations of the world.

PUBLIC ENEMY NO. 1.

The department of justice agents who arrested Alvin Karpis denied that they regarded their captive as public enemy No. 1. They were right. He is not.

Karpis is thoroughly bad. In 1926, when he was 16 years old, he was convicted of theft and sent to the Kansas industrial reformatory to serve ten years. Three years later he broke jail. Within a year he was arrested in the possession of safe blowing equipment.

No attempt was made, apparently, to send Karpis back to serve his original term. Instead he was sent to the Kansas penitentiary and paroled a year later. Within a few months he was arrested for robbery in Oklahoma.

He was sent to prison, but paroled almost immediately. Again the records show no effort to send him back to the Kansas prisons where he belonged, once as an escaped convict, a second time as a parole violator.

Six months later Karpis committed his first murder of record, that of a Missouri sherif. In the ensuing five years he was charged with at least two other murders, two kidnapings of national notoriety, and innumerable bank robberies and holdups. The law had three opportunities to keep Karpis in prison and make these crimes impossible. Three times it failed, twice through slackness and probable corruption in the parole system.

Karpis is not public enemy No. 1. Public enemy No. 1 is the public official who manipulates the parole system for political advantage, recklessly loosing criminals, once caught, to prey again on the public.

Editorial of the Day

AN IMPORTANT CORRECTION.

[Detroit Free Press.]

The United States attorney trying a case in a Brooklyn court last week remarked that the Supreme court had held "that congress has the power to spend its money as it pleases."

Whereupon the judge corrected him:

> You don't mean that congress spends its money as it pleases. Congress spends our money as it pleases. Congress represents us, and, as a result, we may say that we are spending our money through the authority of congress. Every dollar spent comes from the taxpayers, and the people must eventually foot the bill.

A great many people in this country talk and act as if the New Dealers had discovered some miraculous means of paying bills without taxing the nation for that purpose.

They haven't.

And some day the taxpayers will see the facts, as Judge Inch now states them.

"LANDON SATISFIED with Result of Primary in California."—Headline. Ah! the modest violet from Kansas has found out at last that he is a candidate. I was getting afraid that the Republican convention would assemble in Cleveland and pick out a standard bearer before Gov. Landon knew that he was being talked of for the job. I felt several times like digging down in my own pocket and putting up the money to send the governor a telegram telling him he was being mentioned as the G. O. P. candidate, but now that he has found it out I won't have to do it. It's hard to keep things like that a secret very long in these days.

EX-EMPERIOR HAILE says he left Ethiopia merely that further bloodshed might be avoided. The correspondents didn't say so, but I'll bet a nickel (inflated) that while Haile thus lightly dismissed his departure from Ethiopia he is still taking his meals off the mantelpiece.

AND SPEAKING of ex-Emperor Haile, it is of interest that he not only has a great mansion in the most fashionable and expensive part of London but that he also has a 21 room villa surrounded by spacious grounds. DOROTHY KISSLING.

OF COURSE I DON'T THINK that driving an automobile is among the very best things the ladies do; still I must admit that of the two or three dozen drivers sent to jail lately not a single woman is included. But the laughing, saucy brunette who made a left turn into the traffic street yesterday where I was driving my gasoline buggy ought to have been sent to jail. She paid no attention to the stop sign confronting her when she came up to the traffic artery, but at a rollicking pace swung gayly athwart my bows, and if I hadn't had good brakes and used them promptly there would have been a minor collision. Anyhow, there's one comfort; if she doesn't learn how to drive properly she will be in jail and she'll get no sympathy out of me.

AND PEOPLE who were once swanking about in our very best Republican circles will sit down amid the unterrified Democracy at the Philadelphia convention and some of our dyed-in-the-wool Democrats will sit amid the Republicans at the Cleveland convention. A good slogan for each convention would be, "Oh! fancy meeting you here!"

SO MANY APPLICANTS (two anyhow) for membership in our Fifty Mile an Hour club are burdened with the idea that if they join they are obliged to travel fifty miles an hour, night and day, over good roads and bad, in the heart of the loop or away down in the country "where the houses are few and far between and the dogs they bark at strangers." Not so. Some fast sprinters can do a mile in so many seconds flat, but when they are guests in our home do we expect them to go at that speed when dinner is announced? We do not. They'd knock over all the furniture in the house and barge into the dining room table with such violence that the chicken soup would be splashed all over the wall. Fifty miles an hour is the limit, that's all. There are occasions when five miles an hour is too fast. And at other times you'd better get out and push the old car.

And planted here the willow sprigs I love.

Or weary, slept on pepperminted sod
Beneath the sheltering clumps—a humble guest.

Foretold the growth a coming race supplies—

Implanting bud and bloom and wood—the rise
From spreading roots to wistful branches turned Toward fervid dreams and lessons never learned

POINTERS ON PAIN.

PAIN means trouble somewhere in the body. It is nature's alarm system. Were we not provided with nerves of feeling [sensory] no one of us would survive for long. There would be no signals warning us of danger. What a state we would be in were we completely anesthetized and at the same time conscious!

There are many times, however, when we would gladly give up—at least temporarily—all of our nerves of sensation, for agony indescribable attends some types of illness or injury. Then it is that powerful drugs—narcotics and anesthetics—come to our relief.

But pain is bewildering, as we cannot—at all times—interpret its meaning. Furthermore, it is elusive and does not always appear at the seat of the disease. If a toe aches the chances are that the difficulty is in that region. While the pain of appendicitis may be disclosed by pressure on the abdominal wall over the appendix, yet it may be much more noticeable in the stomach area. In fact, the most pronounced symptoms may be nausea and vomiting and all the signs of a digestive upset. Headache may denote any one of a score of disease processes—referred from the intestines, the ovaries, the sinuses, or the brain itself. A severe frontal headache sometimes follows a single swallow of ice cold water.

Whenever gallstones become so large that they block the passageway leading into the intestine, the symptoms may not be located in the neighborhood of the gall bladder. The patient may seek medical aid because of a violent pain in the right shoulder boring through to the back.

Heart distress may simulate acute indigestion, or it may be transmitted to the left shoulder and down the left arm to the tips of the fingers. Commonly called angina, this is one of the most agonizing symptoms to which the body is subjected, and the chest may feel as though it were gripped in a slowly tightening vise.

Symptoms of neuralgia or sciatica are transmitted along the nerves, although the trouble in the first instance may lie in a distant nerve center or depot [ganglion]. In facial neuralgia the soreness is often localized in the jaw and perfectly good teeth have been extracted needlessly. Toothache may point not only to the diseased structure, but to normal teeth that lie adjacent.

One of our popular misconceptions, which has little or no basis in fact, is that kidney disease is attended with backache. In the first place, the kidneys lie behind the abdominal cavity well up in the body, and the upper portion of each organ is covered by the curve of the lower ribs. Furthermore, kidney disease as such does not cause pain. This symptom may develop, however, if a stone from a kidney attempts to pass down the tube [ureter] leading into the bladder. This may be so intense as to be prostrating.

Pain from arthritis, cancer, and diseases of the bone will usually be felt at the site involved. As a rule, cancer is painless during its early period, hence we are robbed of an important sign of its existence. In a felon—infection of a terminal finger joint—the throbbing may extend to the hand and even up the arm.

Contrary to common belief, the abdominal organs in general are not sensitive to external stimulation. William Harvey, the discoverer of the circulation of the blood, showed conclusively that the heart itself could be handled without conscious sensation. The peritoneum—that important membrane of the abdomen—can be touched on its outer surface without the slightest feeling of discomfort. Permit this thin covering to become inflamed, however, and the situation is quite different.

All of this indicates that certain types of nerves transmit sensations of cold, heat, pain, or comfort; and they may carry the impulses to the brain and other parts of the body—a considerable distance from the original source.

In our effort to understand symptoms, therefore, we must recognize these "referred pains," as they are called, and endeavor to locate their points of origin.

ARE NOT PSYCHIC.

M. E. J. writes: What causes a person to lose his equilibrium while descending in an elevator? Please don't tell me it is psychic, as I have tried to use will power.

REPLY.

Equilibrium is maintained [1] through the apparatus of hearing, [2] through sight, and [3] through what is known as the muscle and joint sense. This latter really constitutes the sixth sense. Some individuals are able to train themselves so that balance will be preserved under all circumstances. Perfect equilibrium is possible only when all factors concerned operate in harmony. Nevertheless, we can compensate to a certain extent; for example, a blind person can stand erect and walk without swaying if the other elements are present. Deaf mutes, deprived of the hearing apparatus, are able to maintain balance through the sense of sight, etc. We can readily understand that a deaf mute may have trouble in learning to walk steadily in the dark.

Your sensations are not psychic.

RED NOSE.

F. S. writes: What causes a red nose, sometimes in spots? I have had this condition for about ten years. I am 58 years old.

REPLY.

One of the chief causes of acne rosacea [red nose] is disturbed digestion. Hot foods and drinks also act directly by producing flushing of the face. Radical cure is often impossible, but much can be done to improve the condition. Digestive disorders should be properly treated and special attention given to the regulation of the bowels. Highly seasoned foods and drinks should be especially avoided. Alcoholic beverages should not be used.

CHANGE OF LIFE.

Mrs. S. writes: When does change of life start and when does it end? Should a woman consult a physician in this period?

REPLY.

The age is variable. However, it may be said that the average age is about 47 years. In some instances there is an abrupt cessation of the menses, while in others the disappearance is irregular or gradual.

The majority of women going through the menopause need no medical treatment. If the symptoms—hot flushes, sweats, etc.—are unduly disturbing one should seek the advice of a physician.

From Across the Sea

BY DONALD DAY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia.—The Moscow government has decided to arrange a Pushkin memorial festival. Pushkin was one of the great Russian poets. Seldom a week has passed in the last 15 years in which some writer has not obtained two or three columns of space for Pushkin. Because of this unusual amount of publicity most Russians, both Whites and Reds, have the idea that their nation is the only one who has produced any poets of note since the Greeks and Romans and that the greatest poet of all ages is Pushkin.

Discussion of the Pushkin festival is popular among Russians living abroad and one of them, an editor of a Russian daily, asked in all seriousness if there were any noteworthy poets in America. He had never heard of Whittier, Emerson, or James Whitcomb Riley.

Aside from a scanty knowledge of a few French writers the average Russian of both pre-revolution university education and of today has but a vague idea of the literature and art of any other country except his own. Compared with the countries of the west the output of the printing presses in old and new Russia has alway been meager. The bolshevik claim of publishing millions of newspapers and books annually sounds like progress. But after 17 years of bolshevik rule Russia still has only two afternoon newspapers published in limited editions of 100,000 each.

The two largest newspapers in Russia are Izvestia and Pravda, both published in Moscow. Both are four page papers and generally publish identical news. There are a number of other dailies devoted to the interests of special branches of Russian economy. One concentrates on industrial development, another on transport, another on food supplies. These are small, six column, four page papers.

The soviet provincial press follows the same standardized pattern, but the size of the paper is smaller, a five column page slightly larger than an American tabloid. Only a meager amount of news is published. The Izvestia and Pravda sometimes contain two or three columns of foreign news and the provincial papers seldom contain a half column. The remainder of the space is filled with special articles generally explaining the latest policies of the Kremlin. Russia, today a country of more than 160,000,000 has only two cartoonists of note and no paper makes a cartoon a daily feature.

There are only two fortnightly publications in Russia devoted to humor and satire. Both are printed on cheap, rough paper and their circulation is unknown. Soviet magazines appear irregularly and are also printed on cheap paper. Illustrations are infrequent. Improper adjustment of the presses often fogs the paper with ink, making reading difficult.

The soviet government's claim that millions of books are being published must also be discounted since in Russia a ten or twenty page pamphlet containing the latest speech of Commissioner Stalin or Kaganovitch is counted as a book. Small pamphlets are popular in Russia. They fill a need of the more cultured part of the population which the soviet paper industry has not yet attempted to satisfy.

Pushkin's complete works, which fill several volumes, have been carefully censored and abridged editions will be placed on sale during the festival. Many of his works which have been reconstructed into operas and plays will be presented in theaters throughout Russia. The Pushkin revival, according to the soviet press, precedes a movement to republish the works of authors formerly popular throughout Russia in more liberally edited editions. Heretofore the bolshevik chief censor, Halatof, has made hash of many famous Russian works, especially those which contained religion.

Frequent complaints appear about the government's policy of confining new books to editions of 2,000 and 3,000 copies. This was brought to public notice recently when an engineer wrote a moving story of workers in the soviet gold fields which was limited to 3,000 copies when calls for 100,000 copies had been received.

ELECTION LAWS.

Chicago, May 2.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Would appreciate information concerning election laws in Chicago. 1. We understand an American born individual must reside in the state one year, in Cook county ninety days, in a ward thirty days, in a precinct ten days, in order to be eligible to register at a primary. 2. Mr. B registered March 17 at a certain polling place, but will not move to another residence in Chicago for a couple of weeks. 3. Should he have registered at the new location, or could he have voted at his former poling place? Mr. C has lived in Chicago for many years, voting in the same precinct. His maintenance is a part of his remuneration, and he spends his Sundays at his home in one of the suburbs of Chicago. 4. In your estimation what is his legal residence? 5. Where could I get a copy of the election laws of Chicago?

C. W. A.

1. The wording of the state constitution is: "Every person having resided in this state one year, in the county ninety days, and in the election district thirty days next preceding any election." Art. VII, page 19.

2. If he moves within thirty days before the election from one precinct to another, he will lose his vote.

3. This would not alter the law.

4. Presumably what you call his "home," but obviously we do not have the facts.

5. From the board of election commissioners in the city hall.

CONTACT PURCHASE.

Chicago, May 2.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A business man buys a piece of improved real estate on contract. Can you advise as to the advisability or inadvisability of having the contract recorded?

H. N. D.

If the purchaser does not go into possession and the contract is not recorded then it will be within the vendor's power to sell to a new purchaser who would take without notice and hence would acquire superior rights. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

BRITISH PRESTIGE.

Chicago, May 5.—Today's editorial, "The British Lose One Ethiopian War," easily wins the distinction of being the most ridiculous editorial ever printed in any paper. Not one of the assertions made therein is even nearly correct. Possibly your type of American citizen would like Great Britain to declare war on Italy; then after a while when the war was about over, step in with the one most likely to be winner and at the same time charge 5 times the price for all the merchandise you could sell to the said victor. More power to the sane and wise policy adopted by the present day British statesmen. Let America do her share of the peace making of the world or we stay on the sidelines also. You're just plain nuts if you think Britain is any weaker than she ever was either at home or in the colonies and please read Mr. De Valera's speech at the league of nations meeting last fall. ERIN.

YORKTOWN?

Chicago, May 5.—Regarding your editorial of today, "The British Lose the Ethiopian War," and your statement, "The British Empire is Whipped," some one once said the British generally manage to lose every battle but the last one. I'd suggest that you wait until all the returns are in. W. T. M.

SPELLING.

Chicago, May 4.—The letter by A. L. Astor, printed in your issue of today expresses my thought about the word trafic exactly. It is the one word that I just can't get used to when it is spelled trafic. I remember that one of your arguments for the use of this spelling was that the continental European languages spelled it this way, but you forgot to mention that in those languages it is pronounced traw-feek.

There are some other spellings you use that I don't like, for instance staf, but I've got used to all except trafic. For the love of Mike, be reasonable!

A. F. CARLEN.

THE JACKSON PARK PAVILION.

Chicago, April 22.—I, too, resent the old Jackson park pavilion being called the Iowa building. My father, who passed away in 1893, was one of the masons in charge of the building of this pavilion, and I as a young child went often with him on Saturdays so that I might enjoy the sunshine and the lake while he went about his duties; then in later years, as a resident of the Jackson park district, I, too, enjoyed the pavilion as a headquarters for cyclists and a meeting place for picnic parties, etc. F. B. C.

BRIDLE PATHS.

Chicago, April 25.—And may I add my two cents' worth of protest against Jackson park? The bridle paths are the worst in the city. I thought they were bad last year, but this year they really are a mess. Nothing but holes and some terrible stuff sprinkled over them that makes the horses stumble. There are plenty of stables around Jackson and Washington parks with very good horses and good rates, but they don't get the business they should get just because the paths are so bad. M. E. McCOWAN.

CUTHBERT'S TELEPHONE.

Chicago, May 4.—Will you ask Harold Gray the secret of how to be, O, so poor, but yet possess a telephone? Of course I'm referring to his Orphan Annie cartoons of Sunday and Monday, May 3 and 4. Perhaps when Cuthbert's folks saw better days they did install a telephone and the sympathetic telephone company there didn't have the heart to shut it off. The stage is yours, Mr. Gray. ISABEL WYLLIS TRODSON.

SLOGANS.

Chicago, May 4.—May I suggest these two slogans for the Donkey party in their nation-wide denial program about to start?

"Spend Yourself Rich."

FORGOTTEN WOMAN.

JAPANESE IMMIGRATION.

Chicago, May 5.—"Reader's" illuminating letter on the Japanese immigration question quite misses the point. If a hypothetical race of people, who subsisted solely on beans and slept four in a bed, immigrated into this country, they could save money on a weekly wage of seven dollars, and the native who was gulled into admitting them by the current fatuous doctrin of false liberalism would find himself displaced at the factory.

If these same people were as clannish as inferior people usually are, they would pool their miserable savings and would very soon own everything, and the predominantly European type of individualist, who has carved a civilization out of this whilom wilderness which is the envy of the whole world, would be dependent upon the immigrant collectivist for a job and existence—and would the latter be granted?

The Japanese are a great race of people, and are of course incomparably superior to this hypothetical race; but there is sufficient difference in culture to preclude the possibility of a harmonious mixture with the people of this country.

BOUQUET FOR JUDGE GORMAN.

Chicago, May 4.—I have waited long with hopes that some judge would come to the rescue of the people of Chicago who have as much right to the streets as the reckless, heartless automobile drivers who are injuring and murdering people ruthlessly.

It has been most discouraging to listen to the childish conclusions of the judges handling the cases of the would be murders, such as "I sentence you to a trip to the County hospital," or should the mother of the young [full grown] man be present it is, "Go take this boy in charge and report to me next month" [after he has broken another person's neck].

But now we have Judge Gibson E. Gorman, a judge with full length trousers on, who knows, as State's Attorney Courtney knows, the only way to stop such violation of the law [automobile stealing and automobile murdering] is by putting the violators in jail. Three cheers for Judge Gorman. R. SEARCY.

SAVINGS.

Chicago, April 19.—Your comments on the wealth of this nation in terms of savings deposits merely serve to remind us that already the present administration has spent in slightly more than three years the equal of the lifetime savings of 40 million people, or one-third of our entire population. The sad part of it is that these experiments have not worked the wonders that we were told to expect. Our labor reports still disclose a number of unemployed not much less than that existing in 1933.

H. E. JOHNSON.

SCENTED ILLUSTRATIONS.

Chicago, May 5.—In looking over last Sunday's TRIBUNE it occurred to me the picture of lilacs in bloom was beautiful, but how much nicer it would have been, had the lilacs been scented with lilac perfume. Now that you have successfully solved the color question, the next step is to add odor. Start with flowers, and eventually you can add it to your advertising copy. F. E. DE VRIES.

COFFEE.

Chicago, May 4.—Will some restaurant owner kindly tell us why it is necessary to charge 10 cents for a cup of coffee? True enough, sometimes the second cup is free, but many people, and most girls, do not care for a second cup, especially at luncheon.

DISGUSTED STENOGRAPHERS.

PRIORITY.

Gary, Ind., May 2.—You should correct the headline in which you label Karpis as public enemy No. 1. Public enemies Nos. 1, 2, 3, and other numerals are the governors of the various states who pardon and parole these desperate criminals. FRANK N. GAVIT.

HITLER TO OFFER 'ECONOMIC PEACE PLAN' TO EUROPE

Plans to Invite Briton to Parley in Berlin.

BULLETIN.

LONDON, May 8 [Friday].—(AP)—A clear declaration from Adolf Hitler as to whether Germany now regards itself in a position to conclude "genuine treaties" was requested today in a British questionnaire, arising from the Locarno crisis. The questionnaire, presented to the Berlin foreign office yesterday, was made public in London today in a white paper, or government report.

"It is of course clear that negotiations for a treaty would be useless if one of the parties hereafter felt free to deny its obligations on the ground that that party was not at the time in a condition to conclude a binding treaty," the questionnaire said.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, May 7. — Reichsfuehrer Hitler, who on March 31 presented a peace plan to the powers conferring on what to do about his military reoccupation of the Rhineland, plans to make two proposals in answer to a British questionnaire on his peace suggestions. The questionnaire was handed to the German government today.

First, Hitler will request that Anglo-German conversations be held in Berlin. He will invite Lord Halifax, British lord privy seal, to confer with him personally.

Second, the fuehrer will present an "economic peace plan," which he hopes will induce the Locarno powers—France, Great Britain, Italy, and Belgium—to call a general conference to discuss his political and economic proposals as soon as possible.

[Hitler in his peace proposals offered to sign security pacts with Germany's neighbors. He also proposed establishment of a three man international commission to supervise the Rhineland during a four month "armistice" period during which peace negotiations would be carried on. Germany would agree not to increase her forces in the reoccupied Rhineland but France and Belgium would also have to make the same guaranty.]

Party Leaders Study Queries.

The fact that a summary of the British queries was given by the foreign ministry to "national party leaders" who were assembled in Munich under the chairmanship of Rudolf Hess, Hitler's deputy leader, shows that the Nazis are making a national issue of the subject.

A foreign office spokesman said the questionnaire is of a "complicated nature requiring the closest study." He indicated Germany will be unable to answer the document before May 11, when the Locarno powers meet at Geneva.

Hitler's associates complained that the questionnaire shows "a lack of understanding for the greatness of the fuehrer's peace proposals." They expressed the hope that Hitler's personal conversation with Lord Halifax "will help clarify an atmosphere laden with suspicion."

Resents "Cross-Examination."

They added that Hitler will reply fully to the questionnaire, but will not submit to "further undignified cross-examination."

A question regarding Germany's attitude on the league of nations brought this comment from a Nazi official:

"Germany will return to the league only if she receives guarantees that the league will be subjected to thorough reorganization, taking into consideration Germany's demands for equal rights."

Britain's query about colonies will be answered with the assurance that Germany does not plan to use arms to obtain colonies, but that she insists on her right to own colonies like other countries.

The Nazis plan to incorporate a while series of new proposals in reply to Britain. This time politics will play a secondary rôle, while emphasis will be placed on economic questions.

The offices of Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, minister of economics, have been working overtime drafting the new "economic peace plan for Europe." The question of raw materials Germany needs plays a preponderant part in this economic memorandum.

DEMOCRATS SNUB NEBRASKA CHOICE FOR U. S. SENATE

Omaha, Neb., May 7.—(AP)—The Democratic state convention tonight adopted a platform which failed to indorse Terry Carpenter, Scottsbluff, the party's nominee for United States senator. The platform indorsed Gov. R. L. Cochran for reëlection and all other nominees with the exception of Carpenter. The platform praised Senator George W. Norris, independent Republican, and said the need for Norris was greater than the ambitions of any one man. Immediately after adopting the platform without discussion from the floor the convention adjourned.

DETROIT BANK'S CHIEFS TESTIFY FOR 3 ON TRIAL

Defend Transactions in Stock Losses.

Detroit, Mich., May 7.—[Special.]—Nine directors of the Old Peoples Wayne county bank rallied to the defense of three accused executives Thursday and admitted responsibility for the transactions which the government charges led to false entries in federal reserve reports.

The prosecution closed its case at noon against John R. Bodde, former president, and Donald N. Sweeney and Edwin J. Eckert, former vice presidents, on trial before Judge Patrick T. Stone of Wausau, Wis.

They are charged with concealing through a trustee note the bank's ownership of 1,143 shares of Detroit bankers holding company stock worth $145,000 accumulated for customer accounts and then left on the bank's hands.

Charges Secret Transfer.

Charles F. Risler, accountant of the bureau of investigation and Special Prosecutor Guy K. Bard's last witness, charged that six months before the stock was taken out of "cash items," it was being transferred secretly to trustees.

Testimony brought out that before the final transfer was made the executive committee and directors at two separate meetings had ordered it. These officials readily admitted approving the transfer to avoid holding longer as a "cash item" stock which had seriously depreciated in value.

The officials insisted they had acted on the recommendation of the late Julius H. Hass, a dominating personality at the head of the institution, and believed the disposition had approval of the state banking department.

"We had not bought the stock for investment, intended to resell it at the first opportunity to get out even, and did not think it proper to list it as 'securities held,'" T. W. Palmer Livingston, former vice chairman of the board, testified.

Called Established Custom.

All nine directors said the bank followed a long established custom in all Detroit banks of accommodating customers who wanted to buy stock which was so closely held it was not readily obtainable in the open market.

'It was just a matter of 'taste in bookkeeping'," James O. Murfin, regent of the University of Michigan and former Circuit judge, explained. "The cash was replaced from a reserve account. The assets were unimpaired through holding the stock as collateral for a trustee loan rather than a direct holding."

Oscar Webber, merchant, said he voted for the trusteeship because he thought it was "absolutely the right thing to do."

"We had the stock through circumstances beyond our control, we had faith in the bank and knew the strength of every unit, and felt sure the loss would be recovered through favorable resale," Webber testified.

The Great Lakes company will place slings under the boat today and remove the superstructure. It expects to complete the raising operations within a week.

U. S. TO GET PART OF LEITER FARM AS TAX PAYMENT

One hundred and sixty acres of the 450 acre farm of the late Joseph Leiter, Chicago capitalist and sportsman, in Fairfax county, Va., is to be turned over to the government in part settlement of an income tax claim under the terms of an order signed by Judge John F. O'Connell of the Probate court yesterday. The land will be devoted to park purposes, it was said.

After Mr. Leiter's death in 1932 the government levied an assessment against the estate for $213,501 income taxes allegedly due for the years 1922 to 1930. The board of tax appeals reduced the assessment to $91,067, but declared $56,000 additional due for interest.

Executors of the Leiter estate, including the widow, Juliette, made a compromise offer of $70,000, declaring there were not sufficient liquid assets to pay more. After some negotiations the executors tendered the additional offer of the land, 18 miles from Washington, D. C., which was accepted.

CRIME FIGHTERS TO APPEAR AT BAR QUIZ ON CIOLLARO

A committee of the Chicago Bar association investigating the release of Vincent Ciollaro, slayer of a woman, from Joliet prison on a writ of habeas corpus in 1927 will hear Frank J. Loesch, president, and Henry Barrett Chamberlin, operating director, of the Chicago Crime commission, today. The crime commission has asked an inquiry by the state's attorney and the grand jury into Ciollaro's release.

Attorney W. G. Anderson, colored, and Judge Charles A. Williams of the Superior court, who had been invited to attend yesterday's session of the bar committee, did not appear because of illness. Anderson represented Ciollaro in the 1927 habeas corpus hearing before Judge Williams. The judge set aside the release order six weeks ago and Ciollaro is now being sought.

William H. Harrison, former assistant attorney general of Illinois, who was reported to have represented the state in the habeas corpus hearing, appeared before the bar committee yesterday and denied that he knew of the hearing before Judge Williams.

DIES OF HEART ATTACK.

John Katera, 54 years old, 1413 Emma street, died of a heart attack yesterday while at work in the mills of the Illinois Steel company, 106th street and Exchange avenue.

SHE WISHES TO MOVE; HE WON'T; SHE BURNS PLACE

New York, May 7.—[Special.]—Mrs. Norma Weidhofer, dissatisfied housewife, walked into the police station this afternoon and announced that she had just set fire to her home. Fire apparatus was passing and two policemen trailed it. The second floor of a frame dwelling was ablaze.

Mrs. Weidhofer lived on the second floor of that house with her husband and two small daughters. She wanted to move and her husband wanted to stay. She sent the children out today, poured kerosene over the furniture and set fire to it, she told police.

"I think my husband will move now," she observed as she was arraigned on a charge of arson.

Don't Be Fat!

says IRENE RICH Lovely Lady of the Screen

"Eat Sensibly—Drink Welch's Grape Juice"

HERE, at last, is a SAFE way to reduce. A way that does NOT call for strict dieting, exercising, or taking drugs. A way that actually increases your mental and physical energy as pounds of ugly fat seemingly melt away.

Please read carefully: In a recent test, held under the direction of the eminent Dr. Damrau of New York, 14 people who were gaining at the rate of 1⅗ pounds a month, followed this method. And the average loss registered was 7 pounds a person in a single month—WITHOUT STRICT DIETING OR EXERCISING.

What You Do

Now, all you have to do is this: Mix ¾ of a glass of Welch's Grape Juice with ¼ of a glass of water—and drink before each meal, and at bedtime. Then eat sensibly—and this is what happens.

First, Welch's Grape Juice satisfies your normal craving for rich, sweet foods. You have less desire to over-eat fattening foods—yet you do feel comfortably satisfied.

Second, the grape sugar in Welch's is quickly burned up—producing vital energy—and, most important, helps nature to burn up excess fat.

Irene Rich is over 40, but weighs the same as at 16

Only One Thing To Watch

In following this proved, SAFE way to lose ugly fat, eat sensibly—and then there is only one thing to watch. Use only the genuine Welch's Grape Juice. In order to get the finest, selected, premium grapes grown we pay more than anyone in the United States. That is why Welch's is always full strength. No adulterants; no artificial coloring—Certified Pure. Insist upon Welch's.

Tested and Approved Good Housekeeping Bureau

"Gives Quick Pep and Energy"

"Red" Woodworth, All-American Star and Coach at Morgan Park Military Academy, says: "Welch's Grape Juice gives my boys strength and energy without adding health-destroying fat. The minerals and vitamins are valuable in helping to build red blood, strong bones and teeth. I recommend it for all growing children and athletes. I have also found it excellent between meals as a quick energy pickup drink for children and grown ups."

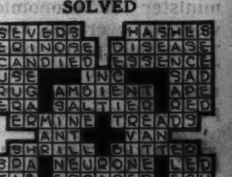
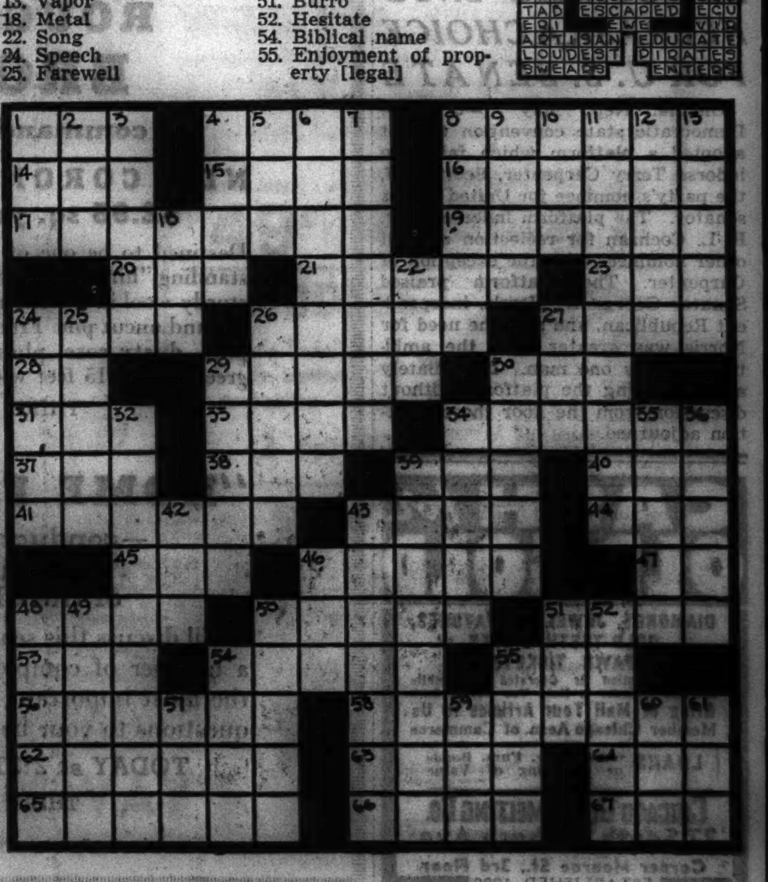
YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED





CONSTIPATED* 25 YEARS, ALL-BRAN BROUGHT RELIEF

Delicious Cereal Corrected His Condition

Here is Mr. Johnson's letter: "I got a package (of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN), and before the package was gone I was very much better.

"So I have been eating it for two or three weeks, and my constipation* has gone, and I was constipated* for 25 years or more. Hoping this may help some one to better health. I am a new friend to Kellogg's ALL-BRAN."—Mr. J. B. Johnson, Lake Charles, La.

Mr. Johnson's letter is one of many. Millions find Kellogg's ALL-BRAN corrects constipation* satisfactorily. It supplies the "bulk" missing in the average American meal.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is mild and effective. It absorbs moisture and gently exercises and cleanses the intestines. ALL-BRAN also supplies vitamin B and iron.

Isn't it more sensible to use this natural food instead of taking patent medicines? Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily. If not relieved, see your doctor.

Use as a cereal, with milk or cream, or cook into muffins, breads etc. It is sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

ST. CHARLES BANK ROBBERY PLOT IS BARED IN COURT

Former Policeman Says He Knew of Plans.

Two of the seven men under indictment for the $16,000 robbery of the St. Charles National bank on Jan. 31 took the stand yesterday as government witnesses against three of the other men indicted, who are on trial before a jury in the court of Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan.

The three defendants are Frederick T. Hansen, an ex-convict; Sam Bongiorno and Philip Dimenza. The case is believed to be the first one tried in the federal court under a recently enacted statute which gives that court jurisdiction where the bank robbed is a national institution.

Gordon Former Policeman.

The two men under indictment who testified as prosecution witnesses are John E. Gordon, former St. Charles special policeman, and Percy Rehm, 41 years old, St. Charles florist and former chief of a Kane county vigilante group. James Kobart, former Will county deputy sherif, whose farm at Romeoville was used as a hideout for the gang, and Leo Friedman, 23 years old, also are under indictment and are expected to testify for the government.

Gordon said that he had known Hansen for many years and last year Hansen asked him for the key to the bank.

"I kind of hesitated and asked him what he wanted it for," Gordon said. "He told me he hoped he would get some good out of it some day."

Gordon testified that he met Hansen and Dimenza on the night of Jan. 29 and at the request of Hansen let Dimenza into the bank. Dimenza came out five minutes later, the witness said, and locked the inner door to the bank with his own key.

Hoped Against Robbery.

Cross-examining, Defense Counsel Benedict Short asked: "Did you give your consent to the robbing of the bank?"

"I did not," Gordon replied. "In fact, I was in hopes it wouldn't be robbed."

Rehm then took the stand. He said he agreed to cut off the alarm system which connected the bank with his own office next door.

In the government's opening statement to the jury, Assistant United States District Attorney Thomas B. Hart said the robbery had been planned for months and was executed with meticulous detail. Attorney Short, in his statement, indicated the defense may consist of a plea of entrapment. He asserted Gordon and Rehm actually planned the robbery for the purpose of obtaining political preference and reward by breaking it up.

Settles Her Suit

The $22,500 suit of Mrs. Lillian O'Shea against Mrs. Belle T. Daiches for alleged services in tracing the slayers of Mrs. Daiches' husband, Eli, advertising agency executive, was settled for $1,500 yesterday. The settlement was announced to Judge Clyde H. Thompson of Dwight, sitting in the Circuit court here, a few minutes before a jury was to be selected to try the case.

Mrs. O'Shea contended in her bill that the money she asked was rightfully her share of the $67,500 Mrs. Daiches received in settlement of her claims against the Thomas M. Bowers Advertising agency at 343 South Dearborn street, and several of its officials, including Louis Weitzman of New York. Daiches was an executive of the agency.

Weitzman's brother, Irving, south side baker, was once convicted of hiring Daiches' killers and sentenced to life imprisonment. He won a new trial and was acquitted.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By Frank Ridgway

Blossom Time.

May 7, 1936.

It is blossom time at the Tribune experimental farms. Today in the orchards and on the lawns the air is filled with the odor of newly opened fruit and shrub flowers. Many apple trees are covered with deep pink blossoms. Today the white blossoms are just beginning to open on the pear, plum, and cherry trees.

The woods on the Wheaton farm are turning green. Fair sized leaves have developed on the young trees and underbrush. Mature oaks, elms, and hickories are beginning to take on a tinge of green from the lowest to the highest branches. Wild plum and crab apple trees are starting to open their blossoms in the woods, thickets, and odd corners about the farm.

On the lawns at the Yorkville and Wheaton farms the buds of lilacs are just beginning to take on their characteristic shape and color. Managers of the farms are planning to give at least a truck load of blossoms for distribution in Chicago's eighth annual "share your lilacs" campaign. The lilacs on the Yorkville farm likely will not be in full bloom for ten days or more and on the Wheaton farm they will be even later.

Down in the woods on spots where the sun breaks through the trees the ground in many places is covered with colorful carpets of wild flower blossoms. Out in many of the open fields the ground is sprinkled with yellow heads of dandelion plants. Dense waving bluegrass gives a dark green background for giant "bouquets" formed by the newly opened blossoms on trees and shrubs.

Experimental Crops.

Several acres of land to be used in trying out rare and unusual crops on a plot and field test basis this year are now being prepared for planting soon on the Wheaton farm. All the ground has been thoroughly limed and fertilized. Late in April the plots and test field were plowed to a depth of at least eight inches. The field was plowed with a tractor drawn two-bottom 14 inch gang. The ground was leveled by a section of a spring-toothed harrow drawn immediately back of the gang. A week after the ground was plowed it was double disked, and then harrowed with a spike tooth harrow.

The test ground has been given its final working and is ready for the drill and planter. Yesterday the ground was gone over with a tandem disk and a spring-toothed harrow, both drawn by a big tractor. The purpose of this operation was to cut the weeds with the disks and scratch the old and new vegetation out with the spring-toothed harrow. After harrowing with a four section spike tooth harrow drawn by two teams the ground is in ideal condition for planting.

The manager of the farm follows this same general plan of preparing his seed bed for the planting of all crops grown on the farm, including corn, small grain, timothy, bluegrass, and legumes. He finds the thorough preparation of the seed bed one of the most effective means of keeping weeds under control.

Steers to Market.

Twenty-seven more white faces from the herd of more than 400 steers which have been on feed at the Yorkville farm during the last year were sold on the Chicago market yesterday. They weighed an average of 961 pounds and brought $8.85 a hundred pounds. The transportation cost $39.79 and the charges after the steers reached the stockyards totaled $40.20.

ARTHUR F. TOWNE LEAVES $500,000 TO HIS DAUGHTER

Estates of $50,000 Each Left by Two Widows.

The will of Attorney Arthur F. Towne, disposing of an estate of $500,000, was filed for probate yesterday. Mrs. Warren Buckley, 1565 Asbury avenue, Evanston, a daughter, will receive $5,000 outright and the income from a trust fund to be established with the balance of the estate after small bequests to two former employés.

Upon Mrs. Buckley's death the income is to be divided among her five children until they reach their majority, when they will receive the principal of the estate.

Co-executors are Named.

Mr. Towne, who lived at 1500 Asbury avenue, Evanston, died April 21. He was 82 years old. The Northern Trust company was named co-executor of his estate with Mrs. Buckley.

Mrs. Charlotte T. Kaplan, who died March 17, left a $50,000 estate as a trust fund for five of her six children, according to terms of her will admitted to probate. Mrs. Kaplan was the widow of Abraham Kaplan, who operated a drygoods store in La Porte, Ind.

One son, Dr. David Kaplan, 340 South Maple street, Oak Park, will not share in the trust fund, although he was named with his brothers and sisters to receive a small outright bequest. Mrs. Kaplan, who was 64 years old, lived at 825 East 53d street.

Widow Leaves $50,000.

Letters of administration for the $50,000 estate of Mrs. Mary E. S. Barker, widow of Edwin Barker, a pioneer Chicago merchant, were issued yesterday to Mrs. Adele S. North, 7137 Normal avenue, a niece.

Mrs. Barker died April 26 in her home at 426 West 61st place. Mrs. North and a nephew, Chester S. Simons, 407 Addison road, Riverside, will share the estate.

HOUSE PAUSES IN TRIBUTE TO LATE SPEAKER CANNON

Washington, D. C., May 7.—(AP)—The house paused for an hour in its legislative duties today to honor the memory of the late Joseph G. [Uncle Joe] Cannon, four times speaker of the house and for 46 years a member. It was the 100th anniversary of his birth.

Both Democrats and Republicans joined in the eulogies after Representative Sabath [Dem., Ill.], dean of the house, had praised Cannon as "one of the most remarkable men of the age."

He recalled Cannon's "resourcefulness" in holding the house in session for three days and two nights in a stirring battle in 1910 when Democrats and some Republicans were attempting to shear the speaker of some of his powers and liberalize house rules.

Likening Cannon to Abraham Lincoln, Republican Leader Snell of New York said that "courage dominated his character." Cannon, he said, for four decades wielded a greater influence on legislation than any other man in congress.

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

"Some of These Days," Sophie Tucker has been singing for years. Today is THE day. Sophie will make her bow as a band leader in big league circles tonight at the Morrison hotel with W-G-N and Mutual carrying her music to radio listeners. With Jack Fulton Jr., tenor; Dale Sherman, songstress, and Ted Shapiro assisting her the first Tucker show, which is to be "brighter than the sun," will be aired from 11:30 to midnight.

Jack Hylton will be on hand among other radio notables to welcome her. He and Sophie are bound to recall their last engagement together—a royal command performance in 1934 at the Palladium theater in London before King George, Queen Mary, and the duke and duchess of York.

Jack introduced Sophie as "the first and last of the red hot mammas," and his orchestra played for her. "I was a little doubtful about that red hot mamma business and how the queen would react," Jack admitted. "But the queen took it in good grace and Sophie went over tremendously with the royal family."

Now Sophie wants to forget the sobriquet. She feels it has a sort of ominous note about it—like "The Last Days of Pompeii," perhaps. Well, if she wants a new title our nomination is, "The Schumann-Heink of Hi-De-Ho!"

Hylton leaves W-G-N and the Drake tomorrow night and will play a theater engagement in Milwaukee next week; then will play other vaudeville dates until June 28, when he sails for England to direct his English band for the summer at the Palladium. He will put on an "American radio show" for the benefit of Britons. His hosiery sponsor will stay on NBC during the summer months with another show yet to be chosen. Hylton will return to this show, first week in September.

Amos 'n' Andy will fly back to Chicago from Denver tomorrow. They have been vacationing and playing theaters in the west for several months. Bill Hay, who has been announcing them for a decade, has been replaced, temporarily at least, by Basil Loughrane.

Gabriel Heatter, news commentator, will be aboard the Queen Mary during its maiden voyage and will be heard over W-G-N-Mutual. . . . Vincent Lopez will play over W-G-N-MBS from Boston beginning next week and Wayne King's sustaining programs will be aired on the same net from the Waldorf Astoria in New York beginning June 2. . . . Henry Weber, W-G-N musical director, is to return Tuesday from a vacation in Bermuda.

Duke Ellington's orchestra is to open at the Congress hotel and over NBC tonight, broadcasting over WMAQ at 10:30 p. m. Glen Gray's and Carl Ravazza's orchestras will salute Ellington and he will do some playing himself . . . NBC now reports that those joint radio auditions and movie tryouts are available only at the New York office. So don't be calling up the local headquarters asking for appointments. . . . Dick Powell's twice scheduled return to Hollywood hotel has again been postponed. He was to have been back tonight but the doctor again said no.

Prof. Lawrence Martin of the Medill School of Journalism and Curtis D. MacDougall, Evanston editor, are to discuss the freedom of the press on the Northwestern Reviewing stand program on W-G-N at 10 a. m. Sunday. . . . Benny Rubin is to replace Ray Perkins as master of ceremonies on the National Amateur hour on Mutual beginning May 31.

WARNS ILLEGAL LEVIES MAY TIE UP TAX REVENUE

Rees Asks Law to Have Court O. K. Bills.

John O. Rees, director of the committee on public expenditures, predicted yesterday that an increasing number of objections to illegal levies by taxpayers will paralyze the county collector's office unless some means is found of disposing of objections before tax bills are sent out.

Mr. Rees' organization is working for enactment by the legislature of laws to give the County court the power to pass on the legality of tax rates before bills are mailed. His proposal for such legislation was placed before a subcommittee of the county board yesterday and several county officials expressed approval of the measure. It was referred to the legislative committee of the board for further consideration.

Expects Group Contests.

The present system of making tax objections, requiring action by individual property owners after taxes are billed, has resulted in real discrimination against the rank and file of the taxpayers in recent years, Mr. Rees said. In the future, he added, it may be expected that the small taxpayers will organize through group action to contest illegal levies. Such a situation, he said, would result in millions of clerical changes in the tax books and a clogging of the whole tax machinery.

Mr. Rees asserted that the discrimination against the small taxpayer can be ended by the proposed legislation. His organization has requested Gov. Horner to include the proposed measures in his next call for a special session of the legislature.

Large Levies Reduced.

As an example of how large taxpayers have benefited from objections in past years, while the average taxpayer has been meeting his full bill, Mr. Rees took figures from the tax ledgers on downtown property in 1931 and 1930. One list of property owners from the 1931 ledger whose total bills amounted to $7,567,209 gained reductions of $437,638, he said. The 1930 ledger showed reductions totaling $453,745 on bills aggregating $8,013,000 for these property owners.

He made the following tabulation of five individual tax bills in each of the two years:

	Total tax bill.	Reduction won on illegal levies.
1	$179,449	$10,254
2	356,345	27,255
3	185,720	10,613
4	224,745	12,842
5	145,133	8,293
1930.
1	$308,805	$17,827
2	767,998	39,681
3	314,080	14,969
4	228,008	12,068
5	217,422	11,810

An examination of the 1934 tax ledgers shows that the number of tax objections has increased to the point where approximately one-half of all payments for that year have been made under protest.

LEADER OUSTED, CHOIR WILL NOT SING UNTIL FALL

Songsters Hold Indignation Meeting at Church.

The choir of the Austin Methodist Episcopal church, 5602 Race avenue, last night voted to sing no more until Sept. 1.

The action of the choristers followed the forced resignation on April 27 of Herman F. Larson, pastor's assistant and director of music. The church of which Larson has been music director for four years is the largest Methodist congregation in Chicago.

The meeting of the choir last night was intended to be its weekly rehersal. Only a few members went to reherse. Instead, they went to "demand an explanation" of the removal of Mr. Larson—who on weekdays is a radio baritone. They didn't get the explanation, and so, after two hours of animated debate, they voted to discontinue their music until September.

Resignation Forced by Board.

Larson's resignation, it was learned, was voted at the quarterly conference of the church's official board. He resigned, as requested, the following day, but notice of his retirement was not given officially until last Sunday morning's services in the church.

The report then given, according tc members of the choir, was that Mr. Larson had been wilfully negligent by failing to provide an organist for the afternoon service on Easter Sunday, although aware that the regular organist could not be present.

It was this charge that the choir members set out to investigate last night. As a starter they called in E H. Stultkin, chairman of the church's music committee, whose report to the quarterly conference was said to have influenced the resignation.

It Was Like This.

"The conference felt that Mr. Larson should have seen that an organist was there for the Easter afternoon service," Mr. Stultki began.

"Who else knew the organist couldn't be there?" he was asked.

"I don't know," Mr. Stultkin said.

"You did, didn't you?" demanded a choir member.

"Well, not for certain."

"The organist told me she told you," another said.

"Well," said Mr. Stultkin. "Well—after all, the organist matter was felt by the conference to be only one item against Mr. ——"

"The only item!" came a chorus of protests.

The Organists' Version.

"I wonder," interposed Miss Florence Boydston, the organist, "if I could make a little speech, as I seem to be the matter of discussion. Two weeks before Easter I told Mr. Larson, Mr. Stultkin, and Dr. Klontz [the Rev. Arthur D. Klontz, pastor] that I wouldn't be able to play that afternoon. I've been organist here eight years, and that is only the second time I asked to be excused. I did it because of my health."

"That's right, Miss Boydston," said Mr. Stultkin, "quite right. But personally I feel that the quarterly conference felt that Mr. Larson was responsible. . . ."

About the Music Committee.

"By the way," demanded a girl chorister, "how many are there on the music committee?"

"Well," said Mr. Stultkin, "just one, now. I'm the only one left. The others resigned."

Dr. Klontz, when asked by a reporter about the resignation of Mr. Larson, was smilingly succinct.

"Just say this," he directed, "in a small, neat paragraph. Say that Herman F. Larsen has resigned as pastor's assistant and choir director of the Austin Methodist Episcopal church. I think that is a proper statement that we would care to see in print. That is sufficient."

Mr. Larson Is Reticent.

Mr. Larson, found in his home at 427 Lenox avenue, Oak Park, admitted that his resignation had been requested, but at first refused to discuss the matter on grounds that it would be "un-Christian."

"The whole trouble was just misunderstanding," he said. "The thing I'm worried about is not the fact that I'm out of a job but that it has caused hard feelings.

"I'm more interested in seeing the cause of religion go ahead than in seeing my own cause aired. I would never say anything against the pastor and I wouldn't expect him to say anything against me."

Quotes Coughlin Saying He Helps Roosevelt Pen Talk

Columbus, O., May 7.—(AP)—Edward A. Hayes of Illinois, manager of the Frank Knox presidential campaign, said in the course of a political address tonight that the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin "told me that he and Raymond Moley wrote the inaugural speech of President Roosevelt."

He spoke at a Republican rally at which other speakers included John Hamilton, manager of a movement in favor of Gov. Landon and Robert A. Taft, Cincinnati attorney who is Ohio's "favorite sun "candidate.

NOTED MEXICAN ARCHBISHOP ILL; GIVEN LAST RITES

MEXICO CITY, May 7.—(AP)—Archbishop Pascual Diaz, for many years a central figure in the country's conflict between church and state, was reported seriously ill tonight. He has been suffering from liver and intestinal ailments for the last seven weeks.

At the archbishop's own request, Bishop Maximino Ruiz administered extreme unction. The 59 year old church official was described as very weak although still conscious.

His illness began at San Antonio, Tex., where he was confined for some time in a hospital. Since he returned to Mexico City he has remained at home under the care of his personal physician, Dr. Luis Lopez Hermosa. One of the priests watching at his bedside reported tonight he had taken some light nourishment and was sleeping quietly.

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

THE INSTANT YOU STEP ON THE STARTER—over 100 metal parts inside your motor start moving. Unless your oil flows quickly—instantly—to all these vital spots, the parts run "dry" of oil and serious wear results!

IT IS EASY TO MAKE A "TOUGH" OIL merely for high speeds and high heat—or a FAST-FLOWING oil merely for quick starting. The problem has been to combine BOTH of these important qualities in the same oil.

One Start can cause more engine wear than a 2-mile-a-minute Grind

This new Fast-Flowing Oil reduces strain of today's "Stop-and-Go" driving

THE average driver starts his engine over 3500 times a year!

The "strain" of starting is far greater than before. Pistons travel up and down in cylinders twice as fast . . . separated from the cylinders by only 1/2000 of an inch.

The starting period, automotive engineers say, can cause approximately three-fourths of engine wear.

To meet this new driving problem, Shell engineers have developed a new oil at a cost of $3,000,000.

The new Golden Shell Oil is FAST-FLOWING, yet TOUGH.

It flows instantly in starting—even on the coldest days. Yet under intense motor heat, the new Golden Shell holds its body and resists breaking down into sludge and carbon!

It is possible for the recommended grade of the new Golden Shell to:

1. Add a year to the life of your engine!

2. SAVE you up to 50% of your engine repairs. (Many repairs can cost from $10 to $100.)

3. SAVE you a gallon of gasoline in every tankful. (The "drag" of an oil that is too heavy can waste over 5% of your power.)

The new Golden Shell Motor Oil is on sale today at over 30,000 neighborly Shell stations from Coast to Coast.

BY MARY MEADE.

A friend recently initiated us into the joys of almond coffee puffs, and we can't resist back fence swapping the news with you. Here's what the puffs are: Rich, tender, and steaming hot sweet buns, full of the pleasant crunch of almonds and topped with more of the same, toasty brown and sugary.

With afternoon coffee, for the special Sunday breakfast, or with almost any meal, these coffee puffs are due for a wildly enthusiastic welcome. Easy to make, too. In fact, they may prove to be exactly the raised bread you'll want to make often this summer to vary the quick breads and commercially baked treats that make up your bread schedule.

Without the almonds this same rich dough makes a basis for delightful luncheon rolls, sugary pecan rolls, orange rolls, or fancy twists and rosebuds. Begin with the almond puff version and then delight in your own variations.

Almond Coffee Puffs.

- ¼ cup shortening
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 2 eggs
- 1 cake yeast
- 3 tablespoons lukewarm water
- ½ cup milk
- 2 cups flour
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1 cup almonds
- 4 tablespoons sugar

Cream the shortening and one tablespoon of sugar thoroughly. Drop in the unbeaten eggs, one at a time, and beat until creamy. Crumble the yeast into lukewarm water and, when dissolved, stir in the milk which has been scalded and cooled to lukewarm. Beat into the first mixture, along with the sifted flour and salt. Beat vigorously until very smooth. Set aside to rise and, when doubled in bulk, beat in one-half cup of almonds, blanched and halved. Fill greased muffin pans two-thirds full, and sprinkle with sugar and remaining almond halves. When again doubled in bulk, bake in a moderately hot oven, 375 degrees F., for 15 to 20 minutes.

"Modern Meat Lore," a 52 page booklet containing the most up-to-date information on meat cookery methods, also marketing tips and many delightful recipes for meat dishes, is on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn and Tribune Tower, for 20 cents. Drops of Glycerin Help Cake Frosting to Adhere

A small amount of glycerin added to cake frosting will make it adhere better and keep it from becoming dry and brittle. If frostings are beaten too stiff, just add a small amount of glycerin a little at a time and continue beating until the frosting is back to working condition again.

AVOID LETTING WATER BOIL IN COOKING EGGS

When cooking eggs in water never permit the water to boil. If you would have a tender, jelly-like white keep the water at the simmering temperature. For hard cooked eggs, keep them simmering for 15 to 20 minutes, then cool them quickly in cold water.

Fried eggs are digested more easily if the following procedure is followed: Slip egg into a skillet with a little hot fat, add a few drops of hot water, cover the pan closely, and steam over a low fire until the egg has a delicate white coating.

Tibetan Waters Cloud Up Against False Entries.

NEW DELHI, India, May 7.—(AP)—The hunt for the new Dalai Lama of Tibet has now reduced the field of candidates to six babies, who were tested by a sacred lake supposed to mirror the truthful but to ripple and cloud against the false.

These half dozen "reincarnation" claimants are babies 3 years old, supposedly born the instant the old Dalai Lama died in 1933. They have been taken to the Potaa palace, at Lhasa, the residence of Tibet's rulers, after their trial by the "magic" lake.

Spend Several Days Before Buddha.

At the palace the six babies spent several days before an image of the Buddha while prayers were chanted in Pali, the religious language of the Tibetan priests. A huge prayer wheel spun at their side while the prayers were going on.

Ultimately, the infants will go to the great council chamber, where the grand lamas, seated on golden tables, will draw lots for the final choice. The selected child then will be annointed, bathed in water from the Ganges, and presented with gifts and adored.

One of the chief gifts will be 7,000 year old eggs—or eggs supposed to be that old.

Mother Gets Treasure.

The child's mother, after taking a last look at her son, will be blindfolded and taken to the treasure vault of the lamas where she will be allowed to remove as much gold and jewels as she can carry. Thenceforth she will be regarded as a member of the nobility, and her child the living Buddha.

The Dalai Lama is the supreme religious ruler of Tibet and also has civil authority.

His followers believe that at death his spirit enters the person of an infant, and higher lamas follow the doctrin of reincarnation in choosing a new Dalai Lama.

Tibet nominally is a part of China but is under British overlordship.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Can't Fool Teacher

COOLIDGE ITEMS BRING IN $1,400 AT AUCTION SALE

Northampton, Mass., May 7.—(AP)—The household furnishings of former President Calvin Coolidge brought slightly more than $1,400 to his widow at public auction here today.

Although Auctioneer George H. Bean refused to make public the total amount grossed, an unofficial compilation of the individual sales disclosed the aggregate.

Mrs. Margaret C. Little of Geneva, Ill., descendant of Charity and James Harrington, first settlers in that midwestern town, came here just for the auction.

For $17 she purchased the desk used by Coolidge in 1912 while mayor of Northampton. Sorely puzzled, Mrs. Little said she came prepared to pay much more.

"You see," she explained, "we want to use it when our town—Geneva—celebrates its hundredth birthday in June and July of this year. I'm chairman of the historical society there, but, for the life of me, I can't understand why you easterners let things go so cheaply. We place a much higher value on them out west."

Many of the larger pieces were bought by Lewis N. Wiggins, proprietor of Hotel Northampton. He plans, he said, to open a Calvin Coolidge memorial room at the hotel.

Groups Favor Proposal to Fix Residential Standards

A proposed ordinance for creation of a city board with authority to fix standards for residential structures and order their demolition or reconstruction was approved yesterday in resolutions adopted by the Chicago Woman's club and the Chicago District Council of Carpenters. The resolutions praised the proposal as a step in assuring decent housing standards and eradicating fire hazards. The ordinance was introduced in the city council on Wednesday by Ald. J. M. Arvey [24th].

THE 'PRODUCTION WORKER' STUDIED BY MIND EXPERT

Passing Is Seen in New Machine Age.

St. Louis, Mo., May 7.—(AP)—The start of another industrial revolution, sensed through study of higher types of feeble minded who are the first to be affected, was reported to the American Psychiatric association here today.

The revolution, described by James S. Plant, N. D., director of Essex county juvenile clinic work, Newark, N. J., is the start of a change in machines to do away with deadly monotony. It is due, he said, to the coming of "maintenance machines," which themselves do the monotonous manual feats and require operation by workers of a superior type of intelligence.

Directly affected he said are types of feeble minded who have been up to the time of the depression doing "a very fair proportion of the world's work." These men excelled at the "monotonous" work, which Dr. Plant calls "repetitive."

Well Equipped for Tasks.

"The high grade feeble minded," he said, "are well equipped to perform repetitive tasks. There is no real statistical evidence as to the preeminence of the group, but there is considerable folklore and some clinical data in support of the contention that in repetitive tasks the feeble minded excel those of higher intelligence.

"We have come to recognize that a very fair proportion of the world's work is done happily and efficiently by the higher grades of the feebleminded. We have long since found that the 'production worker' is the life blood of industry, and that with proper training the high grade mental defective makes the very best of the production workers.

"The depression has increased the difficulty of employment, but we have been sure that as the wheels of industry spin again the feeble-minded no longer will be on the rolls of relief organizations.

"Industry has gladly absorbed the feeble-minded as 'production' workers, but industry cannot absorb this group as 'maintenance' workers.

"This paper has nothing to do with the goodness or badness of the situation. Nor does it call you to issue a fiat against this change in industry. It suspects anyway that change does not bother the human race—but only the speed with which the change comes.

"We have been and still are in a period unusually propitious for the social adjustment of the feebleminded who make, by and large, excellent production workers."

The sad results, five years afterward, of the "jake leg paralysis" which swept many communities in 1930 due to drinking adulterated Jamaica ginger, was reported by William M. Bevis, M. D., of Veterans' administration facility, Mountain Home, Tenn. Total reported cases were 4,837. Some died.

But he said it was predicted that many would recover full use of limbs. The prophecy failed.

HOSPITALS WARNED TO REDUCE COSTS TO FIT PATIENT'S PURSE

Dr. Robert C. Buerki, president of the American Hospital association, warned hospital executives yesterday against killing the goose "that would lay the golden egg." He spoke before a group session of the Tristate Hospital assembly in the Hotel Sherman.

"We can't let our cost of operation run beyond the paying ability of the average individual," Dr. Buerki said. "The one reason for our existence is the patient. If you raise your standards beyond the place where the average patient can meet the situation you have taken hospitalization away from the people we are trying to serve.

"I think that standards can run away from the practical application. You don't want to add to them unless you can enforce them and unless you are sure they will serve the patient without draining his pocketbook."

The Rev. Michael J. O'Connell, president of De Paul university, was the principal speaker at the assembly banquet last night. He expressed satisfaction in the thought "that good medicine and good surgery have become increasingly reasonable and increasingly available."

ARE you perhaps being penny-wise and pound-foolish about the soap chips you buy? If so, this advertisement may be the means of saving a considerable amount of money for you.

Cheap soaps usually make skimpy suds that simply won't get clothes clean unless you rub and rub. And it is this constant rubbing which wears out clothes—actually robs you of months of service you have every right to expect.

And the use of cheap soap chips is such a needless risk, with American Family Flakes at your command. Just read what these superb flakes do:

First, American Family Flakes' "double suds" float out grimiest dirt—without hard rubbing.

Second, American Family Flakes provide fastest washing with utmost safety to clothes because they depend on rich "double suds" instead of harmful chemicals.

Third, American Family Flakes leave the wash fresh and clean—with colored fabrics bright—and linens and white goods spotlessly white.

For ninety years American Family has demonstrated that it saves time, saves work and, most important, SAVES CLOTHES. That is why more Chicago women use American Family than any other brand. You really can't afford to use cheap, harsh soaps that wear out clothes all too soon, and which require more soap to do the job. Try American Family Flakes your next wash-day—and note the difference.

And for dishwashing, you'll find American Family Flakes unexcelled—and as good for your hands as the finest toilet soap.

OUR OWN American Family SOAP

Her Husband's Past

By Elizabeth York Miller

SYNOPSIS.

Nell Martin elopes to London with Eric Cameron, an older divorced man, who had been visiting in her home town Wellsport, ignoring her parents' pleas to marry Dick Holmes, her childhood sweetheart. On their honeymoon Nell learns Eric has two children, Meg, 17, and Robin, 16; that she must make her home with them and with Mrs. Beaumont, the mother of Hilda, his first wife. Hilda has married again. Her children believe her dead. From the first a feud develops between Nell and granny. Nell is tortured with constant reminders of Hilda. Nell returns to Wellsport with her ready made family, where Eric has an engineering job. Granny becomes friendly with Mabel Weston, hotel clerk and town gossip. Mabel arranges to have Dick Holmes invite her and Meg sailing one afternoon. Granny accompanies them to the boat. Nell is at home alone when a solicitor's clerk calls, with news that Hilda's husband had died.

INSTALMENT XVII.

A SECRET SETTLEMENT.

There was a little silence; then Mr. Shyner said: "Of course you wouldn't know that when he died his money all went back to his family."

"I tell you, I know nothing and neither does my husband. We—we don't want to know anything about the Dellapannas."

There was a ring of despair in her voice which must have been very apparent to Mr. Morris Shyner. He looked down at his boots. There was another silence which Nell broke this time.

"What does Mrs. Dellapanna want of my husband? She has no claim on him. It would only make him very unhappy if she tried to see him."

"Ah!" Mr. Shyner exclaimed mediatively.

"Her children can mean nothing to her. She ran away and left them," Nell argued.

She felt as though she was fighting elusive shadows.

The solicitor's clerk shook his head sadly and clicked his tongue. "T'ch-t'ch! A pity all around."

"But of course if she is destitute. . . ." Nell was almost at the end of her tether now.

"That's it—destitute," murmured Mr. Shyner. "The very word."

"Why doesn't she go back to the stage?"

"Well may you ask that. It's not so easily done."

"Is she in London? Is she likely to come here?"

"Well . . . . it might be prevented," the little man said. He pursed his lips and again studied that fly on the ceiling.

"You mean it could be prevented by giving her money?"

"I wouldn't go so far as to say that. Still . . . any one ought to be able to get along on a matter of three or four pounds a week, even if they have been used to plenty before."

"I might manage three pounds," Nell said, "but four would be out of the question. I don't know how I'd even be able to pay out three pounds regularly every week, but I could try. Only, I shouldn't care to have my husband worried about it."

"I twig. You'd rather Mr. Cameron didn't know. This would be just between you and me."

"For his sake—for everybody's sake—I don't see that it would do any good at all for him to know. He's got some very important work on hand here with the new bridge and the docks they are going to be built at Tewburry. Even if he did know, he couldn't give Mrs. Dellapanna any more than I said. He simply hasn't got it. I should have to ask my parents to help me a little, and if Mr. Cameron knew, he wouldn't let me go to them."

"It might be managed," said Mr. Shyner, nursing the problem earnestly.

"But I would make a stipulation—" Nell said. "If I pay this money, Mrs. Dellapanna isn't to come near us—she isn't to communicate with my husband nor—nor with her children. I have some rights, Mr. Shyner."

"Quite. O, I see that, Mrs. Cameron. Well then, how shall we arrange it?"

She went over to a little desk and opening a drawer counted out some bank notes. It happened that she had the exact amount.

"Today is Thursday," she said. "Here's three pounds, and on every Thursday—if I can possibly keep it up—I'll send you the same. Shall I send it to your office address, Mr. Shyner?"

"O yes, quite. And I'll send you Mrs. Dellapanna's receipt."

Nell stood indecisive.

"No, I'd rather you didn't. I'll register the money. A receipt won't be necessary. If you are obliged to write to me at any time, I'd like you to address me in care of my father. I'll write it down for you. You see, I don't want to run any risks. It would upset my husband terribly if he got to know about this, and if by any chance he does get to know, please tell Mrs. Dellapanna that I will stop sending the money. I mean—if she bothers him personally."

"O, I understand, Mrs. Cameron. Of course I can't say for certain, but I think you may take it from me that everything will be hunky-dory. And now perhaps I'd better be going. There's an old lady coming up the path. A visitor, perhaps."

Nell clapped a hand to her mouth. It was Mrs. Beaumont of course.

She took Mr. Shyner by the arm and propelled him toward the kitchen premises.

"I'm awfully sorry, but do you mind going out the back way? I'd rather you didn't meet anybody. There's a little gate at the bottom of the garden. It leads to a lane that will bring you out into the station road, and you can catch a train to London in about half an hour. It doesn't stop anywhere but at Tewbury Junction."

"Very convenient, madam. Certainly I don't mind. Well, good day to you, and the best of luck."

"Thank you," faltered Nell.

She watched him scuttling down the garden path, the gate clicked and then the hedge hid all but his bobbing bowler.

Finally that disappeared, too.

When she hurried through to the front of the house again she found Mrs. Beaumont in the drawing room suspiciously examining a pair of yellow chamois gloves.

"Looks as if you'd had company whilst we were out," she said. "A gentleman, evidently."

Nell was flustered out of her wits. If Mr. Shyner should take it into his head to come back for those gloves . . . .!

She hesitated, uncertain whether to feign total ignorance of how they happened to be lying on the little table by the chair where the solicitor's clerk had been sitting, or whether to make up a tale about some one who had called trying to sell something.

"Well, who was it—why don't you say something, Nellie? Was it your young friend Dick Holmes, by any chance? Was that why he never turned up to keep his engagement with Meg and Mabel?"

"Didn't he?" Nell asked, foolishly bemused by the turn events were taking. "O, no, it was just a—a man. A stranger selling things."

"Is that a fact? A perfect stranger!" granny remarked skeptically. "And you alone in the house and let him in? There he is now, if I'm not mistaken—'a perfect stranger' come back for his gloves no doubt. Or perhaps to sell more things."

Nell's heart leapt into her throat. But it wasn't a stranger after all. It was only Dick Holmes, hurrying up the garden path with a very worried look on his face. Dick had never been to the house before. Nell had scarcely seen him since she had come back to Wellsport, except for an occasional chance meeting in the street.

"Well, why don't you let him in?" said granny.

Nell went to the door, with Mrs. Beaumont following a few steps behind her.

Dick was a little breathless.

"I say, Nell, I'm awfully sorry, but—"

"If you came back for your gloves, Mr. Holmes—" granny interrupted—"here they are."

"I d—don't know what you mean," Dick stammered, backing away and refusing the limp objects.

"Come in, Dick. Mrs. Beaumont thinks you were here this afternoon and left that pair of gloves behind you," Nell said with a nervous smile. "I've told her you weren't, but she isn't convinced."

TRIBUNE RECIPES

BUTTERSCOTCH REFRIGERATOR COOKIES.

1 cup butter
2 cups medium brown sugar
2 eggs, beaten
3 cups flour, approximately 1 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon cream of tartar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup chopped nut meats

Cream the butter and brown sugar, then beat in the eggs and vanilla. Blend thoroughly. Sift the flour, salt, soda, and cream of tartar together and mix in the nut meats. Add this to the creamed mixture, working it in gradually. The dough should be very stiff. Work it into a long roll. Wrap in waxed paper and chill over night or until needed. Slice paper-thin cookies off the roll and bake on a sheet in a hot oven.

HUNGARIAN GOULASH.

½ pound beef
½ pound pork
2 pig kidneys
4 tablespoons butter
1 green pepper
2 onions
6 sprigs parsley
1 cup stewed tomatoes
4 raw potatoes
Salt and paprika

Mince the onions and brown them in butter. While these are cooking cut pig kidneys and pork, beef, and veal in one inch cubes and brown with the onion. Remove seeds from green pepper, chop to bits, mince parsley, add tomatoes, and mix with the meat. Pour in enough hot water barely to cover the meat, cover, and simmer slowly for fifty minutes. Peel and dice potatoes, add to the mixture, covering with more water if necessary, season with salt and paprika, and simmer for twenty-five minutes longer.

SWEET SOUR CASSEROLE OF BEEF.

2 pounds beef chuck or brisket.
1 onion, sliced.
1 lemon.
1 bay leaf.
3 tablespoons sugar.
1 cup hot water.
Salt and pepper.
A little dill, if desired.

Have the beef cut into pieces as for stew. Place it in a baking dish. Add the onion, sliced very thin, and the seasoning. Sprinkle sugar and lemon juice or vinegar over the top. Pour hot water over all, cover and let cook in a slow oven [300 degrees F.] until tender, or about two hours.

ORANGE WAFFLES.

2 eggs, well beaten
½ cup sugar
2 teaspoons grated orange rind
1¾ cups flour
2½ teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
⅓ cup orange juice
1 tablespoon lemon juice
½ cup melted butter

Beat together the eggs, sugar, and orange rind. Sift together the flour, baking powder, and salt. Add the dry ingredients to the first mixture alternately with the fruit juices. Then stir in the melted butter. Cook on a hot ungreased waffle iron.

Serve with this orange honey butter spread: Blend two tablespoons of orange juice, six tablespoons of melted butter, and six tablespoons of honey. Add a grating of orange rind and serve without heating.

CHEESE RAMEKINS.

4 tablespoons of grated cheese
⅓ cup of milk
2 egg yolks, beaten
2 tablespoons of butter, melted
4 tablespoons of soft bread, crumed
1-3 teaspoon of mustard
2 egg whites, well beaten
Cayenne and salt to taste

Add the melted butter to the milk and beaten egg yolks, then the cheese, bread, and mustard, salt, and cayenne. Fold in the beaten whites of eggs last, pour the mixture into a buttered casserole, and bake slowly in an oven heated to 325 degrees F., until the mixture is set and its top is brown.

DR. HOLT URGES COLLEGES TEACH FARM AGITATION

The introduction of "social agitator courses" in America's land grant colleges was advocated by Dr. Arthur E. Holt, professor of social ethics at the University of Chicago, in a talk before members of the Agricultural club at a luncheon in the Hotel La Salle yesterday. He thinks there is need for teaching agricultural students how to tell the farmer's side of the economic story.

Dr. Holt discussed the question of "Selling Agriculture to the City." He said he did not condone the strike method but indicated that he favored it "where people are too dumb to understand."

It is his opinion, he said, that some good came from the late Milo Reno's farmers' holiday movement and Chicago's milk strikes.

LARGE SUPPLIES REDUCE PRICES OF FRESH FOODS

Meats Decline; Vegetable Costs Lowered.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

An abundant supply of fresh food products coming in from new territory during the last few days is having a tendency to press retail prices downward. THE TRIBUNE'S weekly survey of stores and shops indicates that the reduction is generally slight on most items of food.

The long list of reduced foods includes products on the green grocers' counters, many on staple shelves and in the butcher shops. Prices have been cut on a fair sized list of fresh fruits and vegetables.

Coffee is about 1 cent a pound lower with some merchants featuring the lower grades while others are offering their best grades at reduced prices.

Strawberry Price Down.

Throughout the city and suburban shopping districts today and tomorrow housewives will find that most merchants have lowered their prices slightly on strawberries, cooking apples, radishes, green beans, new potatoes and fresh grapes. Several stores have lowered their prices on various brands of flour and ten pound sacks of sugar. Many stores that have been featuring cane sugar in bulk at several cents under the sugar put up in cloth bags have raised their prices this week.

Many foods that were reduced in price last week will be kept on the bargain counters during the next two days. With fresh products coming in in increasing amounts many retailers are continuing to offer special bargain sales on canned goods at substantially lower prices. Fresh pineapple is being offered at prices that are considered reasonable. Bananas and cabbage are among the few products that are higher this week than last.

Butchers are having difficulty stocking their bargain counters with fresh meat cuts. Most shops are featuring veal and the lower grade cuts of steaks. Frying chickens are about 2 cents a pound lower than last week. Several kinds of fresh fish, including halibut, perch, trout, and whitefish, are lower than a week ago. The lower priced brands of bacon are off about 8 cents a pound in many stores.

Expect Meat Price Reduction.

Beef rib roasts, lamb chops, pork loin roasts, pork spare ribs, and round steaks are higher in most shops than a week ago.

Meat prices generally are expected to go lower within the next few days. The recent warm weather has brought about the usual consumer reaction to purchasing meats, with the result that retail sales have been slowed up and prices of cattle, hogs, and lambs, and wholesale cuts of beef, pork, and lamb have declined.

Farmers were paid 25 to 50 cents a hundred pounds less for the better grades of beef steers at Union stockyards this week than last, and prices on the lower quality beef animals remained steady. Wholesale beef cuts dropped as much as 50 cents a hundred pounds. Live lambs brought 25 to 75 cents a hundredweight less than last week, with dressed lamb carcasses selling about $1 a hundred lower. Live hog prices declined 40 to 60 cents a hundred during the week, and wholesale pork cuts dropped 50 cents to $1 a hundred pounds, according to official market reporters.

Fresh Vegetables Lower.

Wholesale prices of many kinds of fresh vegetables have declined since last week, with shipments increasing from territories nearer Chicago. Included in the lower price list are cabbage, asparagus, carrots, cauliflower, cucumbers, head lettuce, onions, rhubarb, potatoes, and cantaloupes. Illinois gardens, some of them within less than 100 miles of Chicago, now are furnishing a large portion of the rhubarb, asparagus, and spring greens reaching the market here.

Cherries from West Coast.

Most wholesale receipts of cabbage now are coming from Louisiana, Georgia, Mississippi, and South Carolina. Some still are being shipped from Texas.

The first truckload of Tennessee strawberries arrived this week. Mississippi, North Carolina, and Arkansas also are shipping strawberries, but the bulk of the crop still is coming from Louisiana. Wholesale prices are declining. Shipments of fresh cucumbers from Florida and Texas are increasing.

Fresh cherries and cantaloupes from California now are reaching the Chicago market in carload lots. They are available in many retail stores. Prices on both are declining, although they still are considered high. Mustard, turnip tops, and other kinds of fresh spring greens are being shipped from many of the southern states and parts of Illinois.

NEW ICE CREAM FREEZER WORKS IN REFRIGERATOR

No Turning or Stirring with This One.

BY MONICA ADLARD.

There's a thrill coming to you when you try one of the newest and trickiest of cookery gadgets—an iceless ice cream freezer. Those who love the flavor of homemade ice cream will find a prize.

The new freezer is equipped with electrically driven paddles which whip the cream as it freezes and stop automatically when the ice cream or sherbert reaches the proper consistency.

It Must Be Stirred.

Homemade ice cream, to be really smooth and free from little ice crystals, needs constant stirring while freezing, as you perhaps have discovered. Stirring contents of a refrigerator tray every fifteen minutes is a task often shirked, with the result that refrigerator frozen ices and ice cream do not have the velvety texture of the old fashioned ice frozen desserts, no matter how much egg white or sirup or gelatine is used to win this result.

The new freezer turns out a product of perfect smoothness and makes quick work of it. After the mixture is stirred up—any of your favorite frozen delicacies—it is poured into an aluminum cylinder equipped with a motor set into the top, and then placed into the freezing unit of the refrigerator which must be at least 10 degrees above zero. The motor plugs into a convenient wall outlet by means of a flat rubber cord which allows the refrigerator door to close snugly.

Is Not High Priced.

When the motor ceases to run, indicating that the mixture is of the proper consistency, the motor and paddles may be removed, and the freezer covered and packed in the freezing unit of the refrigerator to ripen for two or three hours.

Although this freezer cannot be picked up for the price of a pot or a pan, it is comparatively inexpensive and is given a lifelong guarantee by the makers.

This is an ideal gift for the summer bride, and would make a handsome mother's day gift, if you're doing some last minute puzzling on that question. It is made by a well known manufacturer and is sold at several Chicago shops.

Pot Roasts Recommended as Economical Meat Buys

"Housewives will find many good buys in the meat line this week-end. Pot roasts and short ribs are especially recommended as economical buys."

Folks SAY I'M HARD TO PLEASE

There's no doubt I am critical . . . particularly about coffee. And I've had plenty to say about the brands we've been trying to like at our home. They were certainly minus everything I thought coffee should have.

Finally my wife said, "Listen! Why put up with it any longer? I'm going to buy the best coffee regardless of what it costs!" Well, she came home with a can of Hills Bros. Coffee, and let me tell you its flavor was miles ahead of any coffee we had been using. But here is the big surprise I got . . . even though Hills Bros. Coffee was the best we'd tasted, the price was practically the same as most of those other brands we had been buying. Can you beat it?

Infant Should Be Weaned by Slow Process

Year Old Child Doesn't Need Bottle Feeding.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

This is the fourth article in our baby series. It continues the subject of weaning the baby, which was begun in yesterday's column.

Of course, it's easier on both mother and baby if the change is made smoothly from one kind of food and feeding to another. Some mothers manage this intuitively—others have trouble, or feel at a loss when they look forward to weaning—but there is no reason why a mother can't swing this with confidence and common sense, provided her child is well.

The best way to wean is to do it gradually. The usual practice is to start with one feeding of cow's milk daily, the other feedings being breast feedings, gradually increasing the number of bottles until, in a few months, there are no breast feedings. Of course, the doctor's advice must be followed in planning this.

If you start weaning at the seventh or eighth month [some believe in leaving it till the ninth or tenth month] some doctors advise having the baby drink his milk from a cup if he is used to having his water given to him in this way—omitting the usual intermediate step of bottle feeding. It may be harder at first, but is much easier after he has learned, as all the sterilizing of bottles and caps is eliminated. If he is given the bottles instead, however, the use of them should not be continued after he is nine or ten months old—or, at most a year.

The most important thing tc do, in these first crucial days of weaning, if he refuses his bottle [or cup], is not to give in to him. Do not breast feed him. Wait until he is hungry enough to take his milk from the bottle or the cup, and during this time give him more milk mixed with his other foods, cereals, soup, and so forth.

It is important at this stage that he shouldn't be forced to drink his milk, for this naturally sets up a resistance to both food and eating that it may take months to correct. Your doctor's advice will be needed during this time, or if he resists too long.

Often it takes several days for him to accept the new fashion of getting his milk. Naturally, if he has had his water from a bottle [if you are weaning him to the bottle], or his water and other foods from a cup [if you are weaning him to the cup], this transition will be much easier.

This period often is a hard one for the baby, for he is gradually and inexorably being divorced from the close physical tie with, and comforting dependence on his mother, and is taking the first step in independence. So we must be patient and understanding at the same time that we are firm.

Other baby articles will appear in this column from time to time during the spring and summer. Sunday's article will be on "Appetite and Hunger."

Our new leaflet on "The Importance of Breast Feeding" will be sent out on receipt of a large, stamped, self-addressed envelope, with your request.

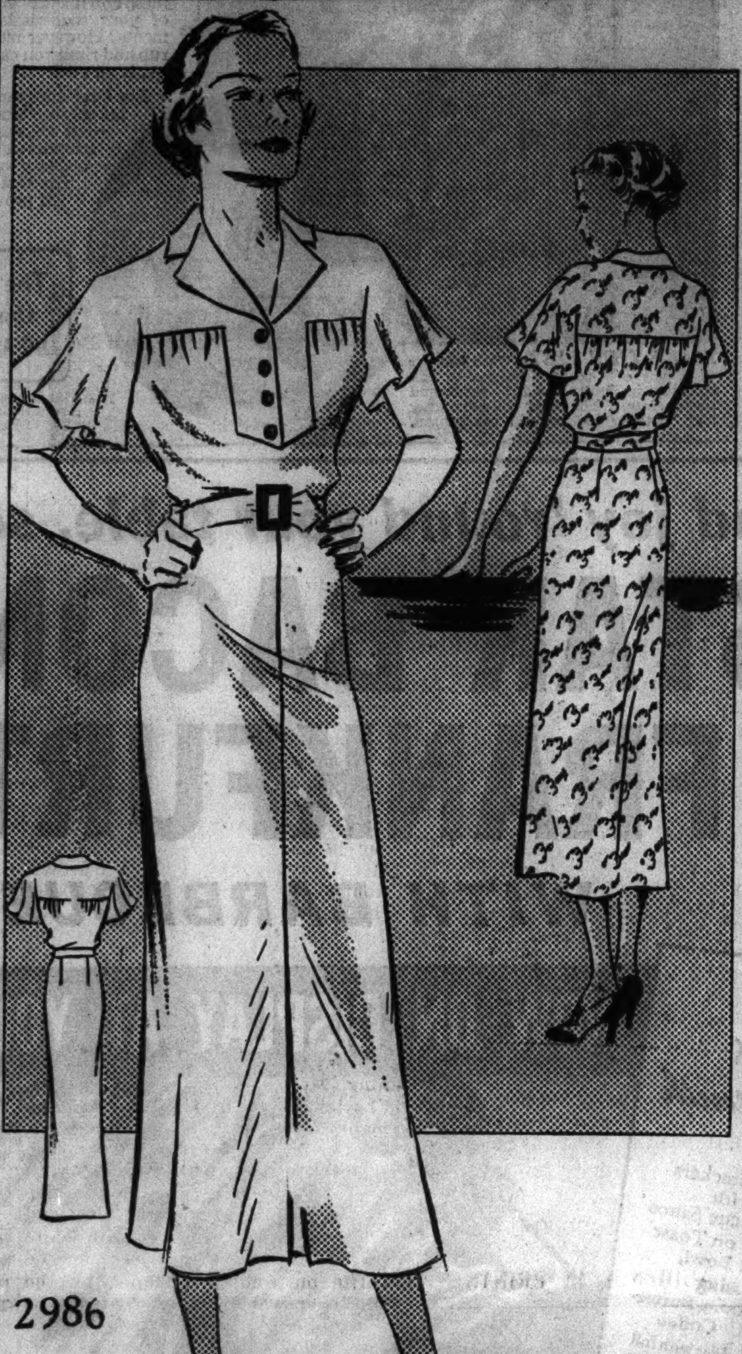
Frock Makes a Lovely Gift



WOMAN'S AND MISS' FROCK.

Would you like a genuinely novel idea for a birthday gift for your mother or aunt? You don't even have to be especially handy with a needle to fashion this frock in a jiffy.

The dress illustrated is a perfect model for either town or country. It is attractive for a wide variety of daytime occasions in summer and comfortably styled for vigorous activity when one is vacationing.

The caped sleeves are comfortable, graceful, and exceptionally cool for hot weather. The notched lapel collar is nicely tailored, as is the slim, buttoned vest effect. The bodice is gathered attractively into the shoulderline and this shirring detail is continued in the back with lovely effect.

The back skirt panel is plain, while the one in front has a single, slenderizing seam developing into a "kick" plait for walking comfort.

Suggestions for a charming union of color and fabric include aqua blue tub silk with navy buttons, lilac linen with purple buttons, and yellow cotton with a linen finish, for which trimming may be either brown or yellow.

Style No. 2986 is designed for sizes 16 and 18 years, and 36, 38, 40, 42, and 44 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 3½ yards of 39 inch material.

Will Durant Is Heckled by Eugenic Group

New York, May 7.—[Special.]—Dr. Will Durant ventured the opinion today that polygamy had worked out much better from the eugenic point of view than had monogamy, but when he was heckled on the point the married man beat a hasty retreat and pleaded:

"I was misunderstood."

The bushy haired energetic man who cooked up the philosophies of the ages into the "Story of Philosophy" and more recently published a "Story of Civilization" was speaking at the annual meeting of the American Eugenic society.

There were about 200 present—mostly women—doctors, preachers, social workers—gathered in a parlor.

It was just an aside in Dr. Durant's talk:

"From the point of view of eugenics, polygamy has worked out much better than monogamy."

When he sat down Dr. Foster Wood, secretary of the committee on marriage and family for the Federal Council of Churches, rose to say: "It can't be possible that Dr. Durant should wish us to believe that polygamy is better than monogamy." Dr. Wood looked down from his long frame. A blush began creeping over the face of Dr. Durant, who has been married for twenty-two years and has a daughter.

Dr. Durant stood up. "I was misunderstood," he said. "I did not mean that polygamy was any better than monogamy, but that polygamy had often had a more eugenic effect than monogamy plus birth control.

"In a polygamous society it is the more successful men—and therefore the most able—who have many wives and thereby more children."

Other speakers declared that birth control should be taught to all classes of society. Some said the psychologically weak should be sterilized.

Generally the thought was added that parenthood among the better educated ought to be stimulated—somehow.

Lord Thomas Horder, King Edward's physician, denounced all but voluntary sterilization. He declared that only thorough research in genetics would disclose qualities are inherited. He pleaded for extension of eugenics theories of all sorts through education.

Catholic Directory Reports 212,136 Gain in Members in U. S.

New York, May 7.—[Special.]—Membership in the Roman Catholic church in the United States increased in 1935 by 212,136, according to the Official Catholic Directory, the 1936 edition of which has appeared. The tabulations show that in ten years the increase in the Catholic population has been 2,081,161, and that in twenty years it has been 4,425,879.

There are 4 cardinals, 13 archbishops, and 108 bishops.

Parochial schools total 7,490, an increase of 48 in the year. The number of pupils is 2,120,260, an increase of 2,587. There are 197 theological seminaries, four having been established during the year.

Medical Fraternity Holds Annual 3 Chapter Banquet

Alvarez, director of internal medicine at the Mayo clinic at Rochester, Minn., spoke. Smart Fashion Ideas Plentiful in New Cottons

Two Piece Dresses Ahead of Style Parade.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

The first cotton pickers are finding plenty of new ideas to spend their money on . . . new, slim, young looking clothes for warm weather ahead. Short sleeved, trim affairs that are cool and practical. Stuff that tubs as easily as a pair of stockings. Two piece dresses are taking the records for popularity, the skirts straight as a pencil, and when they are pleated, just front and back pleats for action.

The tops are short of sleeves, and are of the convertible collar types. Some new square cut collars are like sailor blouses. Rough linenlike textures are being featured, and small blocky weaves, much smaller effects than seersucker and just as easy to launder. Thin pique cottons are just what they are called, almost sheer, cool things with a fine pique rib. Smooth broadcloths come in lovely bright as well as pastel colors and are guaranteed not to fade.

Natural linen crash has staged a big comeback. Combined with scarlet and green or bright blue, it makes some of the most effective of street outfits.

Flowered cottons make afternoon cotton clothes, as well as simple little porch dresses or the clever models for country wear.

Culottes of printed cotton are so cleverly made that the divided skirt section cannot be detected even when you walk fast. The cotton culottes are the big favorites for sports and general summer wear. They come in printed designs with short sleeves, high rollover collars, and a shirtwaist top with pockets.

The big surprise of the season is found in the dresses or two piece affairs of ticking, the crisp, clean looking blue and white striped cotton, patterned from the old heavy blue and white bed ticking. Such an outfit is illustrated in the photograph. Two pieces of the blue and white striped ticking—a fitted jacket top with pockets is worn over a Kelly green cotton halter vest. The skirt is straight, with the stripes meeting at the side seams in a slenderizing V formation. It is available in a Chicago store.

[TRIBUNE Studio Photo.]

From a Chicago collection of new summer cottons priced for small budgets: Clean, crisp blue and white cotton ticking is used for this simple but effective street outfit. The halter top-vest is of Kelly green cotton and is worn under the short sleeved fitted jacket. The skirt is straight and slim with the stripes meeting at the side seams in V formation.

Life of Will Barber Will Be Basis for Movie of Adventure

Hollywood, Cal., May 7.—[Special.]—Radio RKO studio today announced plans for production of a cinema adventure story "Inspired by the dramatic life of Will Barber of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, first American newspaper man on the Italo-Ethiopian front, author of numerous newspaper 'beats' on the Ethiopian situation, and posthumous winner last week of the Pulitzer correspondence prize for his work in Abyssinia, during which he was fatally stricken with fever."

The story is being prepared under arrangement with Barber's father, Frederick Courtenay Barber of Yonkers, N. Y., also a newspaper man. Gene Raymond, it is announced, is to head the cast. Louis Lusty is to be producer of the story, idea credit for which is divided with Julius Klein, former Chicago reporter.

Front Views and Profiles

By June Provines

Exhibition— Oddment— Meanderings— Maladies.

MARY MACARTHUR, who was once identified in the press of the country as the act-of-God baby when her mother, Helen Hayes [Mrs. Charles MacArthur], was forced to break her theatrical contract because of her impending arrival, under the "act of God" clause, is now in the first grade at school. Some of her little school friends—and also those in older classes—came to her recently, wide-eyed, to ask if it was true that her mother was Helen Hayes. Assured that this was so, they begged to see her.

"Certainly you can see her," answered Mary. "Come along home with me after school."

When the child came home accompanied by a group of her schoolmates, she led them through the house to her mother's bedroom. Not finding her there, but hearing sounds of splashing water from the bathroom, Mary pushed open the door. Pointing to the astonished Miss Hayes, sitting wide-eyed in the tub, the girl said, "There's my mother."

LAST July Fourth a Mr. and Mrs. Donaldson from Wilmette were aboard the S. S. Monterey between Honolulu and Samoa, bound for Australia. At noon they crossed the equator, and Mr. Donaldson threw overboard a bottle with a note inside asking the finder to please let him know where it was picked up. Last February they received a letter from the finder, a 16 year old lad who had picked the bottle up in the mouth of the Clarence river in New South Wales, Australia. It had taken six months to get there, and had traveled approximately 4,000 miles through hundreds of native and non-English speaking islands.

ONCE at a local cocktail party the cocktails served were passion flower juice cocktails, familiar to sojourners in California. And last Saturday afternoon a hostess was downcast because the passion flower juice she expected to serve had arrived from California leaking from a broken container. The exotic sound of passion flower juice was minimized for us by a paragraph in the latest Field Museum News which says: "The passion flower or cucumber tree belongs to the same family as the common edible cucumber. . . ."

And, speaking of cucumbers, one famous Chicago hostess serves them in long segments, chilled, with the soup. . . . And the soup at one of her dinners was followed by what Lady Peel always calls soft shoe crabs.

MANY occupations seem to affect their followers, and the malady is, I believe, called occupational disease. Hard-of-hearing boilermakers, and policemen and postmen with flat feet. Housemaid's knee, too, perhaps, although I never knew of a housemaid who suffered from it. This leads up to the fact that two of the town's radio editors, Larry Wolters and William Irvin [who writes under the name of Don Foster] are suffering from ear infections. Can it be from listening to some of the broadcasts?

Rocca's Music Is Effective in 'Dybbuk' Story

Ghione, Milan Conductor, Leads Premiere.

BY EDWARD BARRY.

A large audience in the old Auditorium watched the Detroit Civic Opera society and its supporting forces enact the dire story of "The Dybbuk" last night. This was the first Chicago performance of the powerful Lodovico Rocca music drama which had its world première in Milan two years ago and its initial American showing on Wednesday in Detroit.

Based on the Sholom Anski play of the same name, "The Dybbuk" turns out to be a successful attempt to increase the effectiveness of that tale of ill-starred love, occult forces and forbidden knowledge by clothing it in music which combines something of the spirit of ancient Jewish tonal modes with a highly modern and sophisticated treatment of rhythm, color and key.

Rocca uses atonal passages freely and manages to express by such means the malign, unearthly character of much of the story. A twilight of horror and mystery surrounds the action, the music reproduces it skilfully in its brooding, wandering, sometimes discordant progress.

The performance, under the direction of the same Franco Ghione who conducted "The Dybbuk" when it was first sung in Milan, stressed the ominous, eerie character of the music through consistently slow tempos. These tempos are undoubtedly authentic, since the director has had the advantage of direct contact with the composer himself.

Staging, lighting and costuming were comparatively simple, yet enormously effective. The blight of the tragic story entered into these elements of the performance as well, with a note of terror and mystery running almost continuously through the piece.

Rosa Raisa sang with power and magnificence in her rôle of the luckless Leah. At the close of the second act the city which has always been so passionately loyal to her staged a major demonstration. She graciously shared the ovation with Ghione, the conductor.

Frederick Jagel's well controled voice and excellent stage presence made him a highly successful Hanan. The part of the fanatical young student of the Talmud and of the forbidden mysteries of the Cabala requires a peculiar ability to act quietly yet convincingly. Even a slight trace of rant would ruin the dignity of the tragic rôle.

Joseph Royer sang Reb Sender competently. This is the luckless elder whose cupidity and worldly ambitions bring on all of the disasters of the story. Ivan Ivantzof was a shadowy and ominous messenger.

The splendid Detroit Symphony orchestra stayed in the background almost always, commenting eloquently on the action as it progressed and providing a rich setting for the occasional passages of great lyric beauty. The chorus was drawn from the Art of Musical Russia; it figured importantly in the dramatic prologue, when Sender and Nissen made their deplorable bargain.

Yakovleva's Ballet Russe added to the nightmarish power and horror of the half lit second act. That metrical writhing is sin and misery translated into motion.

"The Dybbuk" was sung in a strange language called English. The performance was a disappointment, in this respect, to those of our operagoers who deplore the fact that Italian, German, and French are used almost exclusively. The words were very hard to understand last night.

The Detroit Civic Opera society will remain in Chicago two more days, presenting Borodin's "Prince Igor" tonight and repeating "The Dybbuk" tomorrow afternoon and evening.

The Illinois Symphony orchestra, a Federal Music project unit, celebrated national music week by a concert last night in Orchestra hall, with Frederick Stock as guest conductor and Rudolph Ganz playing the Grieg piano concerto. The orchestra was augmented for the occasion to a strength of over 100.

AUDIENCE IN PRINTS

The high temperature last night did not keep any opera lover away from the Auditorium, apparently, for almost every seat in the great theater was occupied.

Not a fan was in evidence, but almost every one used a program to keep the air in the immediate vicinity in motion, and the moment the lights went on in the intermissions there was a mad dash for the soft drink booth on the first floor and the bar on the second.

One of the most appreciative box parties was one in the center of the lower tier of boxes and the members of it were enthusiastic not only about the opera, which they all had heard the night before in Detroit, but about the acoustics in the Auditorium. In the party were Mrs. Frederick M. Alger, acting president of the Detroit Civic Opera society that sponsored the performance; Mrs. John W. Dyar, one of the board of directors, and Mrs. Dudley C. Hay. They had flown from Detroit and arrived for the beginning of the second act. They plan to remain for tonight's presentation of "Prince Igor."

Prints were much in evidence and almost every other woman had chosen a flowered gown as the proper thing to wear to opera on a warm May evening. Mrs. Charles H. Swift and Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed were among the many in printed gowns, and Mrs. Charles H. Chadwick and Mrs. Jacob Baur were among those who had selected solid bright colors. Mrs. Chadwick's gown was electric blue and Mrs. Baur's was flame red with white leaves, or perhaps they were her favorite butterflies, appliquéd on the slip, over which chiffon floated.

Mrs. John Alden Carpenter, Mrs. Edwin W. Ryerson, Mrs. Bartholomay Osborne, and Mrs. Walter R. Kirk were among the well dressed women who were in black. Miss Emily Larned also was in black, but her costume was enlivened by a stunning Mandarin coat of scarlet.

Among others in the boxes and on the main floor were Miss Janet Fairbank, Mrs. Frank Fuller, the George Woodruffs, Mr. and Mrs. George Dulany Jr., Col. and Mrs. George T. Langhorne, Mr. and Mrs. James M. Hopkins, Mrs. Edward A. Leight, Jule F. Brower, Ira Nelson Morris, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Pynchon, Mrs. Moisant Griffiths and her son-in-law and daughter, Count and Countess Potocki.

F. E. Snow Jr., Son of Woman Who'll Wed 'Baron,' Elopes

Boston, Mass., May 7.—[Special.]—Frederic E. Snow Jr., youngest son of the late distinguished lawyer and philanthropist, was married today to Edna Pettinati of Medford. The pair eloped to Harrison, N. Y.

The bride is the secretary of an insurance broker.

The Snow family appeared in the news previously in the last two weeks, when it was announced that Mrs. Frederic E. Snow Sr. was engaged to marry "Baron" William T. Frary von Blomberg, 29, the young man adopted to nobility by Baroness von Blomberg, German teacher.

Young Snow and his bride met at a penny sale conducted by the Italian Legion auxiliary in November.

After a honeymoon in New York the bride's family expects the couple to live at the Bay State road mansion of the Snow family.

Mrs. Snow Jr. is 20 years old, a high school graduate, and one of eight children.

ENGAGEMENT

Mr. and Mrs. William Martin Keeley, 906 Michigan avenue, Evanston, announce the engagement of their daughter, Patricia Ann Keeley, to Melbourne Stansbury Beers, son of Mrs. Herbert Page Beers of Highland Park.

Miss Keeley attended Roycemore and Smith college and was graduated from Northwestern university. Mr. Beers also is a graduate of Northwestern.

The wedding will take place in June, and Mr. Beers and his bride will live in Wilmington, Del., where he is in business.

Betty Kreuscher Engaged

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Miss Betty Kreuscher and John J. Bohnen, whose engagement to be married was announced last night at a family dinner given by her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Philip H. Kreuscher of 5816 Blackstone avenue. Miss Kreuscher was graduated from the University of Chicago last June, and Mr. Bohnen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph R. Bohnen of 6831 Euclid avenue, finished at the same university in 1925. Miss Kreuscher was woman's editor of the Phoenix and a member of the Mortar Board. The wedding will take place next fall, and Mr. Bohnen will take his bride to Middletown, O., to live.

Mrs. Harrison, Kinney Smith Wed May 20

Ceremony to Take Place in Los Angeles.

BY JUDITH CASS.

SINCE Mrs. Virginia Seeley Harrison and her cousin, Mrs. Robert S. Burns, returned a week ago to Los Angeles from their recent visit here, messages have been flying back and forth, and now May 20 has been selected as the date for Mrs. Harrison's marriage to Kinney Smith Jr.

The wedding will take place in Los Angeles at the home of Mrs. Harrison's uncle and aunt, the Kingsley Macombers, as Mrs. Harrison has closed the house that she and her father, Ray Clinton Seeley, have been occupying, and has sent her furniture to Chicago.

It will be an afternoon wedding, with just the immediate families present, and afterward there will be a large reception. Many details still remain to be settled, but Ralph C. Otis Jr. will be Mr. Smith's best man, and no doubt Mr. Otis' sister, Mrs. Burns, will be one of her cousin's attendants.

Mr. Smith is leaving by plane for Los Angeles next Friday, and Mrs. Kinney Smith, his mother, and his sisters, Mrs. Randolph Payson and Mrs. Hyde Gillette, probably will leave for the west by train that same day with Mr. Otis. Whether any others of the Otis clan, who will be welcoming their cousin here as a bride, are going to the wedding is still undecided.

Mr. Smith is taking his bride to Honolulu on their wedding trip. They will return the middle of June to the apartment on Cedar street that Mrs. Harrison selected during her visit.

Farleigh-Bliss Nuptials May 16.

Another charming young woman who will be coming to Chicago in June as a bride is Miss Jean E. Farleigh, whose marriage to George Osborn Bliss takes place Saturday, May 16, in Montclair, N. J. Miss Farleigh already has many friends here, for she attended the University School for Girls before going to Wellesley.

The wedding will take place at 8:30 o'clock at the Watchung Congregational church, with a small reception afterward at the home of Miss Farleigh's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry S. Farleigh.

Mr. Bliss' sisters, Miss Mae and Miss Madeline Bliss, the former a roommate of Miss Farleigh at college, are going east with him tomorrow for some of the parties that will precede the wedding, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George E. Bliss of Highland Park, are leaving for Montclair next Tuesday. The Misses Bliss will be two of Miss Farleigh's bridesmaids. C. Maynard Nichols of Ridgewood, N. J., who was Mr. Bliss' roommate at Dartmouth, will be his best man. All the others in the wedding party will be easterners.

Announce Parties for Red Cross Officials.

The first of the few private parties that will be given in connection with the national convention of the American Red Cross to be held here from Monday morning until Thursday noon, is a luncheon Mrs. Frederic

Young Actress Holds Hope of Walking Again

Gift of Bruce Barton to Hospital Helps.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., May 7.—[Special.]—The good wishes of Bruce Barton, a man who never saw Mary Blackford, when added to the unwavering efforts of a dozen of her friends among the Hollywood younger players, may gradually restore health and vitality to the paralyzed 20 year old blonde actress, whose case is one of the tragic real stories of the film colony.

Miss Blackford, who played the juvenile romance lead with the late Will Rogers in the latter's coast stage tour in "Ah Wilderness" had just finished rôles in the movies "Sweetheart of Sigma Chi" and "Love Time" when she was injured in an automobile accident here in September, 1934.

The golden haired youngster suffered a fracture of her neck vertebrae, and surgeons said that she must spend the rest of her life immobile, with the broken neck preventing use of any of her members.

But Mary's friends, most of them like herself members of the Puppet club of younger screen folk, rallied and a parade of trips to important surgeons began. Will Rogers volunteered to pay some of the heavy expenses, this being one of that beloved actor's secret kindnesses no one learned during his lifetime. Joan Crawford had Miss Blackford cared for for a time in a hospital room Joan endows at Hollywood hospital.

The Puppets, with Helen Mack, Paula and Dorothy Stone, Lois Wilson, Anita Louise, and Tom Brown in the forefront, then took over the case of their chum. With Gertrude and Grace Durkin, Sue Carol, Patricia Ellis, Anne Shirley, Billy Ganney, Eddie Rubin, Henry Willson, Jimmy Bush, Jimmy Ellison, Don Barry, Hugh Daniel, Stanley Davis, and Marshall Duffield helping, they staged a big benefit at Cocoanut Grove some months ago, and with Benny Rubin, orchestra leader, Ted Fio Rito, and Dick Powell, contributing talent, managed to raise $5,000.

This paid for more trips to specialists for Miss Blackford, but when the fund recently dwindled to $600 Bruce Barton, the author, stepped into the breach. Barton recently had been elated when his 18 year old daughter, Betsy, was restored to vigor and the ability to walk by Milton H. Berry, a former Chicagoan who operates the Berry institution near Hollywood for the muscular retraining of paralyzed persons. Barton tendered $2,500 to the man whom nearly all Hollywood knows affectionately as "Doc" Berry, and stipulated the money should be used for the most deserving case Berry knew. Berry chose Mary Blackford, who was recommended to him by Paula Stone.

The girl, who has not been able to move one of her members in more than a year, has already shown improvement under the treatment which Berry calls "muscular reëducation," and, although it is too early in her treatment to have definite hopes, Miss Stone and other close friends are having a hard time concealing their new hopes for the plucky patient, whom they would fear to disappoint.

Berry, who calls Paula Stone "the angel of our institution," has been taken up by the movie colony as one of the worth while mediums for their charity and entertainment efforts. May Robson and Leo Carrillo conducted the recent Christmas celebration for the crippled children at the Berry institution on Ventura boulevard. One of the recent patients was Eleanor Merry [Mrs. Tom Moore], dancer, whose legs had been paralyzed like Miss Blackford's following an auto accident. Miss Merry has now resumed dancing. Jules Lipski, well known as concert violinist, is another recent "graduate" from this institution that has become so endeared to the film colony. Lipski was paralyzed for several years.

Terry Ray, a graduate of Parker High school in Chicago, and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ray of that city, has been signed as a new member of Paramount studio's junior stock company. She did a limited amount of acting at Englewood little theater in Chicago and came here about three months ago on a trip to see friends. She was born in Kansas City.

There won't be any Spanish, even a Spanish accent, in the new version of "Ramona," according to Henry King, the director. Loretta Young as Ramona, Don Ameche as Allisandro, Kent Taylor as Felipe, Pauline Frederick and Jane Darwell as the mother and the nurse, fill the main rôles.

Lionel Barrymore has just received a custom built typewriter. The letters are cast from his own handwriting.

Build Tenement for Film; It Burns; Loss $15,000

Hollywood, Cal., May 7.—[Special.]—Flames today engulfed the Fox-Twentieth Century studio set where Jane Withers, child actress, was about to appear in a sequence and caused damage estimated at $15,000. The blaze began in a tenement house erected for a New York street scene in a picture entitled "Public Nuisance Number One."

Ruby Roads.

BY NANCY CABOT.

Red, pink, and white were the original shades used in the old "Ruby Road" pieced pattern, and for want of a vivid imagination the quilt was simply named. It is an excellent quilt block for the youngest generation of quilt makers just becoming acquainted with the triangles, squares, parallelograms, and rectangles of coverlets. The quilt was composed originally of all pieced blocks, but for variation they may be set together in an alternate arrangement with plain blocks.

W. Upham will give today at the Casino for Miss Mabie T. Boardman of Washington, D. C., national director of volunteer services.

Tomorrow Mrs. Edwin W. Ryerson will be a luncheon hostess at the Stevens hotel and Sunday afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Charles Garfield King will give a tea in their State parkway apartment for the executive staf of the Red Cross. That night Mr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy are giving a dinner at the Casino for Admiral Cary S. Grayson, chairman of the American Red Cross, and Mrs. Grayson.

George Rowley Gives First Lecture Today.

Those interested in the Chinese exhibition at London will have a chance to hear another authority speak about the exhibition this morning, for George Rowley of New York will talk at 11:30 o'clock at the Arts club. Mr. Rowley, who is associated with Columbia and Princeton universities and the Metropolitan museum in New York, is arriving this morning and will be the house guest of Mr. and Mrs. John Alden Carpenter during the few days he is in Chicago.

Mrs. Carpenter is entertaining at luncheon today and at dinner tonight for Mr. Rowley, who speaks tomorrow night before members of the Renaissance Society of the University of Chicago and their guests in the Oriental institute. "Form and Spirit in Far Eastern Painting" will be his subject tomorrow night.

Next Tuesday afternoon there will be a tea at the Arts club to open an exhibition of paintings by Rudolf Bauer from the collection of Solomon R. Guggenheim. Next Thursday morning there will be another lecture at the club with Baroness Hilla Rebay the lecturer. Her subject will be "Progress of Painting."

Chicagoans Attend Bryn Mawr May Fete.

A number of Chicagoans—some who have gone to Bryn Mawr, others who have daughters there and still others who hope to be students there—are at the college today for the ninth Bryn Mawr May day. It is a two day celebration and will open with a great pageant in which Queen Elizabeth will ride, attended by her court, followed by white oxen drawing the Maypole and by the performers and dancers.

Miss Theresa Helburn, executive director of the Theater Guild of New York and one of the most famous Bryn Mawr alumnae, will be Queen Elizabeth.

The procession will end on Merion Green, where, after the crowning of the May queen [Miss Jane Lewis of Princeton, N. J.], the Maypole dances will take place. Eight plays will be given in the Elizabethan manner and among the players and dancers will be the following Chicago girls: Miss Marie Swift, Miss Alice Orr, Miss Antoinette Brown, Miss Margaret Bell, Miss Esther Bassoe, Miss Virginia Lautz, Miss Mary Sands, Miss Fleanore Tobin, Miss Mary Wood, Miss Betsy Ballard, Miss Jean Lamson, Miss Esther Buchen, Miss Esther Hearne, Miss Louise Herron, Miss Mary Lewis, Miss Mary Ritchie, Miss Alice Seckel, and Miss Elizabeth Webster.

Mrs. William G. Hibbard and her nieces, Eunice Hale and Julie Follansbee; Gen. and Mrs. C. D. Herron, the Ernest S. Ballards, Mrs. Ronald Webster, Mrs. James A. Field, Mrs. Francis Dammann, Miss Helen Bell, Miss Elisabeth Dewes, the Warren Lamsons, the Rollin Woods, and the John Ritchies will be among those who will watch the pageant and the plays today and tomorrow.

May day, which is held only every fourth year at Bryn Mawr, is being given for the benefit of the 50th anniversary fund now being raised by the alumnae for a new science building and for other needs of the college.

La Scala Conductor to Be Guest at Tea.

Franco Ghione, conductor of the La Scala opera, who came to Chicago to conduct the opera "The Dybbuk" last night—it will be repeated tomorrow afternoon and evening—will be entertained at tea this afternoon by the Italy-America society at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Logan, 1150 Lake Shore drive. Mrs. Logan will be presented with the silver medal of the Italian Red Cross for her work during the world war at the tea.

About a month ago the crack bridge players of the University club and Crockford's had a match which ended in a tie, so tonight teams from the two clubs will meet again at Crockford's, in the Blackstone.

Playing for Crockford's in the team of four will be Mrs. Raymond Healy, Vincent Healy, Mrs. Elliott Evans, and Owen Gilman, and opposing them will be John Wheeler, Cushman Bissell, Newell Knight, and Lawrence Winters.

Among those playing for Crockford's in the teams of two will be Mrs. Kimball Sallsbury, Mrs. de Koven Phelps, Mrs. Marian McKinley, John Barnes, Mrs. Richard Peyton, Mrs. Esther Gries, Mrs. Farley Hopkins, Louis Haddad, Mrs. Vincent Healy, and Raymond Healy. Among the University club members in this section will be John Milsted, Joseph B. Lawler, Henry Hilton, and Neil Dawes.

Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, Mrs. Frederick A. Stock, and Mrs. Charles H. Swift are heading a committee that is sponsoring the appearance in Chicago of Abram Haitowitsch, the blind violinist, who has appeared with great success in New York, Boston, and Philadelphia. He will give a recital here in the Drake ballroom on Wednesday evening, May 27. Rudolph Reuter, pianist, will assist Mr. Haitowitsch.

Many Arrange Housewarmings.

Housewarmings are being planned by many at this time of the year, for every one who has gone through the trouble of moving and fixing up new quarters delights in having her friends see her new home while it is fresh and clean. The MacKay Stoddards are going to be at home to their friends today from 5 to 7 o'clock in the new apartment at Scott and State streets into which they moved recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles True Adams will be having a housewarming later in the spring in the new house in Woodley road, Winnetka, which has just been finished.

The William Schuyler Thurbers are planning a housewarming, too, for they recently moved from one house in Barrington to another. They bought a farm on Dundee road last fall and had the house remodeled during the winter.

Barrington is the address of the Ford Rodman Carters now, too, for Mr. and Mrs. Carter, their son Ford Jr., and his 6 year old son, Ford III., have moved to a small farm on the Hillside road. The house, two farmhouses joined, is over a hundred years old and is a charming place.

The junior John Nash Otts have postponed their moving day several times, but now they have set May 29 as the date, and they intend moving whether their new house in Woodley road, Winnetka, is finished then or not. It is a lovely house, Georgian colonial in style.

The Burford L. Porters are occupying temporarily a house in Lake Forest while their new house in Waukegan road is being completed. It will be ready for them to move into on July 1.

Girls Should Shun Chance Acquaintance

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"I met my husband in an art gallery, which you might think would be recommendation enough to override him now ultra-conventional reactions. Ours was a "chance" meeting. Accidental, really. But we were not conventionally introduced. Believe it or not, we have been married now three years, and I still am reminded every now and then that I was the kind of girl who let men pick me up. If I didn't care as deeply for the man as I do, I would flee forever from his taunts. But what, I ask in the name of reason, is fair about my man attacking me on this score when he was the one to maneuver that first meeting, which he confessed frankly to me. PERSALL."

We think we shall have to ask the men to answer that one, as only a man probably can analyze the masculine reaction. Of course, we strongly advise girls against the "pickup" or "chance" acquaintance. We are in a position to know that it is not a solid foundation upon which to build future blessings. Nevertheless, we, too, are intrigued about how a man can so alienate himself from blame, if blame he insists upon attaching to the woman in the case. Isn't the woman in a similar position to accuse the man of being pretty free with himself? Or, are men fundamentally more conventionally minded than women? Where their women are concerned, particularly?

In any event, this question of unconventional acquaintances comes up at the time of year when their temptation is most prevalent.

There will be outdoor dancing spots and beaches and public playgrounds where there will be temptation to let the bars down. There isn't a doubt in our minds that out of some of these chance meetings will come romances at which none can shake a head. But there will be plenty of them due for a questioning eyebrow as to the unpleasantness of their outcome.

Steward of Bismarck Hotel Marks 40 Years in Office

Carl Enchelmayer, steward at the Bismarck hotel, was the guest at a party in the hotel given last evening by Karl and Emil Eitel, owners, and Roy Steffen, managing director, in celebration of the 40th anniversary of Enchelmayer's stewardship.

According to CULBERTSON

PREVENTABLE SQUEEZE PLAY.

It is no exaggeration to say that fully 50 per cent of the coups successfully executed could have been forestalled by timely counter measures.

Obviously, before danger can be averted, it must first be recognized. It is infinitely easier to take precautions against attack when one can see in what form and from what direction the attack is coming. For that reason it is wise for players to familiarize themselves with the typical positions from which the various end plays are developed. In today's hand a double squeeze for a small slam contract could have been scotched by the use of elementary arithmetic.

The bidding:

5 dimnds.‡	Pass	5 no trp.§	Pass
6 hearts [final bid]

*Asking bid.

†Showing either two aces and second round diamond control, or two aces, including diamond ace.

‡Repeated asking bid; South knows North must hold diamond ace, since he himself holds two aces. Now he asks for second round control.

§Response shows second round control.

West's opening lead of the spade queen created an immediate problem for the declarer. He fully recognized the danger of the queen being singleton, but, as against this, a count of tricks disclosed that only eleven could be made by straight play. A squeeze was the only chance and that necessitated passing the first lead. In fear and trembling, declarer played low from the dummy.

East was fast asleep. It should have been child's play to overtake the queen with the king and continue the suit on the theory that if West, instead of the declarer, had the jack, nothing could be lost, whereas if the queen were a singleton an immediate ruff by West would defeat the contract.

When East stolidly let the queen hold the trick, declarer breathed freely. He could see the outcome clearly. West shifted to the five of clubs and declarer won, after which he rattled off five trump tricks. This was the situation with six cards left to play:

NORTH

The six of trumps now began the double squeeze. West had to discard a club to guard diamonds. East let go a diamond. The jack of spades to the ace reduced West to one club, after which the cashing of the ace and king of diamonds left East in the impossible position of having to guard both dummy's spade and declarer's clubs. The vulnerable slam became a lay-down simply because East, on the first trick, could not count up to thirteen.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question: Both sides vulnerable, North bid one spade. East doubled, holding:

♠ Q 5 4 2 ♥ A 7 ♦ A K 3 ♣ Q 9 5 2.

Was that a good take-out double?

Answer: No. The three and one-half bare honor tricks are badly distributed and the hand lacks support for the other major suit. Best strategy demands a pass.

Litheness Is Essential to Lovely Figure

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

"Today the body that is considered beautiful is lined down to its essentials. It carries a minimum of fatty tissue. It is primarily a figure of bone and muscle over which a silken skin stretches in taut perfection. Only a pliant cushion of soft, lean muscle softens its contour. And in nothing so much as in muscle type is our changing ideal of figure beauty clearly demonstrated!"

The foregoing is an extract from "New Bodies for Old," by Dorothy Nye [Funk & Wagnalls]. For years Miss Nye was associated with the department of corrective gymnastics of Barnard college, Columbia university, and in this recently published book she tells you why, where, and how to exercise for figure, beauty, and health.

"Short, bunchy muscles, strong as iron, are no longer admired," Miss Nye continues. "The slender, sheath-like muscle, with the potential energy and pliancy of steel, has taken first place. Firm muscles, well blended, harmoniously developed, are part of the 'new figure' beauty. Their perfect cooperation carries into everything that we do, from sweeping a room or lifting a baby, into walking, dancing, and all sports!"

It's the impression of neatness and trimness that Miss Nye recommends for silhouette striving. Of being shipshape, alive, eager. Of a body ready to welcome any challenge, and able to rise to meet it easily. Considering your body from one viewpoint only is suggested. The viewpoint that the debs so glibly term "a clothes horse."

You plan to buy a gayly colored print, perhaps, or a bright red or green dress. One glance in the mirror and you leave the shop with the usual navy or drab brown. You want a suit that has smart, dashing lines. You buy instead the usual box-like coat.

There are so many reasons why the body should be streamlined, sculptured to trim lines, that exercise should be taken up in a way that insures the shipshape figure, the poise, mental and physical, that characterizes today's smartest women. And Miss Nye, out of the abundance of her experience, tells you, shows you, how to get the figure that commands admiration. There's valuable information from Miss Nye's pen for those women who are heard to moan: "I'm so nervous. I can't relax!" Also, for those who can't sleep and tips for getting the figure back into shape after the baby is born.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

A bottle of delicious perfume, plus a colonial nosegay of real spring flowers that the mamma can wear to church on Sunday! That's probably the neatest trick of all the tricks of this week preceding Mother's day, and it's been engineered by one of our shops.

Today and tomorrow you'll find this shop featuring three charming perfumes—a lovely soft lilac, a very gay carnation, and a smooth, true gardenia—plus the pretty sentiment of the nosegay of spring flowers. Even if you make your purchase early today you can pop the flowers in the ice box and keep them fresh as fresh for Sunday morning.

Without fuss and without spending much money you can make a charming gesture. The nosegays are sweet. The little advance agent that came to our desk consisted of a wild rose, yellow daisies, a carnation, bachelor buttons, and some dainty, tiny lavender blooms we couldn't identify, all pressed tightly together with old fashioned precision and wreathed with a lacy collar.

The three floral perfumes rank among the best. Any one would be a safe choice for a Mother's day gift, although each is quite different in character from the other. This gardenia is a fairly heavy one; women who like lilting scents might prefer instead the carnation, which is a fairly light version. The lilac is charming, escaping completely the heaviness that so often makes the attempts to reproduce this scent fail completely. It's delicate as the breath of spring itself, entirely suitable for the woman who prefers daintiness to the tantalizing notes in her perfume. ELEANOR NANGLE.

Club to Show Flowers Made for Mothers

The Old Town Boys' club's fourth annual Mother's day flower show will be held today in the clubrooms at 1300 Newberry avenue. Here will be displayed the artificial flowers which the children of the neighborhood have made in classes instructed by club teachers.

On Sunday, Mother's day, the children will give the flowers to their mothers. The flowers include hundreds of potted flowers, artificial, "cut" flowers and window boxes full of gay paper blooms. The practice was started to help children unable to buy flowers for Mother's day to make gifts to their mothers.

Special Mother's day displays of old fashioned flowers are being prepared in the conservatories of Washington, Lincoln, and Garfield parks. They will be open to the public Sunday. They include foxglove, poppies, geraniums, daisies, and butterfly plant.

The Chicago Historical society expects many visitors to its building in Lincoln park Sunday, where in the Gallery of Figurines Chicago mothers distinguished in community and cultural life since Fort Dearborn days are honored. Mrs. John Kinzie, wife of a trader, was the mother of the first white child born in Fort Dearborn in 1804.

More than 1,000 policemen, members of the St. Patrick's Legion of Police, are expected to receive communion in a body at old St. Patrick's church, Des Plaines and Adams streets, at 9 o'clock on the morning of Mother's day. Mass will be celebrated by the Rev. Thomas J. Hayes, pastor of the church, son of a policeman, assisted by the Rev. John Kane and the Rev. Joseph King, sons of policemen.

DID YOU KNOW—

Hydrogen Peroxide—a solution of water and hydrogen peroxide gas—derives its antiseptic quality from oxygen released by a chemical action that takes place when the solution is applied to a wound. The bubbles you see are formed by the liberated gas.
When a bottle of Hydrogen Peroxide is left standing uncorked or loosely corked for any length of time oxygen escapes, causing the solution to lose its efficiency as an antiseptic.

Tincture of Iodine should be kept well corked. If loosely corked, the alcohol in the solution evaporates, leaving the iodine, which if applied in a too concentrated form, may blister the skin.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The title holding Cubs changed their minds with two out in the ninth inning yesterday on the subject of accepting defeat at the hands of the Boston Bees. One out removed from a beating, the champions completed a two run splurge to create a tie and then won out in the tenth as a fitting climax to a struggle in which rival managers almost succeeded in introducing one pitcher for every run scored. The final count was 9 to 8. Nine mound workers were involved in the action.

The finishing touch, which included both the ninth and tenth, was mainly a matter of Billy Herman, specialist in two baggers. He hit No. 13 in the ninth and this, along with a hit of equal length by Chuck Klein and a scratchy but sorely needed single by Frank Demaree brought on the tie after the Bees had surged ahead with a four run blast in the eighth. Then in the tenth with two mates on the bases and two gone Herman unloaded No. 14. The winning run went home and the party broke up.

Beat Fifth Bee Pitcher.

When the tenth got under way the Cubs found themselves facing Al Blanche, the last of a string which had included Jim Chaplin, Bob Smith, Ben Cantwell, and Ray Benge. Blanche lost no time getting himself into the jam from which he never emerged. He started off by walking Hack, who was bunted to second by English. Gill batted for Clay Bryant, the fourth of the Cub staf to see action, but was purposely passed. Galan continued in his slump by fanning for the second time and Herman then lined his two bagger into right to send Hack home with the final marker.

No eleventh hour heroics would have been necessary if Bill Lee had been able to fill the rôle of a rescuer. He was mustered into service as a helper for Charley Root in the seventh. He cleaned up that situation but going into the eighth with a two run lead suffered an ankle twist in a collision at first base. The Bees promptly slapped him out of the picture and continued against Roy Henshaw until four had scored. After the game Lee's ankle was examined by the club physician who reported that close to a week of rest would be needed to mend the damage.

Moore Becomes a Pest.

Herman with his pair of doubles, Capt. English with the same, Chuck Klein with homer No. 5, and Demaree with No. 4 probably were highly satisfied with their work, but they didn't even come close to matching a couple of fellows in the Bees' ensemble. One was Gene Moore, who almost inflicted a one man beating on the champions with a homer, a single, and a double off Root, and a double off Bill Lee with which two runs were pounded home in the eighth. And Al Lopez was good for three singles and a double off Root, Lee, and Bryant.

The Bees had a little fun with Root in the first inning, but all it got them was some exercise. Moore singled to center with one out. Jordan flied to Demaree and Berger

APPLING, DYKES LEAD WHITE SOX TO 11-6 VICTORY

Manager's Homer Starts Downfall of Senators.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 7.—Luke Appling and Jimmy Dykes, delightfully infuriated by recurrences of the epidemic of fumbles which has clutched them so many days this spring, this afternoon were the main men in an 11 to 6 White Sox victory which enabled the Chicagoans to sweep the two game series with the Washington Senators and increase the easterners' losing streak to five.

Going into the fifth inning this afternoon the Sox were trailing, 4 to 1, and the Senators' four counters all were unearned, as the sound hitting involved in the production came after the side should have been retired. With two out and one run home in the fifth, Appling put on his first heroics by singling home the two tying runs.

Walker Fails to Produce.

The score was tied, 4 to 4, going into the sixth, and it was Dykes' turn to make his fumble amends. He did so by putting his team ahead with his third homer of the trip. The smack was more than a tie breaking homer, however, for Pitcher Buck Newsom forthwith loaded the bases while accomplishing only one out. Walker, who had failed to move runners off third and second with one out in the preceding inning, again failed, but Newsom forced a run across by giving Bonura a pass. Buck then went away to let Hank Coppola try his hand with Appling. Luke again came through with a single good for two runs. Before the inning was terminated the Sox had six runs home.

Powell Makes Diving Catch.

Walker's first hit as a Comiskey employé was the only power factor in the run the Sox produced in the first inning. After Kreevich had fanned, Haas walked and stopped at second on Walker's single to center. Mule and Dixie moved up on a wild pitch, and the bases were loaded when Bonura walked. Haas scored while Appling was forcing Bonura, and the inning ended when Powell made a diving catch of Piet's drive to short left center.

Appling's pneumatic glove, directly responsible for 75 per cent of the grief on this trip, precipitated a big jam which was halted at a tied score in the second because Piet still is using a glove which holds baseballs. Powell fanned, then Kuhel walked. Stratton came up with Bolton's hard smash and, with all the time in the world for a double play, Monty

CINCINNATI REDS CLAIM EARNSHAW USES SPITBALL

Cincinnati, O., May 7.—(AP)—General Manager Larry S. McPhail in a letter to President Ford Frick of the National league today formally charged that Pitcher George Earnshaw of Brooklyn used a spit ball in Wednesday's game with the Reds.

The protest was lodged at the suggestion of Chuck Dressen and Coach George Kelly who asserted Earnshaw used the spit ball at least four times.

GEVINSON'S FISTS FLATTEN 2 FOES, EACH IN 2D ROUND

Golden Gloves Fans Cheer Washington Puncher.

The hardest punching featherweight in last night's final Olympic trials at the International Amphitheater was Lou Gevinson, Jewish lad from Washington, D. C. He won the cheers of spectators by scoring two knockouts to advance to tonight's second session. Corporal Paul Bensilhe, member of the United States army in Hawaii, was his first victim and Elmer Kelly of Loyola of the South at New Orleans, La., was his second. Each was stopped in the second round.

Teddy Kara, Chicago's Golden Gloves featherweight also scored two victories, but his chances to qualify for the championship round at Chicago Stadium May 20 were weakened considerably by Gevinson's excellent performances. Luck of the draw may bring these two lads together in their first match tonight.

Pete Lello, Golden Gloves lightweight, almost lost his first contest last night by a knockout. In the second round of his encounter with Denver Welch of West Virginia the referee momentarily halted the battle to take a look at a cut eye Lello had incurred. Pete won by a technical knockout in the third round but he was defeated by Tommy Tedesco of Buffalo, N. Y., in his second fight of the evening. Tommy Walsh, veteran fight manager, seconded Tedesco against Lello.

Elmer Layden, athletic director and football coach at Notre Dame, and J. Arthur Haley, business manager at the South Bend school, both of whom are Golden Gloves enthusiasts, had front row seats.

Golden Gloves programs distributed at the Amphitheater are free, officials emphasized after they had been informed that the programs were being sold in the building outside the arena proper.

Entered as a flyweight, Dominick Saldati of Boston was one of six who came in overweight and stepped into the next weight class. Others were Jackie Wilson, Golden Gloves and National A. A. U. 112 pound monarch, who fought as a bantam; Mickey Brutto, University of West Virginia, and Ruel Shockley, member of the United States army contingent from Hawaii, who left the bantamweight division to compete in the featherweight ranks; Iven Nedomatsky of Maryland, from welterweight to middleweight, and William Townsend, teammate of Shockley, from the middleweight to the light heavyweight class.

Among those who drew byes were Johnny Barbara, South Bend, Golden Gloves welterweight runner-up; Leo Sweeney, Pittsburgh, 147 pounds, and Jimmy Clark, Jamestown, N. Y., middleweight, both of whom are National A. A. U. champions, and Ray Matulewicz, Duke university national collegiate heavyweight king. These boys will box for the first time tonight at the Amphitheater, where the field will be reduced to the sixteen finalists who will fight for the national championships at Chicago Stadium on May 20.

Johnny Behr, Olympic boxing coach, was seated at the ringside taking notes. He will use this information as an aid in picking alternates in each of the eight weight classes.

Treysman Takes Lead in U. S. Chess Tourney

New York, May 7.—[Special.]—George N. Treysman of New York went into the lead for the United States chess championship tonight, when he defeated Samuel Factor of Chicago in the tenth round, after 24 moves. The New Yorker's score was increased to 7½-2½, his total being slightly higher than that of Arthur W. Dake of Portland, Ore.

BY FRENCH LANE.

From away up in the rafters of the International amphitheater at 11 o'clock last night there came a joyous screech.

It must have been the screech of the American eagle, for far down below these rafters the job of picking Uncle Sam's team of fighters which will carry on for him at the Olympic games in Berlin next August had been under way for more than three hours.

A wildly excited crowd had looked on at the first session of the National Golden Gloves tournament sponsored by THE TRIBUNE. If the American eagle was really up there in the rafters he must have got a kick out of it. He had every reason to give vent to his feelings.

Into two rings, located in the center of the big arena, trouped the 90 boys and half of them saw their dreams for a berth on the 1936 Olympic team fade away in defeat.

More Fighting Tonight.

The others must fight on in the same arena tonight and when the last of their battles end all but 16 of the 90 boys who were sent here from the four corners of the nation and from the United States army post in Hawaii will have fallen by the wayside.

The 16 survivors will fight it out in the finals May 20 at Chicago Stadium.

Sensational scraps came along one after another. Old idols of the amateur boxing fans were knocked into oblivion. Some new heroes came to the front. The most sensational showing was made by Chicago's Golden Gloves champions. They won ten consecutive battles.

Kara Wins Twice.

Two Golden Glovers, Ted Kara, featherweight, and Andy Scrivani, lightweight, each rolled up two victories. Jackie Wilson, Johnny Brown, Chester Rutecki, Milt Shivers, Pete Lello, Carl Vinciquerra, and Arthur Oliver, other Golden Glovers, each registered a smashing triumph.

Later on, Lello became the first Golden Glover to go down in defeat when he lost a hard punching struggle to Thomas Tedesco of Buffalo in three rounds.

Chicagoans, long familiar with the thrills of Golden Gloves battles, packed the ringside early and were in a state of frenzy when one after another of their Golden Gloves champions won for them. They had watched these lads fight their way to the top last winter through an enormous field of 17,000 and the kids did not fail them in this first round of the Olympic Golden Gloves trials.

Army Boys Lose.

The United States Army team, which traveled all the way from Hawaii, sent seven members of its team into action last night and all seven took sound thumpings.

Kara scored a technical knockout over Ruel Shockley of the Army team in the third round in his first appearance. He whipped Frank Cvitak of Omaha in three rounds in his second encounter.

Scrivani beat Johnny Crosso of Pasadena, Cal., in his first engagement. He whipped Verne Patterson of Chicago the second time he crawled through the ropes. Scrivani showed some of the smartest boxing displayed for the benefit of the first nighters. Scrivani's clash with Patterson, which wound up the program, had the 6,500 spectators up on their chairs cheering.

Many Standout Boxers.

Standing out among these first night winners were Kara and Lou Gevinson of Washington, D. C., in the 126 pound division, Jackie Wilson and Johnny Brown in the 118 pound class, and Milt Shivers, the Golden Gloves middleweight champion. Shivers must whip Jimmy Clark of Jamestown, N. Y., who drew a bye last night. Clark, like Shivers, is colored.

Among the heavyweights Tom Pontecarvo of Western Maryland university appeared to be much the best last night. Carl Vinciquerra of Creighton university fought a great battle to whip Herman West of Buckner, Ill., in a 175-pound match. Vinciquerra's next opponent probably will be William Townsend, one of the two army fighters who didn't get licked. Townsend drew a bye last night. So did Ernest Farmer, another Army 175 pounder.

List of Survivors.

The following cities and universities still have the following representatives in the tournament:

Detroit	4	King college	1
Chicago	3	Western Maryland	1
Cleveland	3	Pittsburgh	1
Syracuse U.	3	Baltimore	1
Batavia, N. Y.	2	Boston	1
North Carolina U.	2	U. S. Indian school	1
U. S. Army, Hawaii	2	San Francisco	1
South Bend, Ind.	2	West Virginia	1
Duke U.	2	E. Rockaway, N. Y.	1
Buffalo	1	Brooklyn	1
Pomona, Cal.	1	Niagara U.	1
Kansas City	1	Fall River, Mass.	1
Davenport, Ia.	1	Omaha	1
Washington, D. C.	1	Jamestown, N. Y.	1
Los Angeles	1

The 32 bouts tonight will include six bouts in each of the heavier divisions—heavyweights, light heavyweights, middleweights, and welterweights. There will be two scraps in the flyweight, bantamweight, featherweight, and lightweight divisions.

Urso Wins Opener.

In the first contest of the evening Jimmy Urso surprised even his own rooting delegation from Detroit when he got the decision over Sammy Dalton of Boston. Urso did most of the punching in all three rounds. In the other ring Louis Laurie of Cleveland at the same time whipped Bebe Rich of Kansas City in a slugging match.

Jimmy Urso's brother Patsy, a former Golden Gloves champion, scored the first victory in the 118 pound division. He whipped an Indian kid by the name of Leo Wood from the United States Indian school at Phoenix, Ariz. Patsy floored the Indian boy, who was wearing moccasins instead of the regulation fighting shoes, in the third round for a nine count. Patsy was was beaten later in a second round bout.

Wilson Stops Foe.

Jackie Wilson got away to a flying start as a bantamweight when he scored a technical knockout over Morris Parker of Newark. The end came in the second round after Wilson had battered Parker's chin with rights and lefts which left him in a bad way.

Ted Kara scored a technical knockout over Ruel Shockley of the United States army in the third round of his first bout. The soldier had been hammered all about the ring for two rounds and was on the verge of going down for a full count when the referee ordered the bout stopped.

Brown Beats Indian.

The Chicago rooters had a chance to let out their first loud roar when Johnny Brown won a close bout from Clifford Red Elk from Chilocco, Okla., Indian school in his opening encounter. Brown outboxed the Redskin all the way, but failed to land many damaging punches.

The first of the university champions to fall in defeat was Bob Fadner, the featherweight from Wisconsin. Elmer Kelly from Loyola of South at New Orleans had too much speed and boxing skill for the hard punching left hander from the Badger state. Kelly was eliminated later.

A genuine old fashioned knockout came in another featherweight battle which brought together Lou Gevinson of Washington, D. C., and Corporal Paul Bensilhe of the United States army. Gevinson floored the army corporal with a mighty right to the chin soon after the second round started. At the count of nine the soldier was up and made a wild lunge at Gevinson. His chin ran into another terrific right. The corporal went down for the full count that time.

The fights started promptly at 7:30 o'clock. They will begin at 8:15 o'clock tonight.

Russell Gaede Is Fishermen's Casting Winner

Russell Gaede, Crystal Lake, Ill., last night defeated 15 competitors in the fishermen's event of the casting tournament sponsored by THE TRIBUNE at Navy Pier in conjunction with the National Boat and Sports show. Gaede made a score of 94 to win by two points over Glenn Huguelet, Chicago winner of the event in last year's tournament. Henry Walther, also of Chicago, scored 90 to win the third place trophy.

All three of these winners will compete in the final event at the pier tomorrow night, along with the nine casters who qualified Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday nights.

A crowd of approximately 800 watched the fishermen's event, which attracted more entrants than any other event of its kind ever held in the central states, according to anglers and representatives of fishing tackle manufacturers. All of the contestants used regular tackle which they had used on fishing trips, the only substitution being that of the practice "plug" in place of a wooden lure.

Tonight a special event will be held for women casters. There are no restrictions for entering, and either tournament equipment or regular fishing equipment may be used. Women who have not yet sent in their entry should apply to W. J. Butler, tournament manager, at THE TRIBUNE booth near the casting platform. The competition will start at 7:45.

The tournament will be completed tomorrow. Boys under 16 will compete at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, and the finals for men will be staged at 7:45 tomorrow night. Exhibitions are scheduled for Sunday afternoon and evening.

Many fishermen have been taking advantage of the free instructions in bait casting and fly casting which are available at the pier each afternoon and after the competition every night. Special exhibitions by Grove Walters, D. S. Pritchard and Luther Cummings are also attracting show visitors to the casting pool. Persons wishing free instructions should contact Mr. Butler at THE TRIBUNE booth.

Balding to Ride Against U. S. in Cup Polo

WESTONBIRT, England, May 7.—(AP)—Great Britain's polo fortunes were looking up tonight with the addition of Gerald Balding, the world's second highest ranking player, to the squad which will attempt to wrest the international cup from the United States at the Hurlingham club, London, next month.

The British born Balding, who has been living in Rumson, N. J., for six years, holds a handicap of nine goals and is rated second only to America's Tommy Hitchcock Jr., the game's only ten goaler. Balding was named on the British team in place of Capt. H. P. Guinness after leading the Beaufort club quartet to a 14 to 3 victory over the cup team yesterday.

A member of the 1935 Greentree team, winner of the American open championship and the Monty Waterbury cup tournament, Balding is expected to give the British side the assistance it needs against the American players.

Inclusion of Balding makes it possible for Great Britain to send a team aggregating 30 goals against an American side having one or two more.

Faced by a far more powerful British team as the result of today's shakeup, the Americans buckled down to hard practice. Winston Guest's whites beat Strawbridge's reds, 12 to 9, in a game featured by the performances of Guest and one of his teammates, Stewart Iglehart.

So SKINNY They Called Him "Raw Bone"

But Seedol Kelpamalt Did the Impossible—Added 11½ Lbs. Doctor Praises This Weight Building Discovery!

"Thanks to Kelpamalt because it has solved the impossible, I was called the "raw bone" of the family, for no matter what I did to gain weight proved worthless. As I recall now, I have taken seven different things to gain weight and almost gave it up. I even lost two pounds on the last one I tried.

Before I started to take Kelpamalt I asked my doctor about it and he praised it very highly. Well, I have just finished my fifth bottle (500 tablets) which lasted about ten weeks. When I started on Kelpamalt I weighed 131½ pounds, and now I weigh 143 lbs., a gain of 11½ lbs. I feel great [D]i Maggio's Great Throw [in] 9th Helps Save Game.

New York, May 7.—(AP)—Bill [Di]ckey's second home run of the day [in] the last of the eighth with two [m]en on gave the New York Yankees [a] 6 to 5 victory over the Detroit Ti[ge]rs today, but it took a great throw [by] Rookie Joe Di Maggio in the ninth [to] save the game.

With no outs in the ninth and the [ty]ing run on third, Charley Gehring[er] filed out to Di Maggio in left field, [an]d the Italian outfielder propelled [a] perfect throw into Bill Dickey's [ha]nds to double Pete Fox at the [pl]ate. At this point, a fan in the [st]ands stood up and started waving [a] huge Italian flag on a long pole. Dickey's first home run came in the [six]th. Score:

Sox Pile Up 11-6 Victory Over Senators

wheeled and made a perfect throw to Appling at second. The ball hit the inflated Appling glove and bounced away, Kuhel reaching second and Bolton first.

Stratton, since the season began, has been standing up well under the results of Luke's butterfinger technique, but on this distressing occasion, he loosed a wild pitch which advanced Kuhel to third and Bolton to second. Kress then tapped to Dykes, who also has been trying out the Appling pneumatic model in several recent games. When Dykes eventually picked up the ball, Kuhel had scored the tying run. Newsom then hit the most difficult double play ball of the inning. Piet grabbed the grounder, tagged Kress, and threw to Bonura to double Newsom.

Sox Yelps Are Unavailing.

The Senators made three runs in the fourth after the Sox thought they had retired the side. With two down, Kuhel bounced to Bonura, who threw to Stratton as he sought to cover first. Umpire Ormsby ruled Kuhel safe on the ground that Stratton was not on the bag when he took Bonura's throw. Loud Sox protests served no purpose, of course. Bolton doubled, scoring Kuhel. Kress then knocked a homer into the left field stand, scoring behind Bolton. Stratton tossed out Newsom to end the inning.

Appling made up for his fielding misfortunes by driving in the tying runs after two were out in the fifth. With one down, Stratton singled to center, the third hit off Newsom, then Kreevich walked. Haas doubled to left, Stratton scoring and Kreevich stopping at third. The runners held on while Walker lifted a weak fly to Stone in short left. Bonura walked, filling the bases. Appling ran the count to two balls and two strikes, after which he singled to right, Kreevich and Haas scoring and Bonura stopping at second. Piet forced Appling.

Dykes Starts Fireworks.

Dykes made his move to erase his fumbling entry when he led off the sixth with his third homer of the season. Sewell singled to center, but was forced on Stratton's attempted sacrifice. Kreevich singled to right, and the bases were loaded when Kuhel gummed up Haas' bouncer. Walker fouled to Kuhel, but Bonura drew his third pass, forcing Stratton across the plate. Newsom was yanked and Coppola replaced him. Appling smashed a single off Kuhel's shins, scoring Kreevich and Haas. When Kuhel recovered the ball and threw it past Bolton, for his second error of the inning, Bonura scored and Appling went to second. Piet singled to center, scoring Appling with the sixth run of the inning. Piet then was caught trying to steal second.

The White Sox added their 11th run in the seventh on a walk to Dykes, a single by Sewell, a walk to Kreevich and a force play.

Stratton tired in the ninth, and three singles and a walk netted the losers two runs.

Larry French to Hurl Against Cardinals Today

The St. Louis Cardinals will be subjected to southpaw treatment today when they open a three game series with the Cubs. The treatment will be applied by Larry French. The Cardinals also will serve southpawing, the dispenser being Bill Hallahan.

When Lon Warneke left the clubhouse after Tuesday's game he was carrying a billfold containing $393 in currency and valuable papers. When he reached home the billfold had vanished. He has suspicions that the loss occurred when he was crowded by "admirers" as he was walking out of the park. He doesn't expect to see the money again, but would appreciate return of the papers.

Shortstop Bill Jurges, who has been on a week's vacation because of an injured right elbow, expected to resume work today, but has changed his mind. The bruised joint still is giving him considerable trouble.

The Cub officials have changed their minds about devoting a portion of the center field scoreboard to the up to the minute standings of the National league clubs. They abandoned the idea when they discovered the white letters and numerals would be square in the eyes of the batters.

Before the game Manager Grimm announced that he had reduced the Cub squad to the 23 player limit which becomes effective May 15, by sending Pitcher Clyde [Lefty] Shoun to the Birmingham, Ala., team. After the game Grimm decided to withhold the deal until Bill Lee recovers from his ankle injury.

Sox Face Browns Tomorrow in 1st of 3 Game Series

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 7.—The White Sox left Washington at 6:30 o'clock for St. Louis, where on Saturday, Sunday, and Monday, they are to meet the tail end Browns. The Sox took the first two games of the season from Rogers Hornsby's unhappy crew.

When the Sox defeated the Senators yesterday they had won only seven games, but had taken one game from every team in the league except the Boston Red Sox.

Cubs Battle Ten Innings to Beat Bees, 9-8

walked. Cuccinello relieved the situation my bouncing to English. Then Klein showed the enemy how runs could be scored on a minimum of effort. After two were deposed in the home half Klein hoisted a fly into the wind and when the ball descended it was in the right field bleachers for homer No. 5.

The run which let the Bees enjoy a tie for a few minutes in the third started with Moore doubling off the left field wall after Herman had thrown out Barber Bill Urbanski. Jordan lined to English, but Berger sailed Root's first pitch into center for a single, Moore scoring.

One Hit; Another Run.

The Cubs produced only one hit in their half of the third, but with some unexpected help from the visitors it was enough for a run. English doubled to left center with none out. Root bunted and Chaplin started to throw to third. English was hugging second, so Chaplin threw to first, but Root beat the play. English went to third on Galan's force of Root and scored while Herman was being thrown out by Cuccinello.

The champions continued their one at a time progress in the fourth. Demaree sailed his homer into the left field bleacher to open the inning. In the next session the title holders made it 4 to 1, mainly because the Boston lads experienced another streak of generosity. A high fly by Galan dropped close to the left field line for a double and he went to third when Herman was nailed for the second out. While Klein was at bat Chaplin cut loose with a wild pitch on which Galan ran home.

Nick Root in Sixth.

The sixth inning assault in which the Bees nicked Root for two runs began on a single to left by Cuccinello. Thompson slapped a single to right. Coscarart did the same, Cuccinello scoring and Thompson going to third. Thompson registered on Lopez's fly to Klein.

As soon as Smith reported for work in the home sixth Demaree popped a single into left. Hack walked after a fly ball had exterminated Cavarretta. English picked out a nice open spot in right field for his second two bagger, which moved Demaree and Hack across the plate.

The Bees crept up with one run in the seventh and caused the removal of Root. The run bloomed when the busy Moore hit his homer over the left field bleacher, helped, of course, by the wind. Galan had to step to grab a low liner by Jordan, and when Berger followed with a single Lee replaced Root. The inning ended on a double play.

The devastating eighth started with Thompson's innocent looking roller toward Cavarretta. Thompson beat the ball for a hit and went to second when Cavarretta's throw to Lee was wild. Lee's right ankle was twisted when he collided with the runner. The next happening was Herman's one-handed leap to spear a sure hit off Coscarart's bat.

Next came Lopez's looping single into left, Thompson scoring. Hal Lee batted for Cantwell and Bill Lee passed him. The second out was recorded on Urbanski's fly to Galan. Then the busy Moore was heard from again. This time he contributed his double to left, Lopez and H. Lee scoring. Henshaw came to W. Lee's rescue and Jordan slapped him for a single, sending Moore home. Jordan was cut down trying to make two bases on his hit.

Herman's Thirteenth Double.

The Cub ninth didn't start off as if the tying runs were going to get around to the plate. Benge set down three Cubs in the eighth and made it four in a row when Galan led off in the ninth with a fly to Thompson. Herman doubled to right for his thirteenth two bagger. Klein also doubled and Herman scored. Stainback ran for Klein and went to third on Hartnett's grounder to Cuccinello. Then Demaree scratched a bounding hit to Coscarart and Stainback raced in with the tying run. Cavarretta rolled to Benge for the third out.

OFFICIALS, diplomats, socialites and "just fans" saw a distinguished gentleman toss the first ball at Griffith Stadium, Washington, April 14th. Dressy crowd. Douglas style scouts report brown shoes scoring a run over black. Toes slightly narrower; perforated tips popular. Douglas illustrates some favorites here—and matches every style detail, in All-Leather Construction. A real triple play . . . "style to comfort to long wear" . . . and you're out—very little! $3.95, $4.95, $5.50, to be exact.

CUBAN RIDES 3 AURORA VICTORS, THEN SUSPENDED

Rodriguez Charged with Rough Work.

For about an hour yesterday it seemed that things were finally going to be all right for a slight Cuban youngster named Eugenio Rodriguez, who is riding at the Aurora race track. Rodrigues threw down his knife in a sugar cane field near Camaguey five years ago and decided to become a jocky at the Oriental Park race track in Havana, twenty miles away.

Coming into prominence with the Spanish speaking horse owners at the Aurora race course last week when Cornelio Mojena, one of America's leading riders, was forced to return to Cuba because of the illness of his father, Rodriguez rode the winners of the first three races at Aurora yesterday, and it appeared that his services would be in demand after five years of plugging along at his trade.

Cuts Across Field.

But in riding Mrs. Harry Toriante's 3 year old High Santa in the five and one-half furlong third race Eugenio made the mistake of cutting across his field from an outside position to take the lead soon after the start. And after he had galloped into victory over Koley Bey and Guaranty the Aurora stewards decreed that he should be set down for the balance of the meeting for rough riding.

Rodriguez probably was riding the best horses in two of the three races which he won. He had the mount of Mrs. Harry Toriante's 2 year old Broadway Girl in the first race at four and one-half furlongs, and after having stayed just behind the pace for the early part of the race he came on after the field rounded into the long stretch to win by two lengths. The horse was the first odds-on favorite of the Aurora meeting and paid $3.60. Disarray and Scotland Topsy finished second and third.

Rides $16.40 Winner.

Rodriguez was on the five year old Double Nugget, which races in the silks of Hubbard and Kroeger, in the six furlong second race and won without difficulty. He took Double Nugget to the front early in the stretch and at the end was well ahead of Animate. Jib Boom was third. Double Nugget paid $16.40.

The little Cuban's downfall came in the third race, a five and one-half furlong sprint in which a dozen platers went to the post. High Santa, his mount, had drawn the extreme outside post position, but the colt had the most early speed and sprinted to the front. Rodriguez attempted to bring the horse to the inside gradually, he insisted later, but the horse demonstrated a tendency to go toward the rail. As a result the horse impeded several other racers before the field reached the first turn. High Santa got out in front before th field reached the stretch and paid $5.40 after beating Koley Bey and Guaranty.

Hocky League Elects Calder for 20th Time

Detroit, Mich., May 7.—[Special.]—Frank Calder of Montreal today was reelected president of the National Hocky league at the annual spring meeting. He will be starting his twentieth season as president of the circuit next November. The board of governors also was named by the owners.

Toronto's Maple Leafs sold Andy Blair, defense man, to the Chicago Blackhawks for an unannounced sum. The Hawks plan to use Blair as a center, the position he played when he starred on the hocky team at the University of Manitoba.

The Leafs purchased Goalkeeper Walter Broda of the champion Detroit Olympics of the International league for $8,000 cash, a record price for a minor league player.

The Blackhawks also obtained Ronald Sutherland, defense man, from Portland. Only one player was drafted, Toronto taking Center Murray Armstrong from the Philadelphia Ramblers, a New York Ranger farm in the Canadian-American league.

Al Sutphin, owner of the Cleveland club of the International Hocky league, attended the meeting and asked for a franchise in the National league. President Calder said the proposal would be presented to the owners later.

The board of governors includes:

James Norris and Jack Adams, Detroit; Maj. Frederic McLaughlin and W. J. Tobin, Chicago Blackhawks; Arthur H. Ross, Boston; Col. J. R. Kilpatrick and Lester Patrick, New York Rangers; William V. Dwyer and Dan Schwenker, New York Hocky club; Thomas Arnold and T. P. Gorman, Montreal Maroons; J. E. Savard and L. Gelinas, Canadiens, and Connie Smythe, Toronto.

YOU CAN NEVER BE BALD

IF YOUR SCALP REPLACES HAIR THAT FALLS
says Charles Nessler

Charles Nessler, scientist, pioneer in hair research, inventor of permanent wave in 1906. Author of outstanding textbooks on hair biology.

"BALDNESS is not natural. Nature never intended man to be bald. You can help your scalp perform its natural function—to replace every hair that falls with new hair," says Charles Nessler, leading hair biologist. "Any attempt to stop hair from falling is not only useless, but dangerous," Nessler further goes on to explain.

After more than twenty-five years of scientific research, out of Nessler's laboratory comes PRO-KER—the first scientific treatment ever based on the replacement theory—the theory that Nature must be helped to replace hair that falls. Not stop falling hair—that is impossible; but replace it. The PRO-KER Treatment helps the scalp perform this natural function ... helps replace falling hair with new, healthy hair.

RELIEVES DANDRUFF—ITCHING—OVER-OILINESS

These secondary conditions are quickly relieved by the application of PRO-KER. Pleasant to use—not sticky or greasy. An excellent hair-dressing for men and women. Free from alcohol. Start today on the simple PRO-KER Treatment. Get PRO-KER at any drug counter. Booklet accompanying bottle contains not only instructions for use, but vital do's and don'ts about your hair. It's our family's whiskey, neighbor—and neighbor, it's your price!

It's like Dad said—

"Boys—our name is on this here whiskey. Keep the quality just so, and you'll find folks will thank you for it."
Harry E. Wilken, Sr.

And folks sure do thank us! Here's a photo of us Wilkens doing some heavy trucking—William Wilken stacking in the freight car—Harry Wilken Jr. with the first truck load—and Tom coming up with another. It's Ned Parks doing the checking.

More folks hankering for our Family's Whiskey than ever!

It sure looks like Dad was right relating to how folks appreciate finding every bottle of our Family's Whiskey never varying the least little bit! Tom was just saying the other day how he never knew there could be so many orders. Well, by rights our Family's Recipe couldn't hardly help being good, being how this business of making whiskey has been going on in our Family so long. Take me and William and Tom shown trucking cases here. If you got a mind to figure it up, the three of us have put in all the grown up part of our lives working with Dad—not to make any mention of his own 44 years experience—and all grandad's experience on top of it. As I was saying—I don't see as how our Family's Whiskey could hardly help being good!

UPRIGHT SWING HELPS ACHIEVE LONG IRON SHOT

Revolta Tells Importance of Address, Position.

[This is the fifth of a series of articles by Johnny Revolta, Evanston Golf club professional, national professional and western open champion, and leading money winner of the 1935 season.]

BY JOHNNY REVOLTA.

The long iron shot is to me one of the most important in golf, and I have had plenty of opportunity to appreciate the fact during my association with Henry Picard, the Hershey, Pa., professional who, I think, is the best in the game today in this department. If the judgment of any player other than myself is required on this choice, consider that a jury of the game's leading tournament players recently voted Picard the best iron shot in the game today.

On my own account, I have had every reason to realize the value of Picard as a partner because of this talent of his with long irons. Henry and I have won nineteen straight matches in best ball competition, winning the last two four ball matches at Miami, the Inverness invitational tourney, and the Ryder cup match in which we were paired. At no time during any of these did I ever have to worry about whether or not Pic could hit a long iron shot.

Height Helps Upright Swing.

I think that Picard's height enables him to get an upright swing, which is a great aid to long irons. Another asset he has is a straight left arm. He also has great footwork, enabling him to pivot well.

I can recall Pic's first big tournament victory, the Agua Caliente open of 1935, which brought him first money of $1,500. That victory hinged on one shot, one of the finest I ever saw made with a long iron. Henry had missed his tee shot to the 440 yard eighteenth hole, pushing it to the right and leaving himself with a shot of about 220 yards and over a guarding trap. Pic took a No. 2 iron and smacked the ball over the trap and to less than two feet from the cup. That birdie gave him a 32 for the back nine and a 70 for the round, enough to beat out Harry Cooper.

The iron shot of which I myself am proud came during the western open tournament which I won at South Bend last summer. It happened on the 16th hole of the final round. It was 400 yards long, and because the tee was out on one shore of a small lake, it had proved a jinx to more than one player. It had cost Johnny Banks a 13, Bill Mehlhorn a 10, and Byron Nelson a 7. Being the leader at the time, I intentionally hooked my drive in order to avoid the out of bounds penalty on the right side. I found my ball in the heavy rough 180 yards from the green. I took a rough iron, with the idea of getting through the grass and the ball and still being able to play the shot so that the ball wouldn't go high and thus bury itself deep in the sand of a trap fronting the green. Instead, I hit it so that it skipped the trap and landed on the green. I was proud of that iron because it had worked out precisely as I had planned.

Armour Hits Long Iron.

The value of long iron play in a championship match was exemplified during the final of the national P. G. A. tournament between Tommy Armour and myself at Oklahoma City last October. Despite the fact that I was four up on Tom at the end of the first eighteen holes, I never had any solid assurance of winning because of the fine long irons that Armour, another master in this department, kept on hitting. Armour later told me that he felt lucky to have reached the final, but it was plain that his iron shots kept him in despite poor wood play and ineffective shots around the greens. It was a No. 2 iron shot that enabled Tom to tie Harry Cooper for the national open title of 1927. Once he had hit the iron, Armour says he had all the confidence in the world about making the 15 foot putt that remained, and did sink it.

Walter Hagen, who has hit more spectacular recovery shots than any other man in golf, is to my mind the finest shotmaker with all types of irons. He fooled me during our first round P. G. A. match last year. After he had used a No. 2 iron to connect with the short 11th green, I did likewise, but poured mine into a trap, simply because I had not hit down at the ball in order to kill the flight of the ball.

Address, Position Important.

Address and position are very important in making a long iron shot. Always remember to keep the hands slightly ahead of the clubhead, about an inch. This should make you feel you're coming into contact with the ball with the same thought as at impact. It's impossible to get this feeling unless you have started from the top of the swing with a forward shift to the left side, which enables the hands to keep ahead of the clubhead. I cannot emphasize this too much if you have a habit of slicing.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

POTPOURRI.

ST. MARY COLLEGE OF CALIFORNIA, which produces so many fine athletes, protests because Joe Devine, Yankee scout, signs a sophomore player for professional baseball. The Wake sympathizes with that protest, although there are two sides to the question.

If St. Mary protests merely because the player will be lost to the college team through ineligibility, that's one thing. If it protests because the player is likely to drop out of school and not finish his education, that's another. The latter course is more probable, although many athletes have used their earnings from professional baseball and football to finish schooling and to take degrees in the professions.

The player in question, however, would be more likely to succeed in baseball if given two more years to develop. While exceptions prove the rule there are few Phil Cavarrettas in the majors.

Colleges are not preparatory schools for pro baseball to the same extent they are for pro football. Hence no vital question of policy is involved. To foster favorable public opinon pro football elevens are not permitted by their own rules to make advances to undergraduate football stars.

The N. C. A. A. decision to count two years participation in athletics at a junior college as one year in regular college activities will benefit Pacific coast universities, which recruit athletes from the J. C.'s. There one year of residence is not required. Thus a boy may play his two years at J. C., move on and still have two years of his three year allowance left to play, finishing in four years. The interpretation will be valuable, but less valuable, in conferences having the one year residence rule.

Incidentally, this is "Blossom time" in St. Joseph and Benton Harbor with the big parade of beauties tomorrow afternoon.

Johnny Dawson, business man golfer, will defend his title, twice won, in the "Heart of America" tourney at Kansas City, May 18-20, to which leading players, pro and amateur, have been invited.

Getting Results.

When asked to spade the yard a man
Is mad enough to swear;
The day the seeds are planted he
Is almost never there.
And when the weeds grow thick and strong.
And after days of sighin',
He pulls the annual poppies up—
He thinks they're dandelion.
But when the garden blooms at last,
O then, how he exults—
He tells his friends how hard he worked
To get such grand results.

The Wake has been playing golf in a desultory way for thirty years and never has attained a hole in one, although once on one of the poorest shots we ever executed came within a half inch of that desideratum.

Now comes Johnny Sheldon to tell us that his grandfather, John H. Stevens of the Chicago merchandising family accomplished this feat at Little Country club, Winter Park, Fla. The distance was 110 yards. Mr. Stevens is 79 years old. Strange thing too, the hole in one was perpetrated on the jinx date of FRIDAY, MARCH 13.

M'LARNIN HOLDS 9 POUND EDGE OVER CANZONERI

Expect 18,000 at Fight Tonight.

New York, May 7.—(AP)—Just what chance a good little man stands against a good bigger man will be answered in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night.

Tony Canzoneri and Jimmy McLarnin, two of the greatest little veterans in the history of boxing, are pitted against each other in a ten round bout that may mean a golden harvest for one—fistic oblivion for the other.

Seldom has an indoor non-title contest attracted so much attention. The advance sale indicates a crowd of 18,000 and a gate exceeding $60,000.

Except for the Joe Louis-Paulino Uzcudun heavyweight bout last December, which was in the way of an extra added attraction, Canzoneri and McLarnin will draw the biggest indoor gate the Garden has enjoyed since Jimmy knocked out Benny Leonard in 1932.

Odds Favor McLarnin.

It's a tough bout to figure. The betting tonight was 7 to 5 on McLarnin, but the wise ones were saying it would be no more than 6 to 5 ring time with one pick as good as another.

Here are the questions the sporting gentry around Broadway were trying to answer tonight:

Can McLarnin, one of the best of them all in his day, come back after a year's layoff and defeat such a two fisted little mixer as Canzoneri?

And what about those ten pounds Canzoneri is spotting McLarnin? Will they be the scales that turn the tide of victory against the lightweight champion, who has shown a distressing inclination to tire in his most recent bouts?

The fact that the answers are six of one and a half dozen of the other is what is assuring the Garden of a near sellout.

Holds 9 Pound Edge.

Until his mediocre showing against Johnny Jadick last month, Canzoneri was the favorite to beat the Vancouver Irishman, who has been on a ring vacation since he lost the welterweight title to Chicago's Barney Ross here last spring. McLarnin's surprising showing in gymnasium drills also has caused the money boys to do a right about face.

McLarnin will weigh around 144 pounds and Canzoneri 135.

TERRY HOLDS 99 POINT EDGE IN BIG 6 HITTING

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Evidently content to let his early record keep him on top, Manager Bill Terry of the New York Giants still is leading the Big Six batters by 99 points. Billy Sullivan, his nearest rival, yesterday got one hit in four times up, and none of the others did much better. Ben Chapman, the Yankees' outfielder, was out of the game with a pulled muscle in his left side, Johnny Stone of the Senators failed to get a hit against the White Sox and Bill Herman of the Cubs and Buck Jordan of the Bees each got two hits, Herman in six attempts and Jordan in five. Taste Test No. 6—BOSTON MARATHON

68% vote for Mildness of Vintage Tobacco

BOSTON, MASS., APRIL 20—How do you choose a cigar? By habit . . . by fancy bands—or by taste? By taste is the right way, for it's taste alone that gives smoking pleasure.

We made a cigar taste test among the spectators at the famous Boston Marathon to see which cigar men would choose when taste alone was the deciding factor. We gave 152 smokers who made the test two unidentified cigars—a Vintage White Owl and another—representing the leading nationally advertised brands. No names . . . no familiar bands to prejudice them. Each man smoked both cigars—then indicated the one he liked best. 68% preferred White Owl with its Vintage-tobacco taste.

MORE SMOKING PLEASURE . . . Today's White Owl is a double "best buy." It's a Vintage cigar—and it's larger, too. Look at this actual-size picture. White Owl averages a 10% longer smoke than other widely advertised 5¢ cigars.

Compare White Owl with your present brand. Taste the Vintage tobacco—see the extra size.

Wherever you are, you can get the same mild, uniform Vintage cigar that won these taste tests. It costs but 5¢ at your nearest cigar store.

FROM START . . . to finish—all along the 26-mile, 385-yard route—cigar smokers made the taste test. And look at the results . . . a great victory for White Owl's Vintage taste. Match White Owl against your present cigar . . . make the taste test yourself. Discover the mild flavor of Vintage tobacco. Then you'll know why sports fans in all sections have preferred White Owl . . . choosing it by taste alone.

HALF A MILLION SPECTATORS . . . a real test of endurance for the runners . . . and a real showdown on cigar tastes. Vintage tobacco, like Vintage wine, is milder, mellower. That's why White Owl has won every taste test. It's one cigar that always assures you of a Vintage smoke. Every White Owl . . . no matter where you buy it . . . has a Vintage-tobacco filler.

New York, May 7.—The listed bond market moved irregularly lower today with the exception of United States government issues, which closed slightly higher. The turnover dipped to $9,616,000.

A number of active issues in the railroad group yielded major fractions to a point, while fractional losses were the rule among most industrials and utilities.

Some Industrial Losses.

Industrials losing 1 to 1¼ points were Allis Chalmers 4s, American Rolling Mill 4¼s, and Colorado Industrial 5s. Announcement of the abandonment of the refunding plan of International Telephone and Telegraph brought about some selling in outstanding loans. The 5s dropped 2½ and the 4½s yielded 1⅜ points in heavy trading.

The market lacked important news developments on which to base the reversal of trend. Some quarters pointed out that the rank and file of bonds had been edging forward most of this week in a comparatively thin buyers' market and had apparently reached a "supply level."

Treasuries Gain Slightly.

Most of the longer term treasury issues closed 1-32 to 3-32 points higher and a similar trend prevailed in the guaranteed list, with the exception of Federal Farm Mortgage 2¾s and 3s, which closed slightly lower.

Contrary influences from Europe caused a wide variation in price performances in the foreign section. French bonds, reflecting the gold situation, broke sharply, losses exceeding 3 points in some instances. At the same time Italian bonds pushed forward. Kingdom of Italy's 7s made a new high for the year at 76¼.

S. S. Kresge.

Investors' Guide: I should be pleased to hear from you regarding common and preferred stocks of S. S. Kresge company.—C. W. M.

Answer: S. S. Kresge company operates a chain of 740 variety stores, one type selling 5-10-25 cent goods and the other 25 cent to $1 merchandise. It is the second largest organization of its kind in the United States. Stores are located in 26 states—half in New York, Illinois, Michigan, Pennsylvania—while 48 outlets are in Canada.

The company has an elaborate inventory control system emphasizing rapid turnover. Purchases are made from a wide variety of sources under supervision of the head office. Manufacturing is confined to dishes and pottery. Though a large majority of stores are leased, real estate holdings are large, buildings and land being carried at $48,610,000 of the $118,514,000 total assets on the Dec. 31, 1935, balance sheet.

Funded debt, which mounted to nearly $25,000,000 in 1930, has been reduced rapidly. It stood at only $8,909,000 after $10,263,000 retirements [saving $450,000 interest annually] in 1935.

The management also has indicated its intention to retire the entire 20,000 shares of 7 per cent preferred stock at par of $100 and dividends on Jan. 1, 1937, the only date on which it can be redeemed. This would leave only common stock, of which 5,487,314 $10 par shares were outstanding Dec. 31, 1935.

The dividend policy has been conservative, expansion being largely financed from earnings. Preferred dividends have been paid regularly. The only common dividend omissions were in two quarters in 1933, in which year only 45 cents a share was disbursed. Through 1931 $1.60 a share was paid annually. The 1934 rate was 80 cents, and 25 cents has been paid quarterly since the beginning of 1935. Sales have recovered half their drop from $156,457,000 in 1929, while profits are near the 1930 level, though still far short of 1929's $14,952,000. The record of the last five years follows:

	Net sales.	Net income.	Inc. per com. sh.
1935	$138,340,000	$10,215,000	$1.84
1934	137,667,000	9,836,000	1.70
1933	125,973,000	8,441,000	1.51
1932	124,537,000	5,657,000	1.01
1931	145,838,000	9,462,000	1.69

Sales for the first three months of 1936 were $28,211,000, 1.5 per cent more than $27,792,000 the same period of 1935.

Despite heavy debt retirements, current assets of $33,814,000 on Dec. 31, 1935, included $18,183,000 cash, which alone was nearly double entire current liabilities of $8,211,000.

The preferred stock is high grade. The common deserves a rather good rating.

BANK DEPOSITS IN N. Y. BOOSTED BY FRENCH GOLD

Flight from France Affecting U. S.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

(Statistics on page 40, column 8.)

The flood of gold rushed from Paris by Frenchmen thoroughly scared by communist gains in recent elections is not only shoving American gold stocks up to new all time highs but is boosting New York bank deposits substantially, the weekly federal reserve board figures disclosed yesterday.

Monetary gold reserves of the United States rose 27 millions in the week ended Wednesday, according to the reserve report, bringing the total to 10 billion 248 million dollars, compared with 8 billion 728 million a year ago. In view of yesterday's Bank of France report showing a loss of more than 77 millions in gold, this stream of incoming metal promises to increase even more sharply when westbound liners en route from France reach New York.

Treasury Taxes Gold.

Incoming gold under present laws is immediately commandeered by the United States treasury, which gives the receiving banks equivalent amounts in credit or currency, through the federal reserve banks. The latest week's influx of 27 millions of foreign funds went principally to New York member banks, whose figures, also released yesterday, showed an increase of 25 millions in the deposits held for the accounts of "foreign banks." Apparently none of the capital fleeing from France got as far west as Chicago, because the deposits of foreign banks in member banks here remained unchanged at 4 millions.

Added to the receipt of French funds were other factors forcing up the deposits of New York banks. The United States treasury was spending more millions of the big balances that it has been sequestering with the federal reserve banks since the March 15 financing, and as this money was being dealt out it was coming back into commercial banks, swelling their checkbook deposits. Such "demand" deposits of New York member banks rose 74 millions in the week ended Wednesday. Nearly half of this increase was accounted for by treasury spending of 33 millions hitherto held in the twelve federal reserve banks.

Loans Increase Deposits.

Still other factors were at work boosting New York bank deposits. Commercial loans by New York banks rose 13 millions, and loans by New York banks to other banks increased 34 millions. Increases in bank loans generate additional deposits. Total outstanding loans and investments of the New York banks rose 64 millions. An increase of 28 millions in their holdings of direct and guaranteed government bonds was partially offset by the sale of 17 millions of other securities.

Contrasting with the substantial changes in the amount and distribution of deposits and outstanding loans and investments of New York banks were the nominal changes reported by member banks in Chicago. Banks here showed an increase of 33 millions in deposits placed with Chicago institutions by outside banks and a decline of 20 millions in demand deposits. Total loans and investments increased 10 millions, 3 millions of which was accounted for by additional commercial loans.

Idle Funds Gain Little.

Because a large part of the increase in deposits was put to work as additional loans and investments during the week the rise in deposits was not reflected by corresponding increase in the idle bank deposits of the nation in the week ended Wednesday. The amount of cash reserves in excess of legal requirements carried by commercial member banks with the federal reserve system rose only 10 millions, to a total of 2 billion 700 million.

Reduced activity in the stock market during the last week was reflected by a 10 million dollar drop in the amount of brokers' loans by New York member banks in New York City. Brokers' loans by the New York banks to brokers and dealers in other cities rose 2 millions.

ROOSEVELT ASKS ARCHITECTS AID HOME BUILDING

Williamsburg, Va., May 7.—(AP)—President Roosevelt asked the American Institute of Architects in a message today to consider whether a larger volume of home building is "not obviously the most practical answer to the question of those who ask what private industry can do that it is not already doing to put our unemployed workers into gainful occupations."

Stephen Vorhees, institute president, said in a reply message that "this institute has for some time and during the last year particularly, concentrated its best thought on the problems which confront the country in the entire field of housing."

Poland Will Cut Imports to Protect Value of Money

WARSAW, Poland, May 7.—(AP)—Poland today announced a sweeping move to curtail imports as the next step in its campaign to protect the zloty, already under rigid export restrictions.

Official statements indicated importation in the future will be on a license plan similar to that in effect in Germany, with a special control commission supervising the scheme.

French Reveal New Gold Loss of 77½ Million

Principal exchange markets were stirred to unusual activity yesterday on the revelation that the Bank of France lost $77,544,000 more gold in the week ended last Friday. Issuance of the statement brought the bank's stock down $40 a share from $420 to $380 and caused further big engagements of French gold for shipment to other countries. These engagements and official support were successful in lifting the franc above the export level yesterday, however.

How much more gold was taken for export could not be determined, but New York banking houses with Paris offices estimated that another 17½ millions had been engaged for shipment to the United States. This brought the total of French gold taken for American account since April 24 to $114,300,000.

Causes Buying of Francs.

These engagements yesterday made purchase of francs necessary, which automatically bolstered the franc market. Also there was active participation of both the American and British control funds in the market.

As a result, the franc rose from its early weak level of 6.58 5-16 cents in New York to a closing price of 6.58⅝ cents. This theoretically made the franc safe from further gold shipments to this country for the present, as the franc must decline to 6.58⅜ cents before gold shipments from Paris again will be profitable.

At yesterday's close the American dollar dipped to an equivalent of 100.72 cents against francs from 100.75 cents on Wednesday.

Pronounced weakness developed in the Dutch guilder toward the close in New York yesterday and it fell to 60.70 cents, a loss of 15 points for the day. Improvement in the franc was influential in boosting other leading currencies, with Swiss francs rising 1 point, belgas 2 points, and German marks 4 points.

Sterling Also Advances.

Pound sterling continued to advance on its favorable position as a currency desired for conversion of francs. The transfer of French funds to England was sufficiently heavy to push pound sterling upward against the dollar, and yesterday it gained a full cent to close at $4.97.

Discounts on franc futures widened futher, reflecting the nervousness over the outlook of the franc. Looking ahead to what may happen to the franc, dealers in the futures markets increased the discount on 30 day francs to 21 points and on 90 day francs to 42 points.

The slump on the Paris bourse in the face of the declining franc, when normally prices would advance, was interpreted as reflecting the uneasiness over threats of some political leaders to adopt a French version of the New Deal "soak the rich" policy. Since last March 6 the Bank of France stock has declined $200 a share, or 34 per cent, and is now at the lowest level since 1923.

Other shares were also heavily hit on the bourse and authorities, in an attempt to arrest the rising tide of bearish speculation in securities, boosted margins 10 to 40 per cent. However, this device failed as selling continued unabated.

New York, May 7.—[Special.]—The new board of directors of Universal Pictures, Inc., today elected R. H. Cochrane, president, J. Cheever Cowdin, chairman of the board, Charles R. Rogers, executive vice president and secretary, and Charles B. Paine, treasurer.

A report filed with the stock exchange by Universal Pictures shows that contracts entered into between the new officers and the company provide for the following payments:

A contract dated April 3, 1936, with Standard Capital company provides that the company will lend the services of Cowdin, new chairman of board, to Universal Pictures for five years at $1,750 a week, payable to Standard Capital company.

A contract of the same date, employs him in an executive capacity for five years at $1,750 a week. Another contract with Rogers employs him as principal production executive for five years at $2,000 a week.

DOLLAR POLICY "SAD" FAILURE, SAYS DR. TAYLOR

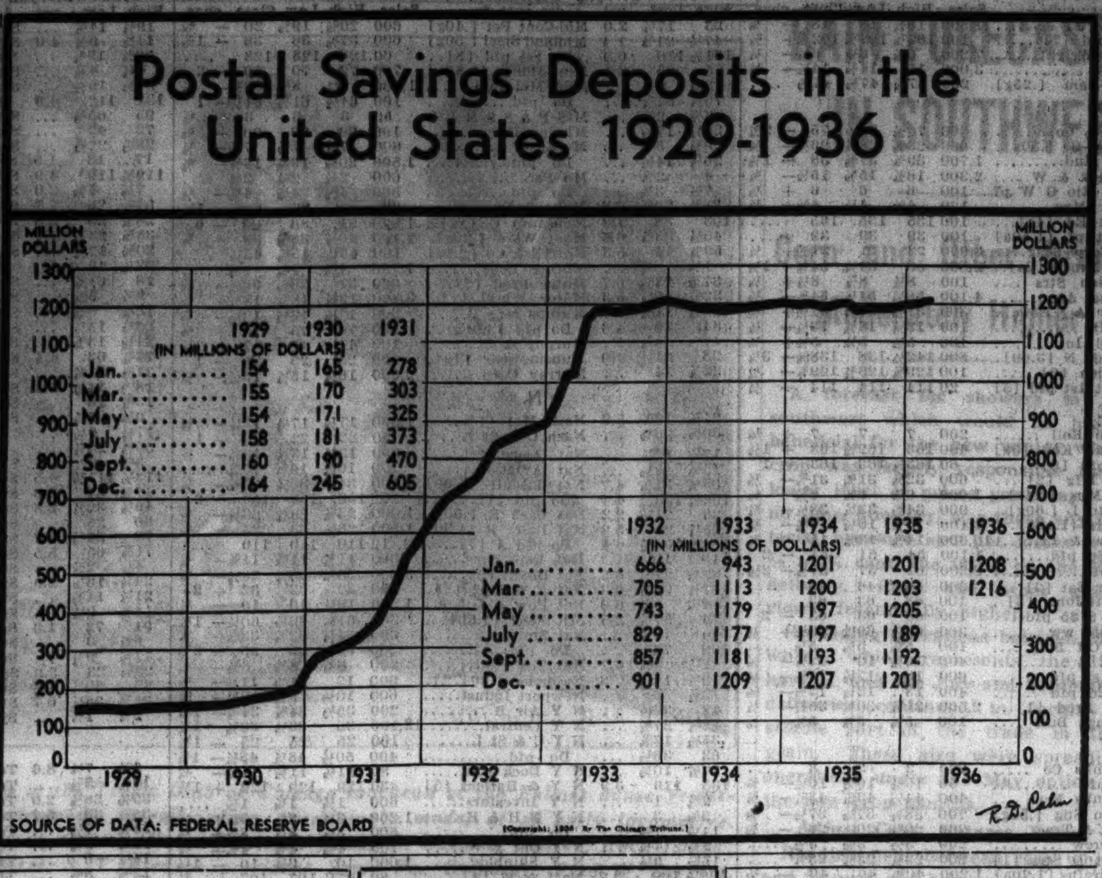
New York, May 7.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt's devaluation of the dollar as a means of stimulating business "has failed sadly," Dr. A. Wellington Taylor, dean of the graduate school of business administration of New York university, told the twenty-eighth annual meeting of the New Jersey Savings Bank association today.

"The government entered the field of spending to 'prime the pump,'" Dr. Taylor said. "Priming the pump is effective only when private industry works the pump handle. Of necessity much, if not most, of the government expenditures have been for nonproductive enterprises and have resulted in excessive reserves of banks."

Dr. Taylor added that the results of the experiment have forced the conclusion "that so-called orthodox methods hold greater promise."

Carl Nyquist, M. J. Healy Join Rock Island Board

Carl Nyquist, secretary and treasurer of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railway company, and M. J. Healy of Kansas City, Mo., a director of Deere & Co., yesterday were elected directors of the Rock Island at the annual stockholders' meeting.



Demand Court Oust Produce Mart Receiver

Removal of Aaron J. Jones, Chicago theatrical man, as receiver for the Chicago produce district was asked in a petition filed yesterday before Judge Joseph Sabath of the Superior court. The petition, filed on behalf of six trustees formerly in charge of the property, alleged that Jones had collected grossly exorbitant fees and expense allowance as receiver.

AARON J. JONES.

Part of the receiver's fees allowed by the court covered a period during which Jones was vacationing in Florida and delegated the work of administering the property to a bookkeeper, superintendent, and stenographer, it was charged.

Trustees Criticized by Court.

The trustees bringing the charges were themselves held to have been guilty of misconduct while in charge of the property in an opinion given last month by Judge Sabath.

The affairs of the produce district have been the subject of bitter litigation for several years. The enterprise was organized several years ago as successor to the old South Water street market. The trouble began when a default occurred early in 1932 on the $8,000,000 bond issue which was floated to finance the promotion. The bonds were an S. W. Straus & Co. underwriting.

After the default the property was placed in the hands of trustees, who administered the property until March, last year, when Jones was named receiver by Judge Sabath.

Five Trustees Bring Charges.

The trustees superseded by the receiver who are now bringing the charges against Jones are S. J. T. Straus, Sidney H. Kahn, Henry R. Platt Jr., Hugh McLennan, and A. J. Weisberg.

The trustees described the $24,000 of fees received by Jones as exorbitant. They requested that no further allowance be made for fees and that the court should reconsider all previous allowances.

Jones, the petitioners said, devotes practically all of his time to his theatrical business to the neglect of the produce district. The $6,000 fee granted by Judge Sabath on April 7 covered the period from Dec. 15, 1935, to March 14, 1936, the petition set forth.

During that period, it was asserted, Jones "was vacationing in Florida" and his claim that he devoted his time to the property was "knowingly false and fraudulent."

Signed Checks in Florida.

"During three months of 1936," the bill added, "Jones was not even available to sign pay roll checks for his employés in the market, so it became necessary to send the pay roll checks for January by mail to Florida."

Pay roll checks for February and March were not signed until Jones returned to Chicago last month, it was asserted.

"Since his appointment as receiver Jones has permitted the property to be operated and managed by certain employés whose compensation has been charged to the trust estate," the petitioners added.

The employes were listed as H. O. Lee, bookkeeper, with a salary of $200 a month; Otto Kretzer, a superintendent, drawing the same salary; and Miss Haltman, a stenographer, who is paid $75 monthly.

It is further alleged that Jones had obtained from the court an expense allowance of $150 monthly on fraudulent representations.

PHONE DATA 'SWAMPS' RATE CONTROL GROUPS, SAYS FEDERAL PROBER

Washington, D. C., May 7.—(AP)—Paul A. Walker, directing the federal communications commission investigation of the American Telephone and Telegraph company, asserted in testimony made public today that the Bell Telephone company had been "swamping" state regulatory bodies with information, exhibits and facts, making it impossible for them to reach a decision on telephone rate questions.

Walker's testimony, given at an executive session of a house appropriations subcommittee, said that extra charges for French type telephone sets "ought to be wiped out," that annual service fees of $14,000,000 paid by operating companies to the A. T. & T. should be eliminated and that certain long distance rates "are very much too high."

In a statement issued through its offices here, the A. T. & T. said Walker's testimony regarding the service fees and the charges for hand sets "is based on ex parte testimony of his own witnesses [at FCC hearings] without cross-examination, and is contrary to the findings of many regulatory bodies and courts."

BUSINESS GAINS ON BROAD FRONT, SAYS U. S. REPORT

Washington, D. C., May 7.—(AP)—Business progress "over a broad front this spring" was reported today by the commerce department.

"The more than seasonal increase in manufacturing output has been accomplished by gains in factory employment and pay rolls," the department said in its monthly survey of current business. Expansion has been pronounced in the durable goods industries, with construction activity making noteworthy progress. The volume of construction, however, still remains low.

"Reports for March and the first part of April record a sharp increase in the value of retail trade.

"An increase in employment and pay rolls in March of slightly more than seasonal proportions was revealed by the usual monthly survey of the department of labor, and further increases have probably occurred during April.

"Cash income received from farm marketings in March was also higher than in February on adjusted basis."

BANK CLEARINGS ARE HIGHEST IN LAST 7 WEEKS

New York, May 7.—[Special.]—Bank clearings in 22 leading cities moved up sharply in the first week of May to the highest level in seven weeks, Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., reported today. Aggregate clearings for these cities were $6,671,348,000, against $6,242,917,000 for the corresponding week of 1935, a gain of 6.9 per cent. In comparison with the last week in April the clearings jumped $1,519,228,000.

New York City clearings of $4,625,483,000 were 5 per cent above a year ago, and clearings of $2,045,865,000 outside of New York were 11.4 per cent larger. Chicago clearings amounted to $312,900,000, a gain of 12.7 per cent.

"All except three of the cities reported gains," Dun reported. "The largest of these increases appeared at Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Atlanta, New Orleans, Detroit, St. Louis, and Dallas. The losses occurred at Richmond, Minneapolis, and Kansas City."

Accept Park Bond Refunding.

Halsey, Stuart & Co. announced yesterday that almost 97 per cent of all the bonds of the park districts in the Chicago areas superseded by the Chicago park district have definitly assented to the latter's refunding offer. The investment company is the refunding agent. The refunding was declared effective on April 21, and May 14 has been fixed as the final date for receiving deposits.

The refunding operation, one of the largest of its kind ever to be undertaken in this country, involves a total of $99,085,708 in bonds, comprising 224 separate issues of 21 superseded districts. Halsey, Stuart & Co. said it is hoped the new refunding bonds will be ready for exchange not later than on June 1.

STOCKS BREAK ON SELLING BY PROFESSIONALS

Long List Ends 1 to 3 Points Lower.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 7.—The stock market broke severely today as professional traders were reported to be unloading their holdings because of uncertainties over the French monetary situation and a growing realization of the serious threat to industry embodied in the administration tax bill. Investment buying and foreign participation also were at a minimum.

A long list of shares closed 1 to 3 points lower for the day, and a number of more volatile issues recorded even larger losses. Trading shrank to about a million shares and the session as a whole was the dullest since March 30.

Another Cause of Break.

In some quarters the reaction was blamed partly on technical factors having to do with the recent recovery. Brokers said traders, watching the list in its futile early morning attempt to follow through on Wednesday's advance, decided that the path of least resistance was downward and acted accordingly.

Favorable business news was ignored. The trade received an encouraging report on steel production, the commerce department reported that business moved forward "over a broad front," and leading motor producers were said to be enjoying their best season in many years, but these statements had no effect marketwise.

Pivotal Shares Disappoint.

Traders were particularly disappointed by the performance of pivotal issues and along toward the close began unloading. With only about a half hour of trading left, the high speed ticker, which had been crawling through most of the session, fell 2 minutes behind actual operations on the floor.

Among the leaders in the decline were Johns-Manville, which lost 5 points after running 8 points lower at one time. J. I. Case fell 4, Monsanto Chemical 6, and U. S. Smelting 3. Among pivotal shares to give up 1 to 2 points and more were United States Steel, Bethlehem, New York Central, American Telephone, Westinghouse, Chrysler, Western Union, Pennsylvania, and General Electric.

Sears Declines a Point.

Sears Roebuck declined a point in the mail order sector and Montgomery Ward, despite its report showing the best April sales in the history of the company, gave up a major fraction. General Motors became a target for the bear forces, suffering a loss running to almost 2 points.

Continental Can and Gold Dust were other heavy spots, both of them receding to new low levels. Oils, rails, utilities, aviations, foods, liquors, and coppers followed the trend.

However, a few stocks found the time opportune to advance a point or more. Included in this group were Bayuk Cigar, Commercial Investors Trust, Eastman Kodak, Phillip Morris, National Enamel, and Park & Tilford.

Flail Tax Bill as Menace to U. S. Recovery

New York, May 7.—[Special.]—The proposed federal tax on surplus earnings of corporations was described as a menace to industrial recovery, business stability, employment and national welfare in general by speakers today at the annual meeting of the New York State Chamber of Commerce.

W. W. ALDRICH.

Winthrop W. Aldrich, chairman of the board of the Chase National bank, in his inaugural address as president of the chamber, criticized the pending tax bill, the federal social security act and the government policy in the handling of relief.

Thomas I. Parkinson, president of the Equitable Life Assurance society, retiring president, voiced disapproval of the tax bill. He said if representative government is to be endured there must soon be a change in the character and the personnel of the house of representatives.

Brands Tax Bill Dangerous.

Aldrich declared the tax bill in its present form is a hastily devised measure primarily significant as a means of forcing a radical and dangerous change in corporation policy.

"A further illustration of this haphazard and almost casual policy of legislation in matters affecting the whole country is the handling by federal government of the problem of relief," he said. "In the current great emergency federal aid has been needed and still is, but there is a growing belief that this aid should take the form of grants in aid to the states where necessary; that such grants should be limited to the amounts actually needed after local resources have been called on to bear their fair share of the burden of relief."

He declared there has been wide waste of public funds in the federal handling of relief. Often meager results followed the federal efforts, he said.

Assails Social Security Act.

The federal social security act passed last summer is in its present form, a grave menace to the future security of the country as a whole and therefore to the security of the people it is designed to protect Aldrich said.

"This pending tax bill was passed after sixteen hours of debate," Parkinson pointed out. "It is the second time within a year that a piece of legislation under the guise of a revenue measure has been passed recklessly and without sufficient consideration by the house of representatives to pass on to the executive department extraordinary powers to experiment with the economic life of the nation."

The chamber unanimously adopted the first report of its recently formed special committee on fiscal policies of government, which strongly disapproved the pending tax measure.

Sales of Studebaker cars and trucks during April were the largest for any month since June, 1929, Paul G. Hoffman, president of Studebaker corporation, announced.

W. R. Tracy, vice president in charge of sales of the Hudson Motor Car company, announced that sales for the two weeks ended May 2 reached a mark that has not been exceeded for a similar period since 1929.

Chevrolet Sales 134,341.

Chevrolet sales totaled 134,341 units in April, an increase of nearly 35 per cent over the corresponding month of 1935. Sales for the year to May 1 totaled 406,620 units, an increase of 48 per cent over the like 1935 period.

Pontiac reported 19,512 retail deliveries in April, compared with 16,492 in April, 1935, and 17,586 in March, 1936. It is expected the May output will exceed 22,000 units.

Studebaker and Hudson Gain.

Studebaker April passenger car sales totaled 10,053, representing an increase of 63 per cent over the 6,155 cars and trucks sold in April last year. For the first four months of 1936 sales totaled 31,255, an increase of 54 per cent over the 20,309 units sold in the corresponding period of last year.

Hudson and Terraplane sales for the two weeks ended May 2 were 6,907 cars. Figures for the last week in April showed an increase of 18 per cent over the preceding week and a gain of 36 per cent over that week in 1935.

Tracy pointed to an increase of 922 new dealers since the announcement of the new 1936 models as indicative of the upward trend that is being reflected in increased sales.

RAILWAY CHIEFS TELL NEW IDEAS USED BY ROADS

Heads of Chicago Lines Address Trafic Men.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Presidents or trustees at the head of seven Chicago railroads gave their ideas as to "What Is New in Railroading" in five minute talks before more than 500 members and guests of the Trafic Club of Chicago at the Palmer house yesterday. Their views included streamlined trains and searchlight signals; track; changed attitude on the part of rail leaders in accepting new developments; rail and truck service; automatic train control; rejuvenated passenger service.

S. T. Bledsoe, president of the Santa Fe, told about the new fast service which his road is about to put into effect between Chicago and Los Angeles. He saw the reduction in time between the two cities of 14 hours westbound and 14¼ hours eastbound as a forward step.

Tells of New Locomotive.

Two things which impressed this lawyer executive were experiments with a new type of steam locomotive carrying 300 pounds pressure and new searchlight type signals which throw beams 4,500 feet to warn engineers either that all is clear or danger is ahead.

Following him, Ralph Budd, president of the Burlington, said he believed one of the greatest developments in railroading is the introduction of new rails by the steel makers.

"Without good track we have nothing; there would be no fast streamliners," said Budd. "There is nothing in the way of steel structures that have to take more punishment than railroad rail. New methods of the steel makers which relieve the internal stresses of rails, making them better able to stand their punishment, form one of the newest and most important developments in railroading."

Downs Sees Constant Progress.

L. A. Downs, president of the Illinois Central system, said that nothing in railroad development remains new very long.

"Only two years ago air conditioning was introduced," he said. "Now there is not an important train leaving Chicago that doesn't have it. But we have one thing that is new—that is the readiness of railroad men to accept all these improvements that are developing. This is a most significant development and it gives insurance for the future."

James E. Gorman, trustee of the Rock Island and dean of the Chicago rail executives, said the financial troubles of his road had prevented it from installing streamline trains, but it has contributed one thing—coördinated rail and truck service.

Urges Rail-Truck Service.

P. H. Joyce, trustee of the Great Western, stressed the business which railroads may get by integrating rail and truck service of the type such as his road will put into effect shortly between Chicago and the Twin Cities. He warned that there was no use trying to suppress trucks and advised them to go after the business for which they are best fitted — mass transportation.

F. W. Sargent, president of the North Western, urged lighter equipment. He said an outstanding development has been the development of the automatic train control.

H. A. Scandrett, trustee of the Milwaukee road, was enthusiastic over the way the new fast trains have rejuvenated the passenger business. He disclosed that the Hiawatha, based on the first ten months of operation, is earning, above operating expenses, including interest and depreciation, at the rate of almost $700,000 a year.

More than 100 Chicago business leaders will make a good will trip to St. Louis today on the Illinois Central's new streamline train, the Green Diamond. Leaving at 8 a. m., the party will have lunch in St. Louis and will be back in Chicago at 7:30 p. m., in time for dinner. This will be the first time that a party of Chicago business men has been able to visit in St. Louis and be back the same day by train. Nonstop runs will be made in each direction.

Furniture Show's Buyer Attendance Sets Record

Registration of buyers at the spring market of the American Furniture Mart yesterday passed 1,700, Lawrence H. Whiting, president of the Mart, announced. He expects total attendance will reach 2,000. Last fall's record breaking market attendance was 1,638.

J. P. GETTY LOSES TIDE WATER OIL PROXY STRUGGLE

Sought More Power on Directorate.

New York, May 7.—(AP)—J. Paul Getty, California oil man and capitalist, lost a bitter proxy struggle today for wider representation in the control of Tide Water Associated Oil company when stockholders at the annual meeting upheld the management by more than 4 to 1.

Getty lost his place on the board of directors and Thomas A. J. Dockweiler, attorney for the Getty interests, also failed of election.

Management Group Reëlected.

Members of the management's director slate reëlected were: Alden Anderson, president of the Capital National bank of Sacramento; George N. Armsby of New York, director in numerous corporations; Edward H. Salrin, vice president of Tide Water Oil. R. M. Sands, also of the management slate and a director of Associated Oil, California subsidiary of Tide Water Associated, was elected.

Voted down by more than 4 to 1 were the proposals of the Getty faction designed to provide annual election of directors and to give holders of 25 per cent of the common stock power to call special meetings.

"The result of the 1936 meeting has not changed our opinion that three year terms for directors are not in the interests of the common stockholder," Getty said. "We believe a majority of common stock is entitled to more rights than a majority of the directors."

Denies Desire to Control.

Getty said his group controled 14 per cent of the company's stock, and added, "It is absolutely false that we control about 25 per cent as the management claims."

Asked his opinion of the management's operation, he said, "I have my own opinion, but I'd rather not comment. We are not interested in controling Tide Water Associated. All we're interested in is the stockholders and a chance to make some money."

Getty lost a similar struggle last year.

William F. Humphrey, president, told stockholders that stabilized conditions in the oil market during the last 60 days "warant us in expecting better results in the operations."

BURLINGTON'S BUSINESS GAIN OFFSET BY TAXES

A substantial increase in the business of the Burlington railroad in April was largely offset by increased taxes which the road must pay under social security legislation, Ralph Budd, president, disclosed yesterday.

Budd said that gross revenues for April were about 13 per cent above the April, 1935, total, which was $6,388,635. This would make the April, 1936, total about $7,216,897. Net operating revenues in April showed an increase of 16 per cent, but an increase in taxes of 21 per cent left an increase of only 4 per cent in net operating income. Net operating income for April, 1935, was $288,242, making the April, 1936, figure about $282,012.

Holland Furnace's Quarter Sales 33% Above Year Ago

P. T. Cheff, vice president and general manager of the Holland Furnace company, reported yesterday that sales for the first quarter of 1936 ran about 33 per cent above the corresponding period last year. The annual meeting of the Chicago sales representatives of the company was held yesterday. A. B. Racht, division manager of the company, said that the company is undertaking the largest advertising campaign since the beginning of the depression. The advertising is concentrated in newspapers, he said.

Exchange Holds Youth Day and Employes Run Show

New York, May 7.—[Special.]—Youth had its hour on the New York Stock exchange today, in observance of a ceremony started in 1924. After two years' competition ended Jan. 1, fifty-one junior employes took over the duties of president, vice president, chairman of the board, and members of the governing committee. The selection of the forty-eight members of the governing committee is an innovation.

STEEL PLANT WORKERS TO GET VACATION WITH PAY FOR FIRST TIME

Under a new policy adopted by the United States Steel corporation, approximately 27,000 employés of three operating subsidiaries in the Chicago territory will receive vacations with pay this year. It is the first time in the history of the corporation that plant workers have been eligible for this benefit.

The order, which is for the current year only, requires that a worker be in continuous service with the company for five years or more. Officials of the subsidiaries said that whether the policy is continued is a subject for later determination.

The order was issued at the request of employé representatives. Approximately 16,000 workers of the 22,000 employed in three plants of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation at Gary, South Chicago, and Joliet will be affected by the order. About 8,000 of the 13,000 workers of the American Sheet and Tin Plate company in the two plants at Gary and one at Elwood, Ind., and 3,000 employés of the American Steel and Wire company plants at Waukegan, Joliet, De Kalb, and Anderson, Ind., also will receive the vacations.

UNITED AIR LINES GAINS TRAFIC IN ALL DIVISIONS

A gain of 17 per cent in revenue passenger miles, 61 per cent in express and 10 per cent in air mail, was registered by United Air Lines for the first quarter over the corresponding period last year, W. A. Patterson, president, reported yesterday.

A new performance record for its coast to coast winter air line operation was also reported. Approximately 99½ per cent of 3,341,243 scheduled miles were flown.

The New York-Chicago-Pacific coast and Seattle-San Diego route planes carried 33,470 revenue passengers for a total of 15,795,837 passenger miles, against 29,161 passengers and 13,450,927 passenger miles in the corresponding period in 1935.

Express amounted to 476,202 pounds, compared with a 1935 quarterly total of 295,247 pounds. Air mail totaled 1,251,681 pounds, against 1,133,917 pounds.

Block and Roeth Given New Inland Steel Posts

The Inland Steel company announced yesterday that Joseph L. Block has been appointed executive vice president in charge of sales, and Albert C. Roeth has been appointed vice president and general manager of sales. Block has been associated with Inland since 1922. He has been a vice president since 1929 and a director since 1930. He has been in charge of the sale of bars and semi-finished steel. Roeth has been with the company since 1911. A vice president since 1929, he has been in charge of the sale of structural shapes, plates, and sheet piling.

COTTON TRADE RESTRICTED, BUT PRICES ARE HIGHER

Trade in cotton futures continued somewhat restricted yesterday, but the undertone was firm, with some buying attributed to foreign account. The eastern cotton belt, which recently complained [illegible] ture, is [illegible] moisture. [illegible] somewhat [illegible] new crop [illegible] Chicago [illegible] 11 points, [illegible] up 2 to 11 [illegible] to 1-100 [illegible]

Spot cotton closed unchanged to 10 points higher, with New Orleans and Galveston at 11.55 cents, Houston 11.60 cents, and New York at 11.85 cents per pound.

CHICAGO MARKET.

NEW YORK MARKET.

CATTLE WEAKER; STEERS LOWEST FOR 17 MONTHS

Beef Prices Decline; Imports Large.

Cattle sold steady to 25 cents lower in yesterday's draggy trade. Some classes of butcher stock which have heretofore escaped most price breaks shared in the decline. The general level of the beef steer market was lowest since November, 1934, and from $1 to $6.40 lower than a year ago. In the first four days of this week steers have declined fully 25 to 40 cents.

The bulk of yesterday's run of steers cashed within a range of $7.35 to $8.25, the best on the market bringing $9. Despite the slump in cattle in recent weeks packers have been unable to move the beef surplus at a profit and were pressing for additional cuts in their live costs late yesterday.

Wholesale Beef Prices Decline.

Beef in wholesale markets has been declining steadily for several weeks and the current trade is glutted with both foreign and domestic beef, the packers report. Notwithstanding the break in the American markets there is no sign of a decrease in the imports of foreign beef, which has been pouring into this country in burdensome volume for more than a year.

Most beef cows, heifers, canners and cutters declined 15 to 25 cents under pressure yesterday.

The hog market yesterday sank mostly 10 to 15 cents after a steady opening. The average at $9.80, off 10 cents, was equal to the lowest daily average since Jan. 6, the day the processing tax on hogs was ended by the Supreme court.

Hog Prices Decline Further.

The average price for hogs shows a decline of 40 cents in four days and is 85 cents lower than two weeks ago. Only occasional lots of selected 190 to 210 pound new crop stock reached the early $10.25 to $10.35 tops, similar kinds changing hands at $10.10 at the close.

Steady prices were paid for the scant supply of lambs, the bulk of the wool stock going at $10.85 to $11.35, with 90 pound stock at the $11.50 top to shippers. Freshly shorn lambs sold at $9 to $9.50. There is a lively demand for shearing stock.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK

All prices are in dollars per 100 pounds.

WHEAT LOWER; RAIN FORECAST IN SOUTHWEST

Corn and Other Grains Moderately Higher.

A forecast for showers in the southwest which would be highly beneficial for the new winter wheat crop was largely responsible for a lower level of prices yesterday. At no time, however, was there any material pressure and net losses were ⅛ to ¾ cent, the latter on the May delivery. Corn and other grains closed fractionally higher.

Spreading operations between May wheat, which represents the 1935 harvest, and the July and September deliveries continued to furnish a sizable part of the trade in that grain. There also were spreading operations under the May option in the new crop months.

Adjust Cash, Futures Prices.

Readjustment between cash wheat and futures, and between the various markets has been under way for several days with the basis on hard winter wheat in the local market reported to be 1 to 2 cents per bushel lower relative to the May delivery yesterday.

Hard winter wheat was said to have been offered for shipment from Nebraska within the next few days at equal to 3 to 3½ cents per bushel over May wheat, delivered here. May wheat in Kansas City closed 1¾ cents lower, while the new crop months were off ⅝ to ⅞ cent.

Winnipeg at Low for Season.

Winnipeg wheat futures were off a major fraction, with the finish the lowest so far this season. No export demand of consequence was reported. Minneapolis losses ranged upward to 1½ cents per bushel, with the May delivery leading the decline.

Closing prices in the July delivery of leading grains, with comparisons, follow:

	Yesterday.	Wednesday.	Wk. ago.
Wheat	$ .87½	$ .88	$ .87⅝
Corn	.62	.61½	.61⅛
Oats	.26⅝	.26⅛	.25⅝
Rye	.52½	.51⅝	.50⅝

Scattered commission house buying was responsible for the firmness in corn, with selling of lard against purchases of corn by spreaders having some effect on corn prices.

C. & O. DISCLOSES GENERAL BOOST IN OFFICERS' PAY

Washington, D. C., May 7.—[Special.]—The Chesapeake and Ohio railway disclosed today in a report to the interstate commerce commission that most of the company's officers received salary increases in 1935.

As senior vice president, W. J. Harahan received $33,600 annually from the C. & O. and $8,400 from the Pere Marquette. On succeeding J. J. Bernet in the presidency on July 23, he received salaries at the rate of $40,000 annually from the C. & O., $12,000 from the Nickel Plate, and $8,000 from the Pere Marquette, a total of $60,000. His director's fees were $847 last year.

Other officers' salaries were increased from 1934 to 1935 as follows: H. Fitzpatrick, vice president, $37,750 to $39,250; F. M. Whitaker, vice president, $34,500 to $35,800; G. D. Brooks, vice president, $40,200 to $42,000; R. S. Marshall, vice president, $28,500 to $29,800; L. C. Probert, vice president, $28,500 to $29,800; W. G. Black, vice president, $24,900 to $26,000; E. M. Thomas, controler, $22,000 to $23,000; H. F. Lehmeyer, secretary treasurer, $19,000 to $20,000; J. W. Davin, assistant to president, $19,000 to $20,000.

CHICAGO STOCKS EASIER; TRADING IS MORE ACTIVE

A little more activity was shown in trading on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday, but the trend continued downward, with 53 issues out of 109 recording losses for the day. Twenty-seven issues advanced and 29 remained unchanged. Volume amounted to 35,000 shares.

Associates Investment established a new 1936 high at 38⅜, but receded to close at 37, up 1 point for the day. Consumers common was the most active issue with a turnover of 4,400 shares, closing at ½ after selling as high as ⅝. There was no change from the latest previous sale, which was made last Monday.

Cities Service eased ⅛ point in a turnover of 2,200 shares, while Bendix Aviation lost 1⅜ points to 26¾. Middle West declined ⅛ and Bliss and Laughlin ½, while Pines Winterfront rose ⅛ point.

These Rates
This bank is one of the few companies in the country which will lend on the same rates and terms regardless of whether you borrow on a new car or a used one, and, so far as insurance is concerned, Fire and Theft is all we require, although we strongly urge that every car owner insure himself against collision hazards. In all cases we want the insurance to be placed with the borrower's own broker or agent. Premiums may be added to the loan account, the broker paid in full, and the borrower settles up with us in monthly installments.

IMPORTANT!

In order to get out from under the biggest stock of used cars in their history, Studebaker Sales Co. of Chicago is making this sensational offer. All the red tape and the extra expense of financing is disposed of—and you obtain the car of your dreams at the lowest price possible.

REMEMBER!

This is only because the sales of 1936 Studebakers have swamped us with the greatest array of "trade-ins" in our history. We admit we can't handle all these cars. We haven't got the room. LOOK!

IN ADDITION, ALL CARS HAVE BEEN SENSATIONALLY REDUCED IN PRICE FOR IMMEDIATE CLEARANCE. THESE ARE NOT FICTITIOUS REDUCTIONS, BUT ACTUAL LEGITIMATE REDUCED PRICES OF FROM 30% TO 70% PER CAR.
